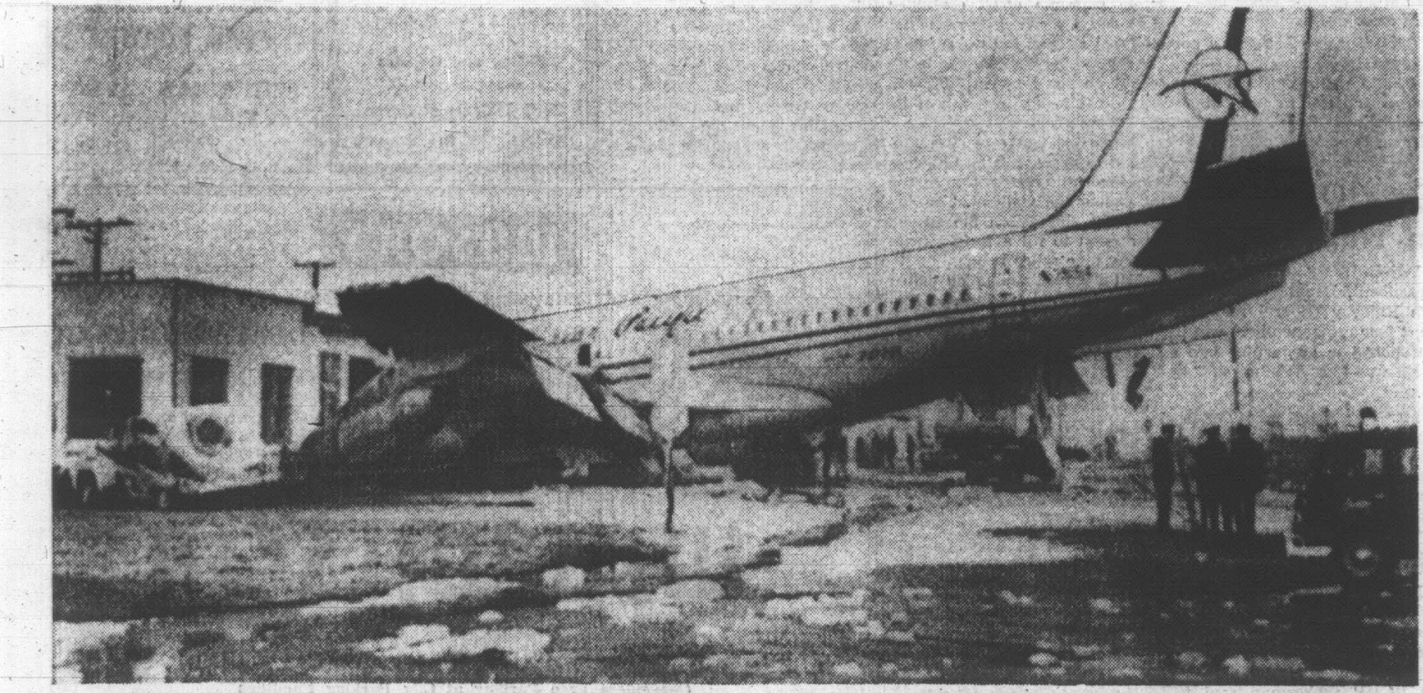
HITS BUILDING AT VANCOUVER AIRPORT

Two Die in Jet Landing Crash



CPA JETLINER came to rest against small department of transport building after landing crash today at Vancouver International Airport. Two persons were killed—a purser aboard the Boeing 707 and a man in the DOT office. Fourteen passengers were injured, but only one was held in hospital. Plane carried 52 passengers and a crew of nine.

Fourteen Hurt In CPA Mishap

VANCOUVER (CP)—Two persons were killed and 4 injured today when a Canadian Pacific Airlines jetliner loaded with homebound vacationers crashed into a building after landing in heavy fog at Vancouver International Airport.

The Boeing 707, CPA flight 322 from Honolulu, carried 52 passengers and a crew of nine, when it bounced out of control along a runway at 6:20 a.m.

Killed in the crash was Martinus Verhoef, 33, of Vancouver, purser aboard the jet and Elmer Metcalfe, 44, of Vancouver, a department of transport employee, died when the jet demolished a small DoT ramp office.

All but one of the 14 injured were released from hospital after treatment. Still in hospital was Mrs. D. Fellger of Lethbridge, Alta.

Witnesses said the big four-engine jet bounced after touching the runway, veered off the runway, struck and demolished four small aircraft parked near the runway, struck a small department of transport building, hit a parked car and then buried its nose into a brick building used by Aviation Electric Pacific Ltd.

The department of transport employee was in or near the DoT building when he died. The purser died in the aircraft.

One jet engine and the right wheel assembly dropped off the jet as it skidded out of control.

Some passengers got out of the right forward door, crawled on the wing and dropped about eight feet to the ground. Others slipped down an emergency chute near the rear door.

Firemen Quickly Control Blazes

Fire started in the right wing soon after the last person was evacuated. Firemen had no trouble bringing the fire in the plane and fire in the department of transport building under control quickly.

The 707 and the flying crew were leased by CPA from Standard Airways of Seattle. The pilot was identified by CPA as Captain Al Burkhalter of Seattle. Cabin workers such as the purser and stewardesses, were employed by CPA.

Normally, a Boeing 707 lands at 120 miles an hour and can carry 126 passengers.

Mrs. Madeline Dewar of Vancouver, returning from a Hawaiian holiday, said the plane "seemed to hit the ground heavily and bounced back up."

John Donovan of Vancouver said "we began bouncing around and fire broke out at the front of the plane."

"Everything was flying around—hand luggage, fixtures, just everything," he said.

Mr. Donovan, whose clothes were soaked with jet fuel, said the crew did a tremendous job. "I could not speak too highly of them, especially the stewardesses."

"They kept urging everybody to keep calm, and there was remarkably little panic. They did an excellent job of keeping everybody in their seats until the plane had come to a stop."

The stewardesses were Annette Towle of Winnipeg and Elaine Gail Rasmussen of Brandon, Man.

CPA's last major crash was in March, 1966, when a DC 8 jet crashed at Tokyo airport with the loss of 64 lives.

Among the uninjured passengers were Mr. and Mrs. Jack Rainey of 2170 Haultain, Victoria.

STEVENSON
. . . he opened hatch

Retired RCAF Officer Aids Jet Passengers

VANCOUVER (CP) — A retired air force officer who had read the directions printed on an escape door helped to get other passengers off a burning Boeing 707 jet today at Vancouver International Airport.

Leigh Stevenson, 73, of Vancouver, an air vice marshal and former MLA, was seated in the Canadian Pacific Airlines plane near the escape hatch over the left wing.

"I had read all the directions about how to open the hatch so it didn't take me too long to open it," he said.

The Boeing crashed into a building after landing on a flight from Honolulu.

"I had a choice of going out or staying in and I figured the best thing was to go out," Mr. Stevenson said.

He said there was about an eight-foot drop from the wing to the tarmac and he helped lower other passengers to the ground.

His wife, Lillian, suffered a broken ankle while she was being lowered.

VISIBILITY POOR

Mr. Stevenson said that there was heavy fog when the plane landed and visibility was very poor. He said the plane apparently blew the left tires, forcing it to slew to the left.

"The plane then slowed down and the next thing we knew the nose had crashed into a building bringing it to a sudden halt."

Mr. Stevenson suffered cuts to his right hand, bruises and shock and was taken to Richmond General Hospital along with a number of other passengers.

Mr. and Mrs. R. L. Denton of Calgary said they were among the first people off the plane.

"We figured it was going to blow up so we got out of there in a hurry."

Mr. Denton had high praise for Mr. Stevenson, whom he said, had helped in the evacuation and avoided panic.

NATIONAL ECONOMIC PROBE

East, West in Collision

OTTAWA (CP) — Pleas for greater federal aid to the Atlantic provinces, improved tax resources for Ontario and power for Quebec to run its own social welfare programs were voiced by the premiers today at the federal-provincial constitutional conference.

Heading into its last day, the conference heard a wide range of views on the question of economic disparities among the provinces.

There was a direct collision between the Atlantic premiers and British Columbia's Premier Bennett on the issue of equalization payments by Ottawa to the poorer provinces.

Premier Robichaud of New Brunswick, Premier Smallwood of Newfoundland and Premier Campbell of Prince Edward Island stressed the urgent need for a greater sharing of taxes collected from the wealthy provinces, mainly Ontario, British Columbia and Alberta.

But Mr. Bennett argued that the whole idea of payments to provinces was wrong. It would be better for Ottawa to pay the money direct to workers and thus raise standards of living in underdeveloped regions.

TOP IS IMPORTANT

Prime Minister Pearson reminded the premiers that economic strength must start at the top. Unless federal revenues were stimulated by new growth the incomes of the provinces could not increase.

He said Ottawa is trying to retain the level of federal expenditures in slow-growth areas while at the same time working to reduce its total spending.

Premier Johnson of Quebec said he would "give the devil his due" and admit that some federal development programs were of great benefit to poorer regions, particularly the agricultural and rural development agency.

But he criticized social welfare as a "waste of money nothing short of scandalous" because of a lack of planning with the provinces.

Mr. Johnson said there was real justification for Quebec's request that it be allowed to take control over all social benefits.

The present system was creating a whole generation that was becoming accustomed to living off the public purse.

Mr. Pearson said Ottawa is taking a careful look at the overlapping of social welfare programs at all levels.

First speaker on the third and final day of the federal-provincial conference, Mr. Robichaud said a strong Canadian federalism cannot be achieved while some areas of the country are far behind in development.

For that reason, the Atlantic provinces were firmly opposed to any constitutional revision that would strip any powers from the federal government. This would weaken Ottawa's ability to help the poorer provinces.

Mr. Robichaud reiterated his region's plea for a massive increase in Atlantic Development Board funds, suggesting it be given $1,000,000,000 in lending power.

The board's basic fund now is $100,000,000.

It should also have greater authority to design and imple-

Pearson 5-Step Proposal Fires Debate

OTTAWA (CP) — The federal-provincial constitutional conference struggled briefly today on Prime Minister Pearson's five-step proposal for recognition of French language and education rights in English Canada.

Premier Manning of Alberta and Premier Bennett of British Columbia raised some objections to the wording of the proposal which would in effect be a directive to a continuing committee.

Mr. Pearson called a luncheon adjournment during which the objections might be recognized.

Mr. Pearson did not ask for unanimous consent by all provinces to his proposal. He asked for a consensus and suggested it could be achieved in five minutes.

Such quick approval quickly became impossible. The matter came up near the end of the morning session after a long discussion on regional economic disparities.

Mr. Bennett asked that the word of the federal proposal be tied directly to the recommendations of the royal commission on bilingualism and biculturalism.

The main recommendation is that French language and education facilities be provided in districts of provinces when the French-speaking population reached 10 per cent of the total.

British Columbia's French-speaking population is less than 10 per cent.

Mr. Pearson welcomed Mr. Bennett's suggestion.

SEES RESTRICTIONS

Premier Johnson of Quebec said the "mathematical bilingualism" proposed by the commission would restrict English-language rights in Quebec.

The reference was to the fact that Quebec provides English education facilities in districts where the English-speaking population is far less than 10 per cent of the total.

Mr. Manning objected to that part of the federal proposal which suggests constitutional amendments guaranteeing language rights being implemented province by province as each agreed to them.

Mr. Manning said he was not objecting to a consensus. But he wanted to make the reservation that a constitutional amendment on language rights can be carried out only by unanimous consent of all provinces.

Mr. Pearson said that in the lunch-hour break this point might be met.

Premier Robarts of Ontario said the committee to be established could deal with this point.

Attorney-General Sterling Lyon of Manitoba said he wondered whether the conference was becoming too preoccupied with the vehicle—the B and B report.

Attorney-General T. A. Hickman of Newfoundland asked that study of the proposed federal constitutional charter of human rights be added to the document the conference was being asked to approve.

Newfoundland favored this charter. If it were implemneted in a few provinces first, the people in other provinces would force their governments to fall in line.

"Don't speak for British Columbia," snapped Mr. Bennett.

Mr. Pearson told the premiers Tuesday he visualized a language equality declaration as the first of five steps towards the eventual enshrinement in the constitution of human rights, including the right to French-language and education facilities anywhere in Canada they are required.

This first step would not be binding in any way. It would be an "instruction" to a continuing committee that would be set up to work out detailed procedures for constitutional change.

Mr. Pearson also described to the conference Tuesday an "opting-in" formula for constitutional amendment that would get around Alberta and British Columbia rejections of constitutional language rights.

A province could wait until it had developed French-language facilities before taking on the constitutional obligation of providing them.

Mr. Pearson's proposals indicated the federal government had given up any hope of getting unanimous agreement for the early inclusion of French rights in the constitution.

The most dramatic development of the day was a sizzling exchange in the morning between Premier Johnson and Justice Minister Trudeau over Quebec demands for "special-status" powers in Confederation.

Belgian Gov't Quits Over Language Issue

BRUSSELS (CP) — King Baudouin today accepted the resignation of the Belgian coalition government headed by premier Paul Van Den Boeynants, it was announced here.

The resignation was the result of a dispute between French-speaking and Flemish-speaking Belgians.

Van Den Boeynants told the House of Representatives:

"Several ministers have expressed the wish to leave the government. Under these circumstances, I have asked to be received by King Baudouin to present the resignation of the government."

The government was faced with a student-inspired crisis over the use of the French language at Louvain University.

Van Den Boeynants said his cabinet was unable to reach a last-minute compromise on whether the 500-year-old Roman Catholic university should abandon tuition in French under pressure from Flemish-speaking students, professors, clergy and government ministers.

The two-year-old coalition government of Social Christians and members of the Party for Liberty and Progress broke ove. the issue.

The Social Christian premier said the present government would remain as a caretaker administration until a new government is formed.

BENNETT A 'NON-HERO'

Issues Smaller on TV But Personalities Loom

By PETER C. NEWMAN

OTTAWA — Will television save confederation?

Because the details of what's being discussed at the constitutional conference this week are too specialized and too stultifyingly dull for wide comprehension, the meeting's greatest significance may be the fact that its proceedings are being televised.

Newman

As a result, the men reshaping our confederation are constantly aware of the viewing public peering at them as they mouth their briefs. No politician can afford to play the villain before a national audience.

Much of the compromise that has been achieved at this historic conference is the direct result of the awareness that every speech, every aside, every gesture of the participating politicians is being transmitted to the nation at large.

Television has made the issues at stake seem much smaller while at the same time magnifying the personalities of the provincial premiers and federal negotiators involved.

Consequently the nation is deducing matter from manner, guiding its assessment of the conference according to its reactions to the various speakers around the confederation table.

This has produced some curious results.

Daniel Johnson, who has never been tougher in what he is demanding, has generated a great deal of sympathy. He simply doesn't look or behave like a man who would break up Canada.

The image he projects is that of a thoughtful politician, anxious to please, troubled that he is always being misunderstood. Although his demands if implemented would result in a divided Canada, his conduct seems to imply that the whole thing is a semantic misunderstanding, and that he's really a much maligned patriot.

Lester Pearson comes across as the ideal committee chairman. It's ironic that in these final few weeks of his stewardship the country has

Viet Cong Send Tanks Into Lang Vei Assault

SAIGON (AP) — The North Vietnamese sent their Soviet tanks into the Vietnam war today, apparently for the first time, against South Vietnamese irregulars and their American advisers at a U.S. Special Forces camp in the northwest corner of South Vietnam.

Reports from Da Nang said a Special Forces sergeant had radioed that only five of the 25 Americans in the Lang Vei camp were still alive—he and four others in the headquarters bunker. He reported a knocked-out tank was on top of the bunker.

The U.S. command said Lang Vei's defenders destroyed five of the nine Russian T-34 tanks sent against them.

The massive assault on Lang Vei, four miles west of Khe Sanh, could be the kickoff of the long-anticipated offensive along the northern frontier, which Gen. William C. Westmoreland has predicted will be the biggest Communist push of the war—exceeding the furious assault on South Vietnamese cities and towns last week.

A senior member of Westmoreland's staff, however, suggested this remains to be determined. He said: "I wouldn't go that far."

About 800 North Vietnamese troops were reported committed to the attack along with the tanks.

The campaign against the cities has died down at most points after eight days, but Viet Cong forces still fought stubbornly in Saigon and Hue.

The U.S. command said the Viet Cong and North Vietnamese death toll in the last eight days reached 22,748 by midnight Tuesday night. It said 1,768 combined forces troops have been killed, including 614 Americans and 1,130 South Vietnamese.

Military spokesmen said the North Vietnamese began pounding the Lang Vei camp with artillery at dusk Tuesday, then launched the ground attack about two hours later.

The camp's garrison—300-400 South Vietnamese and Montagnard irregulars and their American advisers—took cover in their bunkers, and North Vietnamese sprayed the bunkers with flamethrowers to drive the defenders back from rifle and machine-gun ports.

STRAFES RAIDERS

U.S. marine artillery at Khe Sanh fired tons of shells almost on top of the camp after the U.S. advisers called for close-in support. Air force and marine fighter-bombers raked the area with bombs, cannon and machine-guns.

A U.S. spokesman said heavy contact continued through the night and diminished about 11 a.m., but some fighting continued. U.S. headquarters said radio contact was being maintained throughout the day.

Cong Claims 50,000 Dead

HONG KONG (Reuters) — The Viet Cong military command said today it has "wiped out" 50,000 combined forces troops—including 10,000 Americans—since Jan. 29, the North Vietnam news agency reported.

The dispatch also said U.S. policy in South Vietnam is being "sapped at the roots" by the Viet Cong "general offensive and simultaneous uprisings."

The Viet Cong also said it destroyed more than 1,500 aircraft, 4,000 military vehicles, 50 warships and gunboats, radio stations in six major cities and "millions of tons of bombs, ammunition and other war means."

at last been given a chance to observe him in the kind of environment in which he shines.

ETERNAL DIPLOMAT

He knows exactly when an appropriate quip or the call for a coffee break will drain the tension out of a potentially explosive confrontation. He is the eternal diplomat, producing order out of chaos and future possibilities out of confusion.

On sight, Ike Smith, the new Nova Scotia premier, is so restrained as to make Robert Stanfield look like a personality kid. But when you listen to him carefully, you hear a man preaching common sense, a concerned Canadian begging for attention to the mundane problems of regional economic inequalities.

If it is true that the TV camera has a remarkable fidelity in revealing a man's character, Walter Weir the new premier of Manitoba, transmits nothing. He is simply there.

Ross Thatcher comes through as a troubled man who'd rather be somewhere else. He seems to be making gargantuan efforts to be pleasant and his acceptance of the B and B commission's main recommendations was a gallant gesture.

Yet there remains a sense of reserve about his commitment, and you feel that he would be spending his time more profitably drumming up business for his province.

YOUNG STATESMAN

Alex Campbell of P.E.I. is the young statesman of this conference. Here is a man who has nothing to gain and little to lose from the subjects under discussion, but he has risen above the parochial concerns of his province to show that his vision is wide enough to make him an important new father of Canada's reconfederation.

Joey Smallwood, as always, is hamming it up for the folks back home. But his humor is infectious and at times irresistible.

If we ever again send an armed forces contingent to fight some foreign war, the defence department must recruit Smallwood to entertain the troops. He is a born raconteur, the only premier who can make talk about constitutional change come alive.

Louis Robichaud of New Brunswick looks like a once promising bantamweight boxer run to heft, but talks with the fervor of a reform Liberal.

John Robarts of Ontario is the conference's straight man. He sits reading his briefs like a lawyer handling dull litigation against a friendly witness.

Occasionally he will palpitate his moustache and make some sensible comment, but he seldom gets excited enough to change the election poster expression on his face.

TWO NON-HEROES

The non-heroes of the conference are Ernest Manning of Alberta and W. A. C. Bennett of British Columbia, but they are of a very different character.

Manning is the inflexible standpatter, Bennett, the cheerful malcontent.

There is projected in Manning's statements the feeling that he has thought out his position carefully and is measuring his every word according to the dictates of his private gospel. He is not a politician willing to gamble on progress, but his obstruction is rational and meticulously documented.

Bennett, on the other hand, has shown himself to be a man whose grasp of Canada's contemporary realities can't even be described as tenuous.

He recognizes no crisis in confederation and would rather talk about federal subsidies for paving B.C. bridges than take part in any nation-saving exercise.

In his opening day address he all but said that some of his best friends were French-Canadians and openly wondered what all the commotion was about. He has to be seen to be believed, and even then it isn't easy.

The most magnetic television presence is that of Justice Minister Pierre Elliott Trudeau. Here is a cerebral man in action.

Despite his obvious passion, there is in him a sense of inner repose, the refusal to bend his personality into artificial political postures.

It's doubtful if after this week's performances, Canadian politicians will ever again be able to deal with the country's important problems in the sanctity of closed-door conferences. And because every television viewer is also a voter, this may be the best guarantee yet that Canada will survive.

CD Program Will Be Cut

OTTAWA (CP) — Industry Minister Drury Tuesday announced cuts in the civil defence program involving reduced training and the placing of some facilities on a standby basis.

But he added in a Commons statement that the Canada Emergency Measures Organization will continue and that there will be no wholesale dismantling of facilities.

Reductions in civil defence spending were promised in the government's Dec. 7 statement outlining planned spending cuts.

Mr. Drury said his statement was designed to clarify questions that had arisen because of that announcement.

He said the government has approved a series of recommendations arising from a detailed study by EMO.

"The government will continue to support this important work but with a reduced budget, a streamlined organization and improved national management and co-ordination," he said.

Greater emphasis would be placed on emergency planning, as part of the day-to-day work of governments on all levels. This was a change from the training of large groups of volunteers as civil defence workers.

Major systems such as the emergency broadcasting system and emergency government operating centres would be maintained in a reduced state, "but in a condition that will allow their activation in short order" in the event of a crisis.

"Training will be limited to the necessary instruction required by officials, professionals and specialists who have been assigned to wartime responsibilities in shadow organizations," Mr. Drury said.

EMO has a budget of $10,659,500 in the current fiscal year, down from $11,095,000 last year.

Howard Johnston (SC—Okanagan-Revelstoke) said it was rather startling that the federal government, at a time when it was trying to reassert its authority, would let civil defence go "so lightly."

Douglas Harkness (PC—Calgary North), a former defence minister, said he thought the reductions would cause considerable regret in some provinces.

'HELLO DOLLY' LONG RUNNER

NEW YORK (Reuters) — Hello Dolly overtook South Pacific Tuesday night to become the third longest-running musical in Broadway's history with its 1,695th performance.

It entered its fifth year in January and now trails Oklahoma, 2,212 performances, and all-time record-holder, My Fair Lady, 2,717.

GIRL KILLS SELF INSTEAD OF DOG

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) — Linda Marie Ault killed herself rather than make her mongrel dog Beauty pay for her night with an air force lieutenant, police said Tuesday.

Detective Ronald Cromer quoted her father as saying of his divorcee daughter:

"I killed her. I killed her. It's just like I killed her myself.

"I handed her the gun. I didn't think she would do anything like that."

The 21-year-old Arizona State University student died in hospital Monday of a gunshot wound in the head.

Detectives Cromer and Dan Rodriguez quoted her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Ault as giving this account:

Linda went to a dance Friday night. When she returned home at 9:30 a.m. Saturday, she told her parents she had spent the night with an air force lieutenant, and had been intimate with him.

The Aults told her they wanted her to marry him. They called the lieutenant and were allegedly told that he was married.

DECIDE PUNISHMENT

On Sunday morning, the Aults decided on a punishment that would "wake Linda up." Ault told her she was to kill the dog she had owned about two years.

The three went into the desert about 100 yards from their home, Linda leading Beauty on a leash.

They had the girl dig a shallow grave.

Ault loaded his .22-calibre revolver, leaving the hammer on an empty chamber.

As Mrs. Ault held the dog, Linda pointed the pistol at her pet, and the mother looked down at the dog. She moved the gun away. The mother thought she was stalling.

The girl then placed the pistol to her right temple and fired.

"My God, My God," screamed the mother. "She shot herself."

'Quiet Protest'

WASHINGTON (UP) — More than 2,000 persons, about half of them clergymen, trooped through Arlington Cemetery in almost ghostly silence Tuesday to make wordless protest of the Vietnam war.

The visit, one of the most orderly large demonstrations ever staged in Washington, culminated two days of antiwar activity here by the group called Clergy and Laymen Concerned about Vietnam.

The silent observance took place after the U.S. court of appeals upheld Tuesday a U.S. district court decision on Monday that the group could not hold a planned memorial service at the cemetery because of its "partisan" nature.

After leaving Arlington, the protesters gathered at New York Avenue Presbyterian Church to hear one of their leaders. the Rev. Dr. Martin Luther King Jr., denounce America's Vietnam policy.

"When the plane landed it seemed to jump all over the runway and everybody started to scream," said Mrs. Turgeon.

"We tried to get out of the tail door but it was locked so we went out the other door," she said.

Mrs. Turgeon suffered a cut to her right leg.

She said luggage and other loose articles in the plane spilled on the passengers during the impact.

Crew Questioned In Train Wreck

UNION OFFICIAL JAILED IN NEW YORK

Garbage Dumped in Streets

NEW YORK (AP) — The leader of a strike by sanitation men begins a 15-day jail term today for defying a court's back-to-work order as 40,000 tons of garbage—enough to fill 666 railway coal cars—lie in the streets. The strike is in its fifth day.

John J. DeLury, president of the striking Uniformed Sanitationmen's Association, was sentenced Tuesday and fined $250 for criminal contempt under the state's Taylor law which forbids strikes by public employees.

Justice Saul S. Sreit of the state supreme court continued to today a hearing on contempt charges against the union itself. Under the Taylor law the union could be fined up to $10,000 a day or $1 a day for each of its 10,000 members.

Meanwhile, garbage piles continued to grow with no progress reported in negotiations aimed at ending the walkout. The 40,000 tons already on the streets is enough to fill a freight train nearly nine miles long.

DeLury said the union would resume garbage pickups at hospitals, schools and other places which the city will designate for emergency collection. He said the men would work without pay.

Residents of a five-block area on the Lower East Side took their own action by dumping trash and garbage in the streets. One block on 10th Street was closed until 2 a.m. and several fires broke out.

The neighborhood is a mass of tenements housing mainly Negroes and Puerto Ricans and is also the centre of the East Village hippie colony.

In other developments Mayor John V. Lindsey announced that 200,000 plastic bags for garbage would be distributed free to residents today, and also designated sites where the public can burn trash under fire department supervision.

In the court action, Justice Streit dismissed charges against three other officials of the union, an affiliate of the Teamsters Union.

City officials testified in court that the health and fire hazards were mounting by the hour although the board of health declined to declare a citywide emergency.

Health officials expressed more concern about a possible explosion of the rat population than over disease outbreaks as the trash and garbage piles topped six feet in some sections of the city.

Why should Helen Warswick care about storm warnings ?

As a B.C. Telephone Company radiotelephone operator, she has good reason.

Helen Warswick seldom goes to sea. But when a storm warning goes up for British Columbia's coastal waters, she's frequently among the first to take action.

And when she does, the men at sea listen closely. Mrs. Warswick is a radiotelephone operator in the B.C. Telephone Company's Vancouver radio room and she takes a regular turn on ship-to-shore switchboards.

Storm warnings are transmitted to the ship-to-shore operators from the weather office and the operators broadcast them immediately on all marine channels to radiotelephone-equipped vessels at sea.

Big and Growing

It is just one of many services provided through B.C. Telephone's growing public service radiotelephone system, one of the largest anywhere.

Round-the-clock communication service is provided through the system to more than 9,000 radiotelephones, 3,000 of them in land vehicles, 1,000 at fixed locations in remote settlements across the province, and more than 5,000 aboard tow and fishing boats, ferries, pleasure craft and other vessels in coastal waters.

They are connected with the regular telephone system through 16 operator centres and nearly 100 special radio transmitters strategically situated to cover the entire B.C. coast and almost all of the province's vast land area.

50 Service Centres

Equipment is installed and repaired in more than 50 maintenance-service centres located throughout the province.

Mrs. Warswick, a radiotelephone operator for most of her 14 years as a telephone employee, is one of more than 125 operators who staff the radio switchboards.

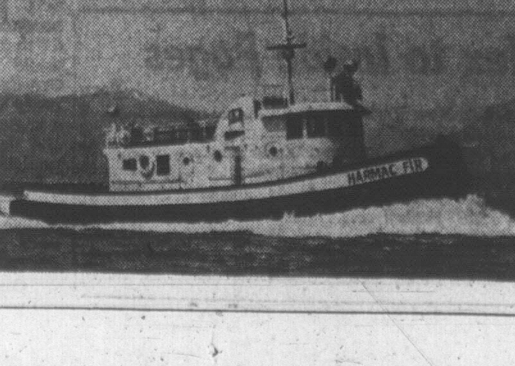
All have had experience in long distance telephone service and all have had special training to handle radiotelephone traffic.

This experience and training equips them not only with the skills necessary to deal with thousands of routine calls each month, including broadcast of storm warnings, regular weather reports and navigational hazards to vessels at sea.

It also enables them to react quickly to the unusual—to advise air-sea rescue forces when a marine vessel in distress calls for help, or to summon aid when something goes amiss at a remote logging or mining or fishing camp.

For many British Columbians, who go far afield to help harvest the resources from which we all benefit, radiotelephone service is their only link with the outside.

Assuring its efficiency is one more important part of the communications challenge which B.C. Telephone and its more than 7,200 employees are striving constantly to meet.



'Tactical Allies, Strategic Foes'

Trudeau and Johnson Differ On Reason for Bilingualism

By STAN McDOWELL
Times Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — Justic Minister Pierre Trudeau and Premier Daniel Johnson of Quebec are tactical allies but strategic opponents at this week's federal-provincial conference.

The immediate crucial issue at the conference is the extension of French language rights outside Quebec. Both Mr. Trudeau and Mr. Johnson are for it, but for directly opposed reasons.

The tactical alliance was the best advance guarantee that this conference could achieve a limited success. But the strategic confrontation produced Tuesday morning's battle between Mr. Trudeau and Mr. Johnson. Neither was willing to let the other take advantage of the immediate alliance to score a strategic gain.

To Mr. Trudeau, bilingualism outside Quebec is in itself a major goal and an essential requirement for a workable, balanced federalism in Canada.

To Mr. Johnson it is a secondary matter. Tuesday morning he referred to it as an "Aspirin." The major concern of the Quebec government is progress toward the enlarged powers of the "true national state" that was a Union Nationale election promise.

'Aspirin' Could Cool Quebec Fever

But the "aspirin" of bilingualism would help cool the currently feverish climate in Quebec, enable Mr. Johnson's government to postpone the constitutional showdown until it is better prepared to win it, and allow Mr. Johnson to carry a trophy home from Ottawa.

The snag, for Mr. Johnson, in bilingualism is that in the long run it undermines his argument that Quebec must have special powers as the only government that French-Canadians can trust.

It gives the federal government an even break in its contest with the provincial government for the interest and support of Quebec's population.

These two conflicting sides of bilingualism left Mr. Johnson little room to manoeuvre at this conference.

And he was further hemmed in by the impression he had given at the Confederation of Tomorrow conference in Toronto last November. In Toronto he gave the heaviest emphasis to bilingualism, to the extent that many of his delegation were unhappy, and that Quebec officials felt it necessary to insist to reporters afterwards that language rights in other provinces were only a secondary goal for Quebec.

The tactical reason for this emphasis on bilingualism at Toronto was simple. It was the one issue on which a majority of other provinces were manifestly in sympathy with Quebec.

Impression 'Cultivated' Recently

Stressing it was the one way to create the impression that Quebec was gaining allies for the day when it would have a constitutional showdown with Ottawa, an impression that Mr. Johnson and his ministers had been cultivating earnestly all through the summer and fall of 1967.

Cramped as he was, Mr. Johnson was making the most of the cards he had when the first day of the current conference ended Monday afternoon.

He had said, before the conference, that division of powers was the primary issue and language rights secondary in comparison.

But in talking to reporters in the corridor late Monday he gave the heaviest stress to the encouraging progress toward bilingualism.

He was far, however, from going along with the Trudeau view that bilingualism was an alternative to more power for Quebec.

To Mr. Johnson the most encouraging thing about the progress toward bilingualism was that it seemed to offer hope of progress toward the constitutional aim Quebec considered of much greater importance, a new division of powers. The best thing about the bird in the hand was that it would lead to the two in the bush.

Smallwood 'Fly in the Ointment'

The fly in the ointment was the Monday afternoon performance of Premier Joey Smallwood of Newfoundland. Mr. Smallwood had been enthusiastically in favor of bilingualism but he had attacked Quebec's claim to special status with a bludgeon, using, in cruder form, many of the arguments often heard from Pierre Trudeau.

Mr. Johnson could not return to Quebec appearing to have accepted the proposition that bilingualism was an alternative to more powers for Quebec.

Mr. Smallwood had plumped the startegic conflict bewteen Mr. Trudeau and himself into the centre of the conference horseshoe and nobody could go on pretending to ignore it.

Tuesday morning Mr. Johnson moved to protect his strategic position by counter-attacking in reply to Mr. Smallwood's use of the main Trudeau arguments against special status.

That brought Mr. Trudeau in to defend the federal position in Quebec, which, in turn gave Mr. Johnson an opening for one of the biggest weapons in his arsenal: the argument that the provinces are more sympathetic to Quebec's aims than the "federal spokesman" is.

It was the familiar sound of that big gun that brought Mr. Trudeau back for a second charge against the Johnson position.

'Family Jokes Came Off Badly'

The clash was fundamentally an engagement between two Quebecois. Its style and tone would have fitted comfortably into a debate in the Quebec legislature—in one of the good-tempered moods of that house.

Mr. Trudeau's reference to Mr. Johnson as an Irishman and Mr. Johnson's reference to Mr. Trudeau as the member for Mount-Royal were both family jokes that came off badly outside Quebec.

At the moment Mr. Trudeau and Mr. Johnson are the most prominent spokesman for the two main and conflicting schools of thought in Quebec, the federalist and the proponent of the Quebec national state.

Politics sharpen the division between them. If Mr. Trudeau were to become Liberal leader and carry Quebec in the next federal election it would amount to a major defeat for the nationalist position which Mr. Johnson defends, and which claims to have the near-unanimous support of Quebec's population.

All this makes them unlikely allies. But allies they are, at this conference, on the crucial issue of linguistic equality for French Canadians.

The showdown over division of powers is for later on. Quebec is not ready, either financially or in the state of public opinion, to risk pushing brinkmanship beyond the line of safe retreat.

And the federal strategy needs time to prove to the people of Quebec that bilingual federalism can serve their interests.

On this issue, Tuesday's clash was just a little preliminary sparring.

Joey Draws Praise For Quebec Stand

OTTAWA (CP) — Premier Smallwood of Newfoundland said Tuesday he has received many messages of support from across the country for the stand he has taken at the constitutional conference against special status for Quebec.

"I have many, many telegrams," he said with evident satisfaction. "They're very emotional, very emotional."

At Monday's session Mr. Smallwood delivered a passionate plea opposing any special jurisdiction for Quebec over French-speaking Canadians in other provinces. He also opposed any weakening of federal powers or any move to abolish the monarchy in Canada.

The premier said: "If we had to choose between our love for the throne and our love for Canada it would be a pretty hard choice. . . . Let's hear no more of such foolish talk."

'Jobs Come Before Rights'

OTTAWA (CP) — The average Canadian is more concerned with the problem of earning a livelihood than he is about his constitutional rights, Premier Smith of Nova Scotia told the federal-provincial conference Tuesday.

In a plea for economic equality, Mr. Smith said he spoke for an area where incomes are well below the national level, whose citizens have paid millions of dollars in higher prices over the years for the protection of industrial development in central Canada.

"We delude ourselves," he said, "if we think that satisfaction of the demands respecting constitutional or human rights matter very much to the man, in any province of Canada, who is unemployed for months each year.

In a 21-page submission to the conference, Premier Smith appealed for "a national policy" of massive spending to stimulate secondary manufacturing and other economic activity in underdeveloped regions such as the Atlantic provinces.

He mentioned a federal fund of $1,000,000,000 suggested by Premier Robarts of Ontario as an indication of the amount that might be needed. Premier Smallwood of Newfoundland, described this figure "as a start."

Mr. Smith noted that Nova Scotia itself has invested more than $200,000,000 of capital in recent years to encourage industrial growth. Despite that, its per-capita income was still only 74 per cent of the national average.

Canada and World Trade

THERE IS BROAD AGREEMENT in international financial circles that the problem of the United States balance of payments is urgent and requires co-operation among all the countries in the Western trading bloc for its solution. This, as Mr. Louis Rasminsky, governor of the Bank of Canada, pointed out in an address last week, is because the American dollar "still stands as the main bulwark of the international monetary system."

Serious complications arise, however, as the United States attempts to slow down the dollar outflow for, Mr. Rasminsky noted, "a significant improvement in the balance of payments of the United States will mean a reduction in the flow . . . to the rest of the world. If this flow is reduced to small proportions it will mean that the dollar will cease to contribute to the growth of official reserves." Mr. Rasminsky went on to explain that during the past year there has been an outflow of gold from official reserves into private hands. With the combination of fewer dollars and less gold looming up, "we could well be confronted with a situation where a shortage of international liquidity inhibited the further smooth expansion of international trade and payments."

A responsible man in a sensitive position, Mr. Rasminsky is not given to sensationalism, but his view that it is "now desirable to give high priority" to the creation of a new international reserve asset is a measure of the possible gravity of the situation. And his view is backed by the report of President Johnson's Council of Economic Advisers which stated a week ago that the decline in the gold stock, speculative problems associated with devaluation of the pound and the American payments situation "have given special urgency" to early activation of the new reserve asset plan.

Agreement was reached at the meeting of the International Monetary Fund last September on creation of a new asset to be called a "special drawing right" which would supplement gold and dollars. Unfortunately, no agreement was reached on the time at which the plan would be put into operation and, as the American advisory group points out, even when the SDRs are created, it will take time for them to become established as a customary usable reserve unit.

The implications of this situation are grave for Canada, which relies on foreign trade for its living. Lack of international liquidity can be interpreted as meaning fewer customers able to purchase Canadian products, which means in turn considerable belt-tightening in this country. We have been reminded by the flurry of speculation against the Canadian dollar how open our economy is, how vulnerable to pressures from outside. "The reminder," Mr. Rasminsky declared, "clearly underlines the urgency of efforts to increase our productivity, to alleviate upward pressure on our costs and prices, and to improve our international competitive position."

A Thoughtful Look Ahead

ALONG WITH OTHER ADMIRable qualities Mr. Hugh Stephen has brought to his civic office, he is known as a mayor who does his home work. He has made this clear, not only in his grasp of the concrete problems of city administration but in his background philosophy derived from study of the principles underlying civic leadership. This contributes some down-to-earth ideas on where this community should be going, how it can get there, and how we can build the best living environment possible for ourselves and our posterity. Obviously there is more to being mayor than merely chairing council meetings.

In his recent address to the Canadian Club here, Mr. Stephen outlined his views on the over-all priorities which should be followed in Victoria in the years ahead. They form a feasible schedule of activities which should be considered by local residents. Included is "a fully adequate system of regional highways leading to and from the downtown area," with proper traffic control and parking facilities and a road system looping around the downtown core.

With this must go "urban renewal and beautification programs in the downtown area" in order to combat the trend of population to the outskirts. Then comes replacement of single-family residential areas with "high-density developments" when a neighborhood has outlived its earlier function. Mr. Stephen adds a recreational program with thought to senior citizens and youth, a heavy emphasis on police and fire protective services, and "a willingness to spend public re-development capital" to supplement efforts to attract private investment.

These are general growth priorities. They do not involve provision of necessary services such as schools, hospitals, sewerage and so on. The latter are necessities which must grow with the community in any case. But the priorities have an objective; their implementation will gradually guide the city in a definite direction and shape its character for the future.

The general pattern appears very acceptable: a community in which it will be pleasant and comfortable to live, which will retain in viable condition its central core, and which will be able and willing to develop to meet new opportunities. Cities do not achieve goals by growing like Topsy. It is good to know that Victoria's future will be considered and planned — and thereby be much more likely to prove successful.

'Ancient Practice of Legal Lockout'

MR. GARDE GARDOM, the Liberal member for Vancouver-Point Grey, has drawn the Legislature's attention to what he apparently considers an anachronism in our present legal processes — the long court summer vacation. Except in exceptional circumstances, this is a two-months' recess which virtually inactivates County, B.C. Supreme and Appeal Courts. Chambers are held in Supreme Court one day a week, and if an emergency arose a court could be summoned back into service. But essentially this is a July-and-August holiday for judges, though not for the regular courthouse staffs.

Mr. Gardom makes the point that the long hiatus may have been acceptable in a more leisurely day when the volume of litigation was considerably below what it is today, but that now the needs of British Columbia call for something better, Periodically the public is informed of applications made by provincial authorities to Ottawa for the appointment of additional judges because the courts are snowed under with cases. Litigants in many instances are unreasonably delayed in settling issues which they take to court.

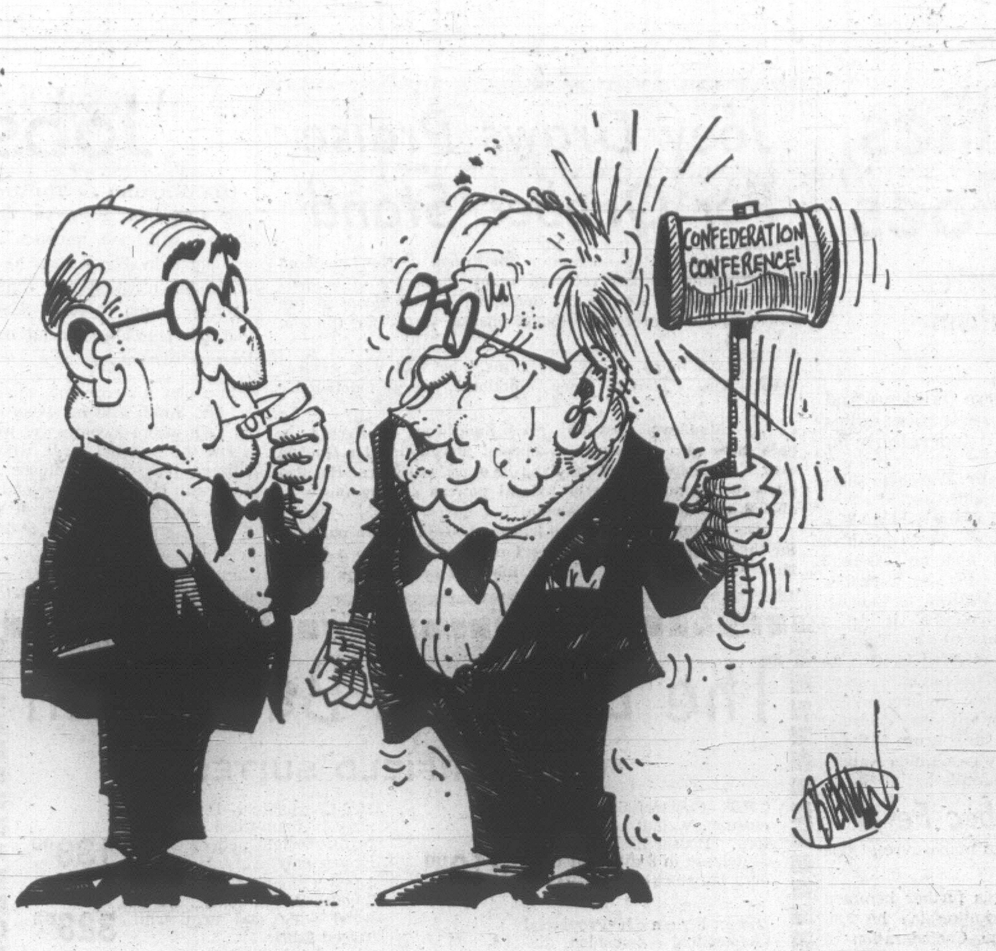
The plea for extra judges is legitimate. As Mr. Gardom points out, our present system leaves the superior courts inactive for more than 16 per cent of the working year. He calls this the "ancient practice of legal lockout". The phrase is apt. The authorities should take note of the protest and see what arrangements can be made to bring legal process into the current century in this particular.



"I know it hurts . . . but it feels so nice when I quit . . ."

Letters

Craigdarroch Condition

Victoria city engineer James Garnett, in a report to city council's public works committee, says there is no substance to my opinion that Greater Victoria School Board is neglecting Craigdarroch Castle.

The Castle, Mr. Garnett says, is in "remarkable condition, considering its age."

Age should have nothing to do with the matter, as long as the building is adequately maintained. What has age to do with St. Paul's, or Westminster Abbey? They are as sound as the day they were built, because they are protected and kept up.

Did not Mr. Garnett see the holes in the stained-glass, and plate glass windows, or note how the windows bulge? Did he not observe the erosion of the stonework, and the shingles missing on the roof? Did he not see the dirty windows, and the dampness in the porch ceiling, or note huge chunks of missing granite?

As many tourists to the Castle last summer pointed out, it's a shame that Victoria lets such a fine, historic building run down, and does not put it to a proper use.—James K. Nesbitt, President, The Castle Society.

Congratulations

The Times ought to be congratulated for a number of feature articles it has presented over the last few months. The latest one, The Americans Are Coming, was a fine example of factual reporting in depth. Such an article makes a newspaper not only readable, but relevant.—Charles A. Haynes, 3313 Whittier.

Conflict

In answer to the "Jehovah's Witnessess" door to door campaign to protest atrocities committed against Witnesses in Malawi, Central Africa.

I do not agree to raping, beating, pilaging of any citizen anywhere in the world. I agree they should be stopped. In order to stop violence, it is often necessary to show force. It may even cause someone to be shot. To the best of my knowledge, Witnesses do not agree to force or people being shot. How then can we expect the Malawi Government to enforce law and justice with what could lead to violence on their part in the name of the "Jehovah's Witnesses". It is much like saying, "You wash the filthy floor, it's too dirty for me to do.—V. Loveys, Humpback Road. R. R. 6.

Balancing the VC Battle Accounts

Alsop

IN any war, when one side hazards a high proportion of long-hoarded, near-fearful losses as the main reward, the result must be accounted a serious defeat. That rather basic rule of warfare needs to be recalled at present, simply because so many normally sensible people appear to have forgotten it. They have forgotten it, in turn, because they have formed the habit of focusing exclusively on American problems in Vietnam, which are very painful indeed, without paying any attention to the enemy's problems, which are much more painful.

Yet the only way to make a balanced assessment of the enormously important recent developments in Vietnam is, rather obviously, to look at both sides of the balance sheet. And enough solid facts are at last in hand to permit a tentative assessment.

Since the damage done in the cities has received all the emphasis to date, it is best to begin the assessment with the other side of the coin. What, then, was the aim of this ambitiously planned attack on South Vietnam's cities and towns? What did it cost? And what did it achieve?

As to its aim, the captured documents and prisoner interrogations leave little room for doubt that a "general uprising" was confidently counted upon, at any rate in a considerable area or areas of South Vietnam. In all cases, the enemy troop units were sent into the towns and cities with no plans whatever to cover the contingency of severe setbacks.

In at least one province, Chau Doc, the units engaged were simply told that they were to celebrate the New Year with the townspeople, who were waiting to welcome them. The need to fight was a rude surprise.

Scant Supplies

In almost all cases, again, the enemy units sent into the towns and cities had only a few days of supplies. And in some cases, they had almost no supplies at all, being promised instead that they would get all they needed from VC sympathizers in the urban populations.

In a considerable measure, of course, morale problems necessitated this deception of the VC troop units. Gen. Vo Nguyen Giap can hardly have hoped for a countrywide "general uprising."

Instead, Giap's aim seems to have been to establish full VC control in one or more large areas—the Delta and parts of I Corps being the most likely candidates. If that had happened, the turmoil in the rest of the country would have fatally hampered any roll-back effort. It was not a foolish aim, but it was not attained.

To attain this aim, meanwhile, a cost was incurred that is still hard to calculate exactly. It was certainly an enormous cost, however. Except in the most northerly provinces, very few North Vietnamese troops were used. The great bulk of the attacking troops were true VC in the old sense—local units composed of southerners, that will lose most of their effectiveness if they are later reconstituted with northern replacements.

Heavy Expenditure

Because of the sharp drop-off in recruiting in the south, manpower of local origin is the VC's most precious single resource. This resource was expended with a lavish hand, as can be seen from the current estimate that enemy losses in dead and prisoners of war will reach 20,000 men.

Worse still were the losses in men of highest quality and strongest motivation. The sapper units, used for blowing bridges, mortaring airfields and the like, have always been a special elite within the VC. The great majority of the sapper units have now been expended to the last man. And again, although dragooned young boys were used as infantry fillers, the spearhead outfits in the ordinary infantry were necessarily composed of the flower of the VC.

To these rather dire sacrifices, one must add two other items to complete the account. The VC used and lost just about all members of the underground network which has always been their principal hidden asset in the towns. And they also surfaced and expended their clandestinely acquired assets in the South Vietnamese army, which proved to be very trifling indeed.

Such then were the aim and the cost. As to what the VC achieved, that is pretty obvious. Pacification has been sharply set back. Great destruction has been wrought in some cities, confidence has been shaken.

Much now depends, therefore, on three things: Whether the South Vietnamese goverment moves successfully to restore services and confidence; whether the remaining urban pockets of VC resistance are quickly liquidated; and whether a second wave of urban attacks is successfully thrown back, if it materializes as some fear.

Reasonable success on these three vital fronts is now predicted. If that is the outcome, the final balance sheet will be most unfavorable to Gen. Giap. But that leaves the question why on earth Gen. Giap ordered this vast and costly general assault on the cities and towns.

Variations on the Pueblo Theme

THE explanation of the "Pueblo" affair, some observers have said, is that the North Koreans are opening a diversionary "Second Front" to help the North Vietnamese win their struggle. No, object others, they are being whipped up into a state of bloody-minded hysteria in readiness for another round of the Korean War while the Americans are tied down elsewhere. To a third group, the incident is as parochial as the word Pueblo itself: the North Koreans are starting a scare in order to rock the growing stability of South Korea. But there does not have to be a choice; for these arguments are not necessarily in conflict with one another.

In October 1966 Premier Kim Il Sung of North Korea said that the war in Vietnam was crucial to the future liberation of the rest of his country, for the defeat of the Americans in Vietnam would mark the end of United States power in Asia generally. There is no doubt that the Communists would like to frighten President Park Chung Hee of South Korea into refusing to send to South Vietnam more than the 48,000 troops he has already despatched.

Escalating Guerrilla War

The ecalation of the guerrilla war in South Korea itself, which saw the number of bloody clashes provoked by intruding Communist troops and terrorists across the demilitarized zone rise from 50 in 1966 to nearly 550 in 1967, helped serve this purpose. And since then a suicide group has infiltrated the South to try to kill off President Park

These ominous developments respond equally well to another aspect of Pyongyang's aggressive policy, however. For in 1966 Kim Il Sung also announced that "to accomplish the cause of national liberation" North Korea must develop "revolutionary forces" in the South and meanwhile build up the political, economic and military power of the North. Both would then fight for the "unification of the whole country" under the Communists.

Again, if the Viet Cong have the arms of the imperialist enemy pinned in a clinch, it needs no master mind in Peking or Moscow to set their ideological allies upon him too. Victory on one front against American imperialism, Kim has taught, will make victory on other fronts all the easier.

Broken Marriage

Russia created North Korea; China protected the infant Marxist State against the "hordes" of the United Nations. Today Korean Communists are the bitter children of their broken marriage. When North Korea showed sympathy for the "anti-revisionism" of China during the early pursed-lip stages of the Sino-Soviet dispute, its relations with Moscow quickly turned sour and Khrushchev cut off Soviet aid. In consequence, the North Korean seven-year development plan is three years behind the times.

Khrushchev went and Kosygin came. In 1965 the new Russian premier visited Pyongyang, a new military agreement was signed and more aid from Moscow negotiated. It was China's turn to be chilly. By 1967 the Maoists were calling Kim Il Sung "Khrushchev's disciple," and they have reacted belatedly to the Pueblo incident with a routine tirade against American imperialism in which they praise the "heroic" North Korean "people" without promising any support for their government.

The Koreans would rather be on profitably intimate terms with both Moscow and Peking. But current passions do not permit such a menage-a-trois. So the only alternative is to be "independent."

Meanwhile, the facts as observed in Pyongyang do not endear the Koreans to Peking. China's sectarian Communist chiefs dogmatically refuse to co-operate with the "revisionist" Russians, and have therefore denied the Vietnamese co-ordinated international Communist support in their life-and-death struggle against the "imperialists". The Chinese supply small arms to the Vietnamese but otherwise confine themselves to shouting on the sidelines. And even as the bombs rain down on Haiphong or Hanoi, Peking continues to urge that the lightly-armed sneaker-shod peasant guerrilla should fight it out alone in the jungle and swamp for 10 more years, or even 20, to show that the millions can beat the machine in accordance with Mao's sacred sermons.

Southern Strength

The North Koreans, however, look across the dreary demilitarized zone on the 38th Parallel and see a South Korean army 600,000 strong, backed by a further 50,000 American toops. Beyond lies a land which may be transformed by Seoul's current ambitious Five Year Plan. Some have suggested that the Koreans hi-jacked the Pueblo in order to shake the economy and morale of South Korea, and in fact the government was obliged to release stockpiled rice in order to stop the price from soaring. The black market value of the U.S. dollar rose from 275 won to 325 won in a matter of days.

Behind this is the implicit recognition that the position of South Korea's President Park is solidifying. The country was overrun by the Communists in the early stages of the Korean war. Its people have not forgotten or forgiven, and earlier this week leaders of a demonstration 100,000 strong burned Kim Il Sung in effigy in the capital.

South Korea is not rotten with self-engendered subversion like South Vietnam, but is itself a formidable military adversary. Mao's Thoughts are not therefore the answer. North Korea is spending more than 30 per cent of its national budget on defence. Its leaders want sophisticated weapons which can come only from the Soviet Union. The Russians had already begun sending Pyongyang missiles and MiG 21s by 1967.

Expanding Struggle

The desire for self-reliance is nevertheless matched by an instinct to "expand the struggle against imperialsim," for to Koreans the Asian revolution—in Korea, in Vietnam, in Laos—is indivisible.

There is no reason why Moscow should not welcome all episodes which further the cause of the proletariat and sadden the face of LBJ — provided nobody is prompted to press any of the bigger buttons. To think otherwise is to forget that while Russia and China may bicker about what the rules are and which of them is to win, they do so for the very reason that they are playing the same game.

Looking Back

From the Times, Feb. 7, 1908

A large and intensely interested gathering of sportsmen was held at the Driard Hotel for the purpose of discussing the question of game protection. So large was the crowd that many were unable to obtain seats.

A resolution was passed asking the government to shorten the season one month, making it commence on Oct. 1 instead of Sept. 1 for all game including pigeons and deer.

Another resolution asked that a gun licence of $2 be imposed on all persons carrying firearms.

NORTH VIETNAM'S GEN. GIAP

The Tiger of Dienbienphu

By DENNIS BLOODWORTH

SINGAPORE—Behind the savage Communist assaults which have hit major cities from one end of South Vietnam to the other like a sudden lethal spread of flying shrapnel, stands a small, neat man known as "The Tiger of Dienbienphu".

He is Gen. Vo Nguyen Giap, North Vietnam's vice premier, defense minister and commander-in-chief.

Reports that he is personally directing the concentration of some 40,000 regular North Vietnamese troops against the American stronghold at Khesanh, tell only half the story.

The 55-year-old master Communist strategist has now taken over the war in the South, where, as a defecting colonel has disclosed, "the Viet Cong is nothing but an extension of the people's army" of North Vietnam.

The Americans predict that the subsidiary strikes against cities will be followed by a main offensive to turn Khesanh into a second Dienbienphu and to overrun completely the two northermost provinces of South Vietnam. There is no doubt that they see Giap's distinctive hand in what Gen. William C. Westmoreland, the U.S. commander, has called a "treacherous and deceptive plan."

For Giap is a known master of the diversion. When the French began establishing their ill-fated citadel at Dienbienphu in 1954, Giap's immediate answer was a bewildering series of powerful, widely scattered attacks against many other targets.

Coup de Grace

Then, having quietly assembled his men and guns on the hills ringing the satisfactorily isolated encampment at Dienbienphu, Giap delivered his coup de grace.

The French were unsafely outnumbered at Dienbienphu as the Marines are at Khesanh. Dismayed by plans for a five-power conference at Geneva that might end the Indo-China war before the Vietminh had won it outright, Giap was determined to seize all the territory he could and strengthen the bargaining position of the "Democratic Republic of Vietnam" by inflicting a decisive defeat on the "imperialist" enemy. With half the world on both sides of the Iron Curtain now eager to stop the slaughter, Giap may have the same misgiving today.

For this stocky, muscular pocket Clausewitz has given his life and his wife to the cause of a unified, Communist Vietnam. Born of poor parents in central Vietnam, Giap battled his way brilliantly through school to graduate finally in law and political economy while working as a history teacher.

But he was a born rebel. At 14, he had already joined an anti-colonial party. At 18, he was jailed for student agitation. At 24, he was a militant Communist leader. And at 31 he was a widower.

In 1939, the French arrested the girl he had married a year before; she subsequently died in a colonial prison.

Giap fled to south China. He never remarried. His comrades called him the "snow-covered volcano," because in the years that followed his hatred of the white enemy was only concealed by his cold mask of dedication.

GENERAL GIAP
. . . master of deception

In China, he joined Ho Chi Minh in the "League for the Independence of Vietnam"—the Communist-dominated national liberation movement, known later as the Vietminh. He also studied guerrilla warfare at Mao Tse-tung's troglodyte headquarters in the caves of Yenan, and was then sent back to North Vietnam to raise a guerrilla army.

This enterprise had modest enough beginnings. Giap disappeared into the hills of Tonking with 34 men, nearly half of them armed only with flintlocks. But by August, 1945, the Vietminh were able to establish a provisional government in Hanoi before French forces returned to take over from the defeated Japanese, and unilaterally proclaimed the independent "Democratic Republic of Vietnam."

A minister of the interior during the tense, confused politico-military melee that followed the coming of the French, Giap moved adroitly and ruthlessly.

He temporarily placated the French so that he could arrest all the non-Communist nationalists in the Vietminh coalition without interference. Using any tool to hand—Japanese instructors, smuggled Chinese Nationalist weapons—he build up forces 60,000-strong to man the Vietminh "revolutionary base" in the Tonkinese uplands.

As these forces grew, his conciliatory smiles were seen less. In December, 1946, the final explosion came. The Vietminh turned on the French in Hanoi and withdrew to the jungle-covered mountains. The eight-year Indo-China war had begun. It ended at Dienbienphu.

In his book "People's War, People's Army," Giap does not acknowledge his debt to Mao any more than Mao acknowledged his debt to the pre-Christian Chinese military genius, Sun Tzu, but from the crossbow to the claymore, across 2,300 years of bloodthirsty human history, the plagiarisms are unmistakable, and the guerrilla tradition remains intact.

Only attack when sure of victory, says Sun Tzu. "Is the enemy strong? Avoid him, Is he weak? Hit Him," paraphrases Giap, who faithfully follows all the other tenets he was taught by the Chinese:

The secret of war is deception; use the feint, the ambush, the diversionary outrage. The enemy may outnumber you 10 to 1 strategically, but if you compel him to disperse his forces widely you may outnumber him 10 to 1 locally wherever you choose to attack him. Concentrate quickly against weak points, disperse quickly in the face of strength.

It was the Chinese who taught Giap, however, that he must progress from guerrilla harassment to the "war of movement" if he wanted to defeat the enemy conclusively, who trained his cadre to fight in regiments and divisions.

Attacks Costly

Giap's first mass attacks against the French in 1951 were disatrous and cost him several thousand men, commentators eagerly note today. But they forget that every great leap forward has its price, and that the lessons then learned paid off handsomely at Dienbienphu.

"There will be new spectacular battles wiping out large American and puppet units and even more sensational exploits," Giap accurately prophesied last September. "The possibility of defeating completely more than one million troops is becoming reality," he added disturbingly.

Anxious father of the "people's army" and very much the realist, Giap nevertheless radiates an intelligent, calculating confidence. Relaxed between wars, he greeted me in Hanoi in 1957 with a quick smile that the healing years had restored. His features, taken separately, were softly moulded in the broad face and almost feminine, the lips shapely, the chin rounded, the eyebrows like black feathers.

Put together, however, they became the self-contained visor of the soldier, the eyes and facial muscles imposing their own discipline. Giap is unbending on duty, a sagacious organizer, buttoned-up man in a buttoned-up uniform who watches where he puts his small feet.

The fruity jargon of Marxism-Leninism rolls smoothly from his lips as he neatly avoids leading questions, for he is also a devoted Communist. His 350,000-strong armed forces are honeycombed with party cells in which each man is responsible for the political good behavior of his comrades, and officers must constantly submit to "self-criticism" sessions with their men.

Strict Discipline

Political commissars abound and the disciplines which ensure that village girls are not molested or chickens purloined for the pot are severely imposed. For the survival of the soldier depends on the support of the masses and the political softening-up of the peasantry with propaganda and politeness is one of the keys to victory.

Giap's entire military mentality has been moulded by the stark fact that his enemies have always had more might, more money and more machines. He fought most of the Indo-China war without a single truck. He needed 50,000 peasant porters prepared to be mown down by machine-guns or burned up with napalm to supply one division of his troops.

He is used to a war in which the front is nowhere and everywhere. His men are skilled at night fighting, at concealment and camouflage, at infiltration to a point where he so saturated the French-dominated Red River Delta after 1950 that it was ruefully dubbed the "Franco-Vietminh condominium."

PENG TEH-HUAI
. . . Giap's teacher

In 1966, he said that American airstrikes were achieving "nothing" and sneered at American veterans for their ignorance of guerrilla warfare: "They walk into traps that wouldn't fool a baby." He is a master of the stealthy war, the tunnelling and burrowing for which the Viet Cong are famed.

Only Distraction

Wars of liberation are not won by terrorist tactics in toughly defended cities, and the violence that has crackled through urban Vietnam this week must be read solely as a device to distract and distribute the imperialist enemy too thinly for his own good.

Giap owes the Chinese much, but his early adviser was not Mao, it was Peng Teh-huai, the disgraced "revisionist" defence minister whose name today in anathema in Peking. This distinction adds to the atavistic distrust that Giap, like most Vietnamese, feels for his overplentiful neighbors.

He is labelled "pro-Russian" by analysts who search for schisms in the Vietnamese politburo, of which he is a senior member, but he needs both parties in the Sino-Soviet dispute, for it is the Chinese who have supplied him with most of his modern small arms. Nevertheless, the more the Russians equip him with MiGs and missiles, the happier he is.

Paradoxically, his very suspicion of the Chinese makes him agree with Mao's thoughts on "People's wars." He is ready for a long, arduous, wasting guerrilla struggle, if necessary fought out by the Vietnamese alone. He would rather face that than seek a quicker solution by inviting the Chinese in.

The Vietnamese have a long and honorable tradition of guerrilla warfare which he nobly upholds. For more than 2,000 years, however, they have practised it principally against one formidable enemy: China.

Demand for 'Pot' and The Pill Tenth-Rate Sort of Escapism

By MALCOLM MUGGERIDGE

These are excerpts from the celebrated rectorial sermon delivered recently by journalist and TV personality Malcolm Muggeridge in St. Giles' Cathedral, Edinburgh. During the sermon, in which the students of Edinburgh University were described as "slobbering debauchees . . . drooling after pot and snivelling for birth control pills," Mr. Muggeridge announced that he was resigning as rector of the university, a post to which he had been elected by the Students' Representative Council.

Let us, in true 20th century style, begin with a negative proposition: the inelectable unviability and absurdity of our present way of life.

How can anyone—apart from an occasional with-it cleric and Hungarian economist—seriously believe that by projecting present trends into the future, we arrive at enduring human felicity?

Producing more and more and consuming more and more year by year under the impetus of the ever more frenzied persuasion of mass communication media, at the same time watching the rest of mankind get hungrier and hungrier in ever greater want; growing ever stronger, with the means at our disposal to blow ourselves and our earth itself to smithereens many times over, at the same time becoming ever more neurotic about the imminence of global nuclear war; moving ever faster and further afield, and pursuing happiness, American style, grinding out our appetitites—to use a Shakespearean phrase — ever more desperately with physical and even moral impunity, and spiritual desolation.

It is a state of affairs at once so bizarre and so tragic that I alternate between laughing hilariously at it and looking forward eagerly to my departure—quite soon now in at most a decade or so (This year, at 65, I move into the NTBR, or Not To Be Resuscitated) — from so crazy a world. Take, for instance, the situation in this ancient university with which through the accident of election I find myself briefly associated.

Spearhead

The students here, as in other universities, are the ultimate beneficiaries under our welfare system. They are supposed to be the spearhead of progress, flattered and paid for by their admiring seniors, an elite who will happily and audaciously carry the torch of progress into a glorious future opening before them.

Speaking for myself, there is practically nothing they could do in a mood of rebelliousness, or refusal to accept the ways and values of our run-down, spiritually impoverished way of life, for which I should not feel some degree of sympathy, or at any rate understanding, up to and including blowing up this massive edifice in which we are now assembled.

Yet how infinitely sad, how — in a macabre sort of way—funny that the form their insubordination takes should be a demand for pot and pills, for the most tenth-rate sort of escapism and self-indulgence.

It's one of those situations a social historian with a sense of humor will find very much to his taste. All is prepared for a marvelous release of youthful creativity. We await the great works of art, the high-spirited venturing into new fields of perception and understanding.

And what do we get?—the resort of any old slobbering debauchee anywhere in the world at any time—dope and bed. The feeling aroused in me, I have to confess, is not so much disapproval as contempt.

Not Drugs, Sex

Whatever life is or is not about, it's not we may be sure, to be expressed in terms of drug stupefaction and casual sex.

However else we may venture into the unknown, it is not, I assure you, on the plastic wings of Playboy magazine or psychedelic fancies.

I've recently been making some films for television on the New Testament, and it involved, along with much else, standing on what purports to be the Hill of Beatitudes, where the most momentous of all sermons was preached 2,000 years ago.

One of the beatitudes that, for some reason, had never before impressed me particularly, this time stuck in my mind: "Blessed are the pure in heart for they shall see God." May I commend it to you as having some bearing on our present controversies and discontents?

To see God is the highest aspiration of man and has preoccupied the rarest human spirits at all times. Seeing God means understanding, seeing into the mystery of things. It is, or should be, the essential quest of universities and their students and staff.

Not by Deeds

Note that the realization of this quest is achieved not through great and good deeds, nor even through thought, however perceptive and enlightened, certainly not through sensations, however generated, or what is called success, however glittering.

The words are clear enough: "Blessed are the pure in heart for they shall see God."

To add to the macabre comedy of our situation, into the ribald scene of confusion and human inadequacy there break idiot voices prophesying a New Jerusalem just round the corner. One always, I find, underestimates the staying power of folly.

When poor H. G. Wells, breathed his last, having produced in a "mind at the end of its tether" a final hysterical repudiation of everything he'd ever said or thought, I fondly supposed that no more would be heard in my time of men-like gods. How wrong I was.

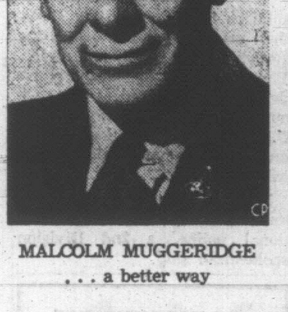
A quarter of a century later, a provost of King's College, Cambridge, was to carry the same notion to an even higher pitch of fantasy. No doubt long after I am gone someone will be saying on the BBC's indestructible "Any Questions" program that a touch more abortion, another year at school and birth pills given away with the free morning milk, and all will be well.

Gadarene Slide

What are we to do about it, this crazy Gadarene slide? I never met a man made happy by money or worldly success or sensual indulgence, still less by the stupefaction of drugs or alcohol. Yet we all, in one way or another, pursue these ends — as the advertiser well knows. He offers them in technicolor and stereo sound, and there are many takers. The politician likewise, often with a nondescript retinue of academic and clerical support, offers the same package in collective terms.

And underneath, we all know how increasingly hollow and unconvincing it is — the Great Society, mankind coming of age, men like gods, all the unspeakable cant of utopianism on the run.

Our very art and literature — such as they are — convey as much: the bad dreams of a materialist society — Bacon and Pinter tapering off into the sheer incoherence of a Burroughs and a Beckett, with the Beatles dancing on our grave and Allen Ginsberg playing his hand harmonium, and that delectable old Hindu con man, the Maharishi, throwing in his blessing.



MALCOLM MUGGERIDGE
. . . a better way

Communist utopianism produced Stalin, the pursuit-of-happiness-American-brand Lyndon Johnson and our special welfare variety Harold Wilson. If that doesn't put paid to all three, nothing ever will.

As for the scientific utopia looming ahead, we've caught a glimpse of that, too, in the broiler for patching up others, the factory farms and lately the transplant operations, with still warm bodies providing the spare parts.

I increasingly see us in our human condition as manacled and in a dark cell. The chains are our mortal hopes and desires; the dark cell our ego, in whose obscurity and tiny dimensions we are confined. Christ tells us how to escape, striking off the chains and putting a window in the dark cell through which we may joyously survey the wide vistas of eternity and the bright radiance of God's universal love.

Opposed View

No view of life, as I am well aware, could be more diametrically opposed to the prevailing one today, especially as purveyed in our mass communication media, dedicated as they are to the counter-proposition that we can live by bread alone and the more the better.

Yet I am more convinced than I am in my own existence that the view of life Christ came into the world to preach, and died to sanctify, remains as true and as valid as ever, and that all who care to—young and old, healthy and infirm, wise and foolish—may live thereby, finding in our troubled, confused world, as in all other circumstances and at all other times, an enlightment and a serenity not otherwise attainable.

Even though—as may well prove the case—our civilization, like others before it, soon finally flickers out, and institutional Christianity with it, the light Christ shed shines as brightly as ever for those who seek an escape from darkness.

The truths he spoke will answer their dilemmas and assuage their fears, bringing hope to the hopeless, zest to the despairing and love to the loveless, precisely as happened 2,000 years ago and through all the intervening centuries.

Driving Ahead And Sacrificing Grace

By ART STOTT

When former world champion Dick Button was commenting, in a winter Olympics preview, on developments in figure-skating, he used old film strip to support one of the points he sought to make.

In recent years, he said, figure skating had become much more acrobatic, much more athletic. The performances of current outstanding stars included routines never attempted in competitions of earlier times. The jumps were higher, the spins more complicated, the tempo usually faster.

Stott

But, he noted in the process some of the grace of figure skating had been lost. The long, sweeping movements were eliminated.

Later in the interview, the audience was introduced to Peggy Flemming, the American girl whom Button thinks will win the women's singles title at the games in Grenoble. Miss Flemming discussed, also with film strip, some of the preparations she had made for the big competition. Among other things, she took ballet, explaining that training in that art helped to add poise to her performance, taught her what to do with her hands and arms and was calculated to make her more graceful on the ice.

The point was of particular interest to me because, although I have no technical knowledge on figure skating, I did, in a remote past, devote about 10 years to finding out what gyrations and twists I could perform from the time I left a three-metre springboard until I hit the water.

Since then my interest in the sport has been academic, but I have never ceased to marvel at the agility of present-day divers who whip up into the air and execute stunts we didn't even think about. They score as well now on three-and-one-half front somersaults as we did on two-and-one-halfs. They mix single and double twists into front, reverse, back and cutaway somersaults in bewildering complexity. I find I have to count aloud the revolutions they go through in order to satisfy myself that the dive that was announced actually has been performed. They are way out from our simpler routines. Their acrobatics and athletic abilities are far above comparison with those of 30 years ago or more.

At the same time, it seems to me that somewhere in the evolutionary process, the top performers have sacrificed a certain grace inherent in the game as we knew it. There isn't time for effective flight lines in the complicated dives they perform—the modern "spaghetti" as the late Ray Daughters used to call it.

The top divers today could, quite easily, revert to the simpler, and perhaps more graceful, dives of an earlier year. They can't afford to, though, because the more difficult the stunt the higher potential mark they can score.

No doubt some divers will eventually take up the Peggy Flemming technique, bringing back the simplified grace of performance along with the acrobatics and athletic techniques.

★ ★ ★

In a hazy sort of way, it seems to me that what figure-skaters and divers have been doing in recent years is a fairly comparable procedure to the techniques of modern living. We're performing feats of a complexity undreamed of a generation or so ago. The accent is on the execution of the difficult and there seems to be less reason or opportunity for gracefulness.

The impulse today is to get in there and do the job. It's hard enough under any circumstances, so forget about the fancy-dan stuff and don't worry too much about elegance. This isn't a minuet. It's a professional football game. Drive through and make yards. Start thinking about courtliness, if you have to, a long time after you've gained your ground. Or figure it this way: we aren't engaged in a classical duel. Sword play and footwork, along with the flourishes, looks good in romantic fiction, but right now we can be more efficient with bazookas, heavy artillery, bombs and napalm.

This is a pragmatic age, paying off on results, whether it be in the dynamics of crowd manipulation, getting ahead in business or in international conflict.

And yet, if you'll permit a comparison between trends in some sports arts and everyday living, perhaps we're due for a little more consideration of the graceful to balance the effective.

There is still human enjoyment in the spectacle of a bird in flight—a swallow swooping to the lake surface, a gull riding the gale, poised motionless before its veering wheel to glide downwind. There is an appealing elegance in the delicate growth of blossoms, in the tender grace of new foliage, in the graceful motion of water creatures in their element and the fluid movement of animals in motion. There can be grace, also, in human relations.

Maybe we should pay a little more attention to grace in its various forms. It might help us to live longer—or at least make what living we have to do a little more enjoyable for ourselves and those around us.

ment programs without requiring Ottawa approval.

The board would spend all federal development money earmarked for the Atlantic area.

"It would speak as an advocate of the Atlantic provinces, rather than as an arm or agency—and sometimes an apologist—for the federal government."

SUGGESTED STUDY

Mr. Robichaud proposed joint federal-provincial study of Quebec's proposal for a special program of transfer payments to the poorer provinces, supplementing the existing equalization formula.

Premier Smallwood of Newfoundland said "another Canada," a poorer one, exists east of the Ottawa River. He pleaded for larger equalization grants.

The rich provinces like Ontario were that way because of the existence of the other "customer provinces." They should have no complaint if some of their taxes were sent to help these less fortunate provinces.

There would be no purpose in Confederation unless equalization worked to remove this lopsided economic situation. The alternative was for the rich to become richer and the poor poorer.

DROP IN BUCKET

He said the $1,000,000,000 development program "ain't hay," but, at the same time, if it were divided among five provinces over five or 10 years it would be nothing but a drop in the bucket.

"Our sights are too low—much too low—unless we say $1,000,000,000 a year for the next 10 years. Why not?"

Mr. Smallwood said Canada can never realize its full greatness as long as there are have and have-not provinces with the gap between them widening.

The five provinces east of the Ottawa river, the have-nots, weren't saying to the others "support me, now you brute, make me happy." But the federal government must do more than in the past—when its efforts were "too little, too late and unco-ordinated and not integrated."

TAX-FREE BONDS

He asked why Canada couldn't take a lesson from the United States and permit sale in have-not provinces of tax-free bonds to be used for economic development.

Finance Minister Sharp interjected that the U.S. has been a lot less enthusiastic about this device lately than in the past.

Premier Bennett of British Columbia said tax-free bonds were introduced in the U.S. at a time when income tax rates were low. The Canadian people today wouldn't stand for a system that allowed the rich to invest in such bonds and escape income tax.

Mr. Bennett took issue with Mr. Smallwood's appeal for higher equalization payments to poor provinces. It would be much better to pay extra money directly to the workers and thus raise regional living standards.

Low wages in Quebec and the Atlantic provinces caused unfair competition with B.C., where wage rates were the highest in Canada. Efforts should be made to eliminate low-wage regions.

Premier Bennett attacked the whole concept of equalization payments.

He said they are basically wrong because they go into government hands, not into the hands of workers. Ottawa should convene a meeting with provincial labor ministers to set minimum wages, encourage modernization of industry and set goals for higher productivity.

ATTACKS DUPLICATION

He made a free-wheeling attack on duplication of government services in the Atlantic provinces, hinting that equalization payments should be withheld unless government structures are merged into a single province.

Separatism is bound to collapse, he said, because it is "based on wrong thinking." If Quebecers left Canada, where would they go?

"You couldn't chase them out of this nation," he said.

There was no more danger of Canada breaking up than of Mr. Pearson's minority government being defeated.

Secret Talks Continue On Release of Pueblo

SEOUL AP) — The United States and North Korea held their fourth secret meeting at Panmunjom today on the seizure of the Pueblo, South Korean sources reported. U.S. troops halted 400 South Korean students trying to march on Panmunjom to protest the negotiations.

The South Korean sources said the secret meeting preceded an open session and said the United States handed over an apology to the North Koreans. A U.S. military spokesman denied this. But he did not deny a secret meeting was held.

About five miles south of Panmunjom, U.S. Army troops clashed with demonstrating South Korean college students who tried to march across Freedom Bridge.

South Korean police said the soldiers fired 20 warning shots, then used rifle butts to halt the students in a two-hour melee. They reported at least 24 students were injured, nine seriously. A statement from the 2nd U.S. Infantry Division, whose unit was involved, said no one was injured.

Most of the students were rounded up by South Korean national police, a 2nd Division spokesman said.

U.S. WARSHIP SPLIT STEM TO STERN

RHODES, Greece (AP) — The U.S. destroyer Bache stuck fast on the rocks off Rhodes today, and the U.S. navy said she was badly holed and apparently "split from stem to stern."

The 2,500-ton 6th Fleet warship dragged anchor and went aground Tuesday, driven by hurricane - force winds and high seas. The weather subsided today, and a flotilla assembled to help the Bache.

LEGISLATION PASSED IN CLOSE HOUSE VOTE

Tax Hikes Under Heavy Fire

OTTAWA (CP) — Opposition MPs appealed for higher tax exemptions for the ordinary Canadian Tuesday night as the Commons debated legislation to implement income tax increases announced in the government's Nov. 30 mini-budget.

The measure finally was given second reading—approval in principle—by an 84 to 73 vote. Only the Liberals supported the bill.

They were opposed by 50 Conservatives, 14 New Democrats, four Creditistes, four Social Crediters and Independent Gilles Gregoire (Lapointe).

Standings in the 265-seat House: Liberals 130; PC 95; NDP 22; Creditiste 8; Social Credit 4; Independent 3; vacant 3.

The government announced a five-per-cent income tax surcharge in the mini-budget. It has been in effect since Jan. 1.

CRITICIZES LIMIT

Arnold Peters (NDP—Timiskaming) criticized the $600 limit on the surcharge. The average taxpayer, he said, should not have to carry the brunt of Mr. Sharp's fight against inflation.

Mr. Peters said more realistic basic tax exemptions would be $4,000 for a married man and $2,000 for a single man, instead of the present $2,000 and $1,000 limits.

Earlier, the Commons gave third reading to two bills increasing excise taxes on liquor, beer, wine and tobacco. They also had been announced in the mini-budget.

Amendments to sales tax regulations for farm wagons were bogged down as Prairie MPs pressed for a definition of a farm wagon that would include truck boxes for hauling grain and livestock.

Mr. Sharp promised a review of the definition.

Robert McCleave (PC—Halifax), pressed the argument for higher income tax exemptions claiming that most Canadians spend all their income on food, clothing, shelter and health care. Inflation for them meant less food or poorer houses.

Conservative House Leader Michael Starr said the finance minister should have encouraged consumer demand and industrial production. Instead, he had increased the money supply, reduced industrial production, raised imports and hobbled exports.

Mrs. Grace MacInnis (NDP—Vancouver-Kingsway) urged the government to give tax concessions to single parents and working mothers.

Bud Germa (NDP—Sudbury) called the bill the most dastardly piece of legislation he had seen in his six months in the Commons.

Edward Nasserden (PC—Rosthern) accused the government of losing world markets for grain sales. That is why the finance minister "must come to Parliament, hat in hand, for more money."

Lloyd R. Crouse (PC—Queens-Lunenburg) said the government had "deliberately ignored the storm warnings" of inflation and had continued to increase expenditures.

CARELESS DRIVERS

Fined in central court Tuesday for careless driving were:

Geraldine Joyce, 230 Gorge Road, struck parking meter and car parked on Johnson St. Jan 1, $50; Henry Minness, 907 Dunsmuir, accident on Douglas near Kings Dec. 26, $40; Peter Wakeman, 1242 Faithful, clocked at 52 mph on Douglas St. Jan. 6, $40; Gysbertha Immink, 1591 Cedarglen, car spun out of control on frosty Oak Bay Ave. near Bank St. Dec. 15, $35.

Toss Out Gas Plan FPC Told

WASHINGTON (CP) — A plan that would exclude further Western Canada natural gas imports from California should be thrown out, examiner Charles Wenner of the Federal Power Commission was told Tuesday.

Wenner praised the plan as a "significant contribution" to long-range planning but said he will reserve judgment on just how much weight to attach to it in the cases before him.

He is preparing a recommendation on two applications—one from El Paso Natural Gas Co. of Texas to pipe more American gas into California and one from the Pacific Gas Transmission Co. to import more Alberta gas for California.

At Wenner's instructions to examine reasonable alternatives in the public interest, the staff of the power commission has proposed that El Paso or some other pipeline company should build a 42-inch line from Texas to California to meet all that state's needs.

The staff would deny the Pacific Gas application to import daily 200,000,000 cubic feet more from Alberta—but only in the event that El Paso in another case is denied its application to bring in the same amount from the Westcoast Transmission Co. Ltd. of Vancouver.

The Pacific Gas deal for Alberta Gas is several cents per thousand cubic feet cheaper than the El Paso-Westcoast deal, which has locked the U.S. commission and the National Energy Board of Canada into an impasse over the price of the Canadian supplies.

At hearings resumed Tuesday before Wenner, the Transmission Pipeline Co.—another California supplier—intervened to move that the staff plan be thrown out.

Wenner agreed there are problems with it. He said a legal difficulty is that the staff is proposing a project altogether new to the El Paso application.

There are limits too on how much the commission can alter applications before it, he said.

Income Tax Tips

By P. J. KELLY

Q. My wife and I were married in September. She was working before marriage but has not worked since. Can I claim the full married exemption of $1,000 for her? What does she do about filing a return?

A. Yes, if she received no income after your marriage you may claim the full married exemption of $1,000. It is only income she received after your marriage that affects your exemptions. If your wife is taxable or had tax deducted from her salary, she must file her own return. Her exemptions are not affected by her marriage.

Q. I have received most of the information slips for my income tax return but I am still waiting for one of them. Should I file my return without this slip?

A. No. Please wait until you have all your T4 slips and medical receipts before filing your return. A missing information slip may cause delays in processing as such returns will be sent to our district offices for additional information. If you have not received your T4 slips by early in March, you should ask your employer for them.

BUSINESS VIEWS

Direct Dialing Catch-Up Soon

By AB KENT
Business Editor

Technological advances often seem to run out of steam before reaching far-flung Victoria—like direct long distance telephone dialing.

It is well over 15 years since the urban centres of North America began to benefit by the introduction of this communications revolution.

Kent

In less than 80 years North America progressed from nearly a total absence of person-to-person long distance communication, through the cumbersome, inefficient, costly and time-wasting use of primitive equipment, to the fact of dialing a number instantly from one household or office to another, be it one city or a whole continent away.

And although Nanaimo, Vancouver and Kamloops are ahead of Victoria in direct long distance dialing, the capital city of B.C. is about to catch up, in the next four months.

All things come to those who wait, said the poet, and by being among the last of North American cities to get direct long distance dialing Victoria will come up in June with the most sophisticated electronic equipment.

For instance, most of the original EVergreen numbers will be plugged into a device called automatic number identification.

This means the 6,000 subscribers on that system will be able to dial the desired number in another city without the necessity of an operator intervening to make a record of the toll. The ANI notes the number from which the call is being made and lodges the toll charge with the appropriate phone bill.

Victoria manager Eric Mallett, of B.C. Telephone Co. Ltd., said this would be the first installation of its kind in the system.

It will not, however, apply to the south-eastern part of Victoria and to Oak Bay subscribers who will be served by the end of this year via a new exchange being built on Foul Bay Road.

The reason for this exclusion is that ANI equipment for satellite exchanges has not yet been invented, Mr. Mallett said.

★ ★ ★

To set the public up for direct dialing, BCT will start an education program within a few days.

A course of instruction will be offered to heavy toll users — business and commercial accounts — on the procedure to be followed.

A demonstration dial will be set up in key locations — department stores, perhaps the Victoria exhibition — to let people "play with it and get used to it before we cut it in June 1," the manager said.

Meanwhile, he suggests people start adding their full telephone number, including area code 604, to all correspondence to make it more convenient for out-of-province contacts to reach local numbers.

Victoria subscribers apart from the 6,000 whose phones will have ANI will still be able to dial directly to distant numbers, but they will have to give the number from which they are dialing to an operator.

Mr. Mallett said everyone begins the procedure using the same routine, which is to dial an access code number, 112. For calls to other parts of B.C., a subscriber with ANI then simply dials the desired number.

Those without ANI will immediately hear a double-blip tone and an operator will interrupt to ask for the originating number for billing purposes. After that, the caller dials the number he wants.

For out-of-province calls the area code must be included following the access code number and before the local number — making a total of 13 digits.

Full details of direct distance dialing are included on pages 5-8 of the current Victoria telephone directory.

Recent acquisition of Selkirk Holdings Ltd. common stock brings Southam Press Ltd. into the category of a principal shareholder of Selkirk and its widespread broadcasting interests.

Reporting on 1967 operations, Southam disclosed that 22,650 non-voting A shares of Selkirk had been added to previous holdings, including 41,260 A shares received in exchange for Southam's 20 per cent interest in Calgary Television Ltd. in December.

Since Southam already had 25 per cent of the A shares outstanding (Dec. 31, 1966) the additions bring the total to between 33 and 34 per cent.

Southam also holds 30 per cent of the 2,000 authorized and outstanding class B voting shares of Selkirk.

Selkirk's Holdings include interests in Island Broadcasting Co. and British Columbia Television Ltd., both with Victoria outlets, and other stations in the Interior, Alberta, Manitoba and Ontario.

Southam last year increased its revenue, net income and per-share earnings over 1966, while operating expenses rose substantially. Results during the fourth quarter were off.

Net income for the year was $6.455 million or $2.15 per share ($6.32 million and $2.11 per share); revenue was $73.79 million ($67.56 million); operation costs $62.17 million ($55.98 million).

In the final quarter the net income was $1.756 million or 58 cents per share against $2.065 million or 69 cents per share.

During the last quarter, Southam acquired a half interest in Greater Winnipeg Cablevision Ltd.

HIROSHIMA, Japan (CP)—The J. V. Clyne, a 27,700-ton vessel built by Mitsubishi Heavy Industries Ltd. to carry dry bulk commodities for Canadian Pacific Bermuda Ltd., has been launched. It will go in service in April between British Columbia and the United Kingdom.

Gas Price Study Committee Named

MLA's who will sit on a special, all-party legislative committee studying the report of a royal commission inquiry into gasoline prices in B.C. were named in the legislature Tuesday night.

The list tabled by Attorney-General Robert Bonner contains only three changes in the make-up of the committee, which first sat a year ago.

The nine Social Credit members are:

Herb Capozzi, Vancouver Centre; Willis Jefcoat, Shuswap; Dr. Howard McDiarmid, Alberni; Cyril Shelford, Omineca; Dean Smith, North Peace River; John Tisdale, Saanich and the Islands; Hunter Vogel, Langley; Robert Wenman, Delta; and Pat Jordan, minister without portfolio, North Okanagan.

Mr. Tisdale and Dr. McDiarmid replace Jim Chabot, Columbia River, and Tom Bate, Vancouver South. Mr. Bate died last year.

New Democratic Party members, all of whom served on the committee last year, are:

Dave Barrett, Coquitlam; Gordon Dowding, Burnaby Edmonds; Alex Macdonald, Vancouver East; and NDP leader Robert Strachan, Cowichan Malahat.

Alan Williams (L—West Vancouver-Howe Sound) replaces Alan Macfarlane (L—Oak Bay) on the committee.

COMPUTER AT UVIC LARGEST IN B.C.

It's big, fast and versatile.

It keeps records of all students, counts neutrons, handles book-keeping, works on language translation projects, and lends a hand in psychology studies on brain-damaged children.

The University of Victoria's giant IBM 360 model 44 computer is the largest in British Columbia. It is the heart of the computer centre in the basement of the Campus Services Building.

The new machine can read 1,000 punched cards a minute, print answers to problems at the rate of 1,100 lines a minute, many times faster than the old computer retired last year.

The arrival of the model 44 is a sign of the times. The initial staff of three has expanded to 20 in the computer centre and director Peter Darling anticipates use by students and researchers will grow rapidly.

Some high schools are teaching basic programming techniques and at Shawnigan Lake School, students have recently had experimental programs processed, said Mr. Darling.

Students who learn the basics of programming could find the computer centre invaluable in senior research projects, he added.

At the moment the model 44 spends about a third of its time in processing student programs. The rest of the time it works at problem-solving in research projects and systems analysis for the university's administration.

The physics departments uses it for intricate neutron counts while the lingusitics department uses electronic analysis in language translation problems.

Jobless Total 6.1% of Force

OTTAWA (CP) — Unemployment in Canada rose to 464,000 in mid-January from 353,000 in mid-December, official figures showed today.

Unemployment in January, 1967, was 381,000.

The number of men and women out of work represented 6.1 per cent of the labor force, highest percentage since March, 1964, and up from 4.6 per cent in December.

Unadjusted rates of unemployment, however, were higher across the board than in December and in January, 1967.

The Atlantic provinces rate was 10.9 per cent, highest since February, 1966. In Quebec it was 7.8 per cent, Ontario 4.3 per cent, the Prairie provinces 4.2 per cent and British Columbia 7.8 per cent.

After adjustment for seasonal factors, the rate was 4.4 per cent, down from 4.7 per cent in December.

A report issued jointly by the manpower department and the Dominion Bureau of Statistics said total employment dropped 244,000 from December.

But the labor force shrank by 133,000 as seasonal workers withdrew, resulting in the 111,000 increase in the unemployment count.

The job picture in brief (estimates in thousands):

	Jan. 1968	Dec. 1967	Jan. 1967
Labor force	7,564	7,697	7,364
Employed	7,100	7,344	6,983
Unemployed	464	353	381

SURVEY 35,000 HOMES

The estimates are based on a survey of 35,000 households during the week ended Jan. 13. They do not include students and housewives who have not sought outside work, persons too old or unable to work, and the voluntarily idle or retired.

The decline in jobs was widely dispersed. Employment was off 82,000 from December in trade, 54,000 in manufacturing, 51,000 in construction and 28,000 in agriculture.

Compared with a year earlier, there were more workers in the service industries but 53,000 fewer in manufacturing and 36,000 fewer in construction.

Regionally, British Columbia continued to show strong employment gains and only Quebec had fewer persons at work than a year earlier.

U.S. Rate Lowest In 14 Years

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The U.S. unemployment rate dropped to its lowest level in more than 14 years last month, the government reported today. It was 3.5 per cent of the labor force.

The labor department said the development was not the result of any major change in the economy.

The January rate was the lowest rate since November, 1953, when it also registered 3.5 per cent. January was the third consecutive month in which the unemployment rate showed a significant drop.

At the same time the total number of persons employed hit 73.3 million in January, an increase of 1.1 million jobs over January, 1967.

Arthur M. Ross, commissioner of the labor department's bureau of labor statistics, said the January drop in unemployment was primarily the result of a change in the job picture for adult women.

Ross said practically the entire change from a 3.7 per cent jobless rate in December to the January rate of 3.5 per cent was a result of shifts in this category.

The number of persons seeking work and unable to find it totalled 3.1 million in January, down 100,000 from January, 1967. Of the total unemployed, 1.3 million were adult men, 1.1 adult women and 650,000 were teen-agers.

Ross said that although "the trend is still upward" in employment, the change in the January unemployment picture was the result of the shift in the employment patterns for adult women rather than the result of any major factors in the economy.

Library Budget Study Starts

Municipal and library authorities will get down to cases next Tuesday on the 1968 budget for the Greater Victoria Public Library.

Library head Jack Lort informed the Intermunicipal Committee Tuesday that this year's budget would be based on a $3.75 per capita basis.

One municipality, Central Saanich, has already agreed to go along with the 25 cents per capita increase and Oak Bay is also in general agreement with the increase although council has not yet formally ratified the decision.

Other municipalities said they preferred to remain silent until full discussion on the budget is aired next week.

In his letter to the committee Mr. Lort warned that if the municipalities stayed with the $3.50 per capita figure now in use book purchases this year would fall below the 1962 purchase program.

MOSCOW (AP) — Fifty-four Soviet intellectuals have signed petitions calling for a supreme court review of the January trial and conviction of four young Russian literary figures on charges of anti-Soviet activity.

Ford Executive Shuffle Stirs Business World

KNUDSEN

DETROIT (AP) — Semon E. Knudsen, named president of Ford Motor Co. after resigning a top position with General Motors Corp., will take over many of Henry Ford II's duties with the second large stmanufacturing firm in the U.S.

Ford announced Tuesday that Knudsen, 55, had been chosen as president. He said Knudsen will be the chief operating officer and take on Ford's duties as chief executive in his absence. Ford, whose grandfather founded the automotive company, remains as chairman of the board.

In Washington business circles, there were rumors that Ford might be in line for a high government post, possibly at cabinet level. But the White House said it knew nothing of such a move, and Ford told a press conference he had no plans to take a government post "at the present time."

Only a week ago, Knudsen was an executive vice-president at General Motors, the No. 1 U.S. automaker and Ford's chief competitor. But Knudsen resigned after he was passed over for the presidency of GM in favor of Edward N. Cole, who in turn replaced James Roche, now board chairman.

Knudsen, son of a former GM president, had worked for GM nearly 30 years. He guided the Pontiac division into third place in the industry behind Chevrolet and Ford.

Later, as manager of the Chevrolet division, Knudsen presided over sales that soared to an all-time record 7,000,000 cars in one year.

After Tuesday's announcement, Ford stock went up half point while GM fell 1⅛ on the New York Stock Exchange.

Automakers will be watching to see if Knudsen's reign at Ford will result in gains for his new employer. The favorite Knudsen formula is the injection of what he calls "massive doses of engineering."

The executive shuffle—which found former Ford president Arjay Miller named to a newly created post of vice-chairman—constitutes a fourth regime in Ford's postwar management.

Recently, Ford accepted an appointment from President Johnson to head a special businessmen's program seeking jobs in the next three years for 700,000 hard-core unemployed.

The Ford family still holds 40 per cent of the company's stock.

VANCOUVER—Mt. Pleasant Legion downed UBC Thunderettes 58-45 Tuesday to take a best-of-three semifinal series in two straight from second-place finishers in the Inter-City Senior Womens' Basketball League.

Mt. Pleasant, third after league play ended last week, now advances to the best-of-five finals against first-place Victoria Rawlings. Legion won the first game Sunday 55-40.

Finals start Saturday at Central Junior High School at 8 p.m., with the second game Sunday at Central at 3 p.m.

Nats' Display Helps Cool Off Irate McLeod

GRENOBLE, France (CP)—Canadian coach Jackie McLeod got his dander up, but that was before his national team made quick work of West Germany, 6-1, in the opening round of the Olympic hockey tournament Tuesday night.

A mixup over documentation procedure for the Canadian players had McLeod boiling just before the game started. The players were asked to produce documents to verify their identities as they were preparing to take the ice.

The Canadians, held scoreless in the first period by West German goalie Josef Schramm, scored four goals in the second period. Roger Bourbonnais wound up the scoring with a pair of goals in the third period.

Others registering opening-game victories in the eight-country round-robin championship play were the 1964 Olympic champion Russians, 8-0 over Finland, and Czechoslovakia, 5-1 over the United States.

CZECHS SHOW CLASS

The U.S. held the Czechs 1-1 in the first period. But then Vaclav Nedomansky and company started to skate, scoring two goals in each of the final two periods.

The Canadians missed repeated opportunities early in the game before the line of Fran Huck, Ray Cadieux and Morris Mott each scored once.

Huck, a third-year veteran of the Nationals, also picked up a pair of assists and Mott had one assist. Gary Dineen also scored for the Nationals. Ernst Koepf got the West German goal while defenceman Barry MacKenzie was serving a tripping penalty.

After Cadieux, Dineen, Huck and Mott scored within an 11-minute span in the second period, it wasn't until 11:30 of the third period that the Canadians were able to crack Schramm again. Bourbonnais beat him cleanly and then with just five seconds left the 25-year-old law graduate added his second goal.

The Canadians outshot the West Germans 37-25.

DISPUTES POLICY

McLeod, who next has to contend with the Finns Thursday, bitterly complained about the documentation squabble.

"We weren't told until after the meeting was over that we had to present passports for all players at a coaches' gathering Monday," McLeod said. "The International Ice Hockey Federation wanted to check player identification, but nobody told me until too late.

"When they did get around to telling me they said the Canadians were running the risk of not being allowed to compete by not having them in on time."

However, an IIHF official turned up at rinkside and hurriedly checked the Canadians' papers and approved the lineup.

McLeod wasn't the only coach in a huff. Two Canadian-born coaches, Ed Reigle, formerly of Winnipeg, and Tom Williamson had some pet peeves of their own.

Reigle jumped on one of his West German players for rapping a Canadian player with his stick. Forward Heinz Weisenbach was fined the equivalent of $50 for smashing his stick on the player. Weisenbach didn't get a penalty, however.

Williamson coaches the Americans and he was plainly disturbed at their sloppy performance.

Now a naturalized American, Williamson is among those who feel the Russians are good enough to play in the National Hockey League.

Banff Bidding Again

BANFF, Alta. (CP) — This Rocky Mountain resort centre has sent a letter to the Canadian Olympic Association saying it wants to make a bid for the 1976 Winter Olympic Games.

Ed Davis, president of groups which have made three unsuccessful bids for Winter Olympics, said Tuesday members of the group which tried for the 1972 winter games now are regrouping.

The Garibaldi, B.C. area is expected to be a competitor for COA endorsement for a bid for the games.

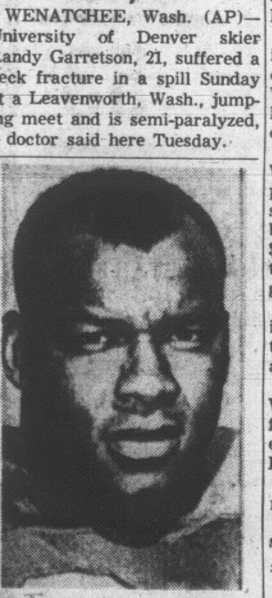
Davis said promoters of Banff's last bid underestimated the power of the conservationists' lobby when the townsite sought the 1972 games, which were awarded to Sapporo, Japan.

"We know now what an important consideration this is and we have to have an understanding, a meeting of the minds of the federal and provincial governments, the conservationists and the committee."

He said Banff is represented at the Olympics now under way at Grenoble, France, by John Prendergast of Calgary.

Skier Paralyzed

WENATCHEE, Wash. (AP)—University of Denver skier Randy Garretson, 21, suffered a neck fracture in a spill Sunday at a Leavenworth, Wash., jumping meet and is semi-paralyzed, a doctor said here Tuesday.



RETIRING from football is Cookie Gilchrist. A 14-year veteran of professional football, including stretches with Hamilton, Saskatchewan and Toronto, the 250-pound fullback will be retained by Denver Broncos as a "scout and special consultant."

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Western Hockey League action Tuesday night resulted in one overtime game at Phoenix and came close to another at Vancouver.

Phoenix and San Diego wound up tied 2-2 after trading goals in the first two periods and remaining scoreless until the end.

At Vancouver, it was a scoreless first period and a trading of goals in the second until Seattle broke the spell in the third and got the edge for a 2-1 victory.

The night's games did not change the league standings. Portland remained leading the pack with 55 points, Seattle second with 51, San Diego third at 44, Phoenix fourth with 42 and Vancouver last with 40.

Chuck Holmes opened the scoring for Seattle at Vancouver in the second period and was answered 10 minutes later by Vancouver's Gord Vejprava. Bill Dineen got the winner early in the third period.

LED TWICE

Phoenix took the initiative on its home ice in the first and second periods, but San Diego managed to reply each time to produce the tie.

It was the second straight overtime session for the two teams, Phoenix winning 4-3 Sunday at San Diego.

Del Topoll got the first-period marker for Phoenix and Gordie Redahl the second-frame goal. Gordon Sinclair replied twice for San Diego.

Portland is at Seattle and Hershey of the American League at San Diego in tonight's play.

Four Playing Off For Curling Title

PRINCE RUPERT (CP)—An upset victory Tuesday night sent the provincial playoffs for the British Columbia women's curling championship into a four-way tie for first place.

Ethel Graham of Cloverdale, B.C., could have taken the championship, but was edged 6-4 by Shirley Healey of Dawson Creek, B.C., in fifth-round play.

The Healey victory forced two more draws today.

Myrtle Fashoway of Cranbrook, B.C., eliminated Helen Stuart of Whitehorse, Y.T., from the playoffs with a 10-3 victory.

Pat Cumming of Prince George squeaked into today's final draws by edging Pauline Chilibeck of Salmon Arm, B.C., 8-7. A Chilibeck victory would have eliminated Cumming, but would not have given the Salmon Arm foursome a chance to win the championship.

Today's deciding draws pit Cumming against Graham and Fashoway against Healey. The winners meet for the championship.

All have 3-2 won-loss records. Stuart was 2-3 and Chilibeck 1-4.

In fourth round play earlier Tuesday, Graham trounced Fashoway 12-6, Stuart beat Cumming 13-6 and Healey defeated Chilibeck 13-6.

Graham defeated Stuart 13-5, Cumming downed Healey 9-7 and Fashoway beat Chilibeck 10-7 in the third draw.

Sawchuk Out Of Hospital

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Injured Los Angeles Kings goalie Terry Sawchuk was released from hospital Tuesday and is expected to be able to play next Monday.

Sawchuk was struck above the right eye by a puck in Saturday's National Hockey League game at Chicago.

The Kings recalled Jacques Caron from Springfield of the American League as a replacement until Sawchuk returns.

Gold 'Confiscated' By Customs Officer

Italian Snaps Scandinavians' Domination

GRENOBLE, France (CP) — Italy today ended Scandinavia's long Olympic domination of Nordic skiing when Franco Nones, a 27-year-old customs officer, did exactly as he said he would and won the first gold medal of the 10th Winter Games in the men's 30-kilometer race.

It was the only gold medal at stake on the day's program, but competition also began in figure skating with world champion Peggy Fleming of the United States holding a commanding lead after the first two compulsory school figures.

The bob-sledders see action tonight with the first two heats scheduled in the two-man race, and the hockey tournament had a couple of championship games on tap, but the Canadian national team drew a bye in the schedule.

Canada's entries in the 30-kilometer—18.6 mile—cross-country race at Autrans were never in the race. Only Rolf Pettersen of Prince George, B.C., finished. He was 50th among the 51 that made it across the overland course.

MAGNUSSEN IS 9TH

Karen Magnussen of North Vancouver was ninth in the field of 32 figure skaters. Lyndsai Cowan of West Vancouver, suffering from a painful injury, was 19th and Linda Carbonetto of Toronto was 21st.

Miss Cowan pulled tendons in her right leg while practising free skating Tuesday.

"The pain is intense—I can hardly lace my shoe," the 19-year-old blonde said after completing her second school figure.

"The doctor said I shouldn't be out here at all, but I've worked too hard for this chance to blow it now."

The men Alpine skiers had their final practice session at Chamrousse for the downhill race Thursday, and Gerry Rinaldi of Kimberley, B.C., found the course near-perfect.

"I couldn't believe how good the course was," he said after his workout.

Of utmost significance for the success of the Games was an agreement reached Tuesday by the International Olympic Committee and the International Ski Federation to curb commercialism.

BANS DISPLAY

The IOC, which had sought to have manufacturers' names and trademarks removed from skis used at the Olympics ruled that the symbols could remain but that the skiers could not display them to photographers and television cameras. The athletes will be required to lay aside their skis before being photographed after their events, on penalty of disqualification.

The agreement kept the ski federation within the Olympic structure. Failure to agree could have resulted in the skiers declaring their events world championships and conducting them under their own rules, which do not currently ban the display of trademarks.

Canada's Nancy Greene, her left ankle mended after a January accident, will compete in the women's downhill runs Thursday. Seventh in the downhill in the Games, the 24-year-old Rossland, B.C., skier wants an Olympic medal as a follow-up to her 1967 World Cup triumph.

EISENHOWER CLICKS FOR ACE, EAGLE

PALM SPRINGS, Calif. (UPI) — Former U.S. President Dwight D. Eisenhower scored a hole-in-one Tuesday on the par-three, 13th hole at the Seven Lake Country Club.

The general also narrowly missed another ace on the 18th hole when the ball hit the flag. Earlier, on the par-four, 8th hole, Eisenhower sank the ball in two strokes for an eagle.

The hole-in-one, the first ever shot by the general, occurred while he was playing in a foursome with Lee Battson, George Allen and Freeman Gosden, a former co-star in the "Amos 'n Andy" radio series.

Spencer Faces Another Bout

RIVERSIDE, Calif. (AP) — A jury deliberates today a drunken driving charge against Thad Spencer, the heavyweight boxer who lost to Jerry Quarry last Saturday in the World Boxing Association title eliminations.

Spencer, of San Francisco, denied in Municipal Court Tuesday that he was under the influence of alcohol when highway patrolmen arrested him.

Spencer spent four hours in Riverside County Jail last Dec. 8 after patrolmen said they clocked him at 95 miles an hour on the Riverside Freeway.

PRODDING NEEDED

Catching Salmon, Hard Work Now, Getting Tougher

By DON VIPOND

Every salmon caught by a sports fisherman puts about $100 into B.C.'s economy, a Brentwood guide and expert angler said Tuesday.

But while the number of fishermen goes up, the number of salmon goes down and the fisheries agencies go nowhere, said Jim Gilbert at a Victoria Kiwanis luncheon.

Years ago it was easy to catch your limit and a little bit more. Now, he said, catching a salmon is "damn hard work."

Salmon fishing was a $20 million business in B.C. last year with 130,000 fishermen catching 216,000 fish.

But 10 years ago, less than half that number of anglers caught 385,000 salmon.

The average fishing excursion today works out this way, said Gilbert—2½ people in a boat for five hours catching 1½ fish.

★

Many factors are involved in the decline, said the man who earned enough money guiding to put himself through biology at university.

Deforestation of watersheds has contributed as much harm as all the others combined.

"This is where our problem started and has never really stopped."

Pulp mill pollution, insect sprays, slash fires, unscreened irrigation ditches and river dams are among man's work decimating the salmon's spawning cycle.

The Alberni mill alone pumps 27 tons of effluent daily into the water travelled by some migrating salmon, he said.

In salt water, herring, "the basic building block" in the salmon cycle, are being annihilated by the most efficient seine boat fleet in the world.

Modern electronics have given the commercial fishermen echo-sounders and scanners so a boat can follow a school and bring about the "reduction of complete runs."

★

"There has been very little management in this fishery."

Fisheries officials are aware of the problems but slow to act. Somehow they must be made to realize that utilization of salmon is increasing far more rapidly than they are able to keep up with, he said.

The Americans have been working on fish farms and artificial spawning beds since 1953 and they have improved on the salmon's one in a 1,000 natural survival ratio.

There are hundreds of artificial spawning beds on the Columbia and this fall the river had the biggest run in its history as a result.

B.C. should have hundreds of similar programs like the one now at work on the Big Qualicum.

"Artificial propagation is the answer but we'll have to prod those who control the purse strings."

Some of the fishery research being conducted now is 20 years behind, he said.

Football Owners Hire Labor Expert

The Washington Post

WASHINGTON—Demands by the newly-reinforced NFL Players' Association have prompted the National Football League to retain the services of prominent labor mediator Theodore W. Kheel.

The club presidents of the league engaged Kheel, who has been credited with settling many of the country's major labor disputes, to deal with the players' association. Last month, the players signed Dan Shulman, a Chicago attorney who specializes in representing unions.

Kheel also served as chairman of the sport arbitration board set up by vice-president Humphrey to mediate the squabble between the National Collegiate Athletic Association (NCAA) and The Amateur Athletic Union (AAU).

Shulman, John Gordy, president of the association, and other player representatives met with a committee of NFL owners Monday at New York in an unpublicized meeting. Art Modell, president of the NFL and owner of the Cleveland Browns, and Wellington Mara, owner of the New York Giants, attended.

Gordy did not issue until Tuesday a brief, bland statement in which he merely said they met "to discuss the question of recognition and various proposals." He said the participants agreed to meet again the week of Feb. 19, which is when the annual NFL meeting will begin in New York.

Attorney Shulman inidcated on the telephone from Chicago that the players had made solid progress when he said, "the outcome of the talks was excellent."

Like Gordy, Shulman declined to divulge details but he did say, "there will be a major announcement at our next meeting. It will make some noise."

By hiring a labor expert to negotiate with the players, the NFL was in effect giving de facto recognition to the association as the valid bargaining agent over an affiliate of the Teamsters' Union, the American Federation of Professional Athletes organized by Bernie Parrish.

McGIBNEY, CARIN WIN . . . . . . AT B.C. BONSPIEL

Zone Winners Trimming Field

PENTICTON (CP) — Seven berths in the 73rd annual British Columbia Curling Association playoffs remained open Tuesday night following completion of the second day at B.C. bonspiel.

Al LaChance and Russ Bowles, both of Kamloops, and Don Scherk of Prince Rupert assured themselves of spots in the interior championship playoffs, which begin Thursday.

All won their way into the fours of the BCCA bonspiel's "A" event.

The top four rinks in A, B and C events in the bonspiel go into the interior championship playoff to determine an opponent to play the coast winner for the B.C. title.

Already entered — before playing a game in the bonspiel — were the seven zone winners from all parts of the interior and the Yukon. If a zone winner reaches the fours of any one of three B.C. bonspiel events, he reduces the number of rinks in the playoffs.

The fourth survivor of the fours of the "A" event, defending champ Buzz McGibney of Trail, won his West Kootenay zone title and with it the automatic shot at the interior title.

The first rink to reach the semi-finals of the "B" event; North Okanagan zone champion Kelly Carin of Kamloops, narrowed the remaining playoff spots to seven. He defeated Castlegar's Bob Jeffrey in the eights of the "B" event.

Guessers Sure Top Grid Post Going to Jake

JAKE GAUDAUR

VANCOUVER (CP)—Appointment of Jake Gaudaur, of Hamilton, as commissioner of the Canadian Football League appears certain to just about everybody but Jake Gaudaur.

The CFL annual meeting opened in Vancouver Tuesday, amid reports that Gaudaur has the commissioner's job in his back pocket.

Gaudaur, who has played a prominent role in the CFL for 28 years as player, director, general manager and president of the Tiger-Cats, first was reported in Hamilton to have divested himself of his financial interests in the Hamilton club so that he could take the commissioner's post.

A 'TOP JOB'

And when he arrived in Vancouver later Tuesday, he told reporters:

"I consider this job one of the top sports executive jobs in the world. I will present myself to the commissioner selection committee and let them know what my position is."

Still later, however, Gaudaur said reports that he has sold his interests in the Ticats were "a little premature."

"While it's true my affairs are in order in case the job is offerered to me, I haven't gotten rid of my interests in the Tiger-Cats yet.

"People just don't divest themselves of their interests in one job before they have another job."

WORD THURSDAY

Officially, Gaudaur won't know until Thursday if he has the position. CFL President Allan McEachern of Vancouver took over on an interim basis a year ago after Senator Keith Davey resigned under pressure after 54 days on the job.

Today, the commissioner selection committee — McEachern, Hugh McColl of Edmonton, Dr. Neville Winograd of Winnipeg, Sam Berger of Ottawa and Joe Atwell of Montreal—must decide if Gaudaur is the man it wants.

Then, Thursday, the committee must present Gaudaur to the rest of the CFL executive for approval. Each of the nine teams has a vote, and eight affirmative ballots are required.

Gaudaur, president and general manager of the Tiger-Cats since 1956, rejected overtures from CFL colleagues to accept the commissioner's post when G. Sydney Halter of Winnipeg retired in 1966.

LASTS 54 DAYS

Senator Keith Davey, elected to the post early in 1967, lasted just 54 days before his forced resignation was accepted by the CFL.

McEachern shouldered the job until a permanent commissioner could be found for the $25,000-a-year post.

At the 1967 Grey Cup game in Ottawa, Gaudaur seemed set to take over, but early in January he said he did not want the job.

"I have now come to the conclusion that I am willing to take on this challenge," he said Tuesday.

Meanwhile, CFL general managers kicked off the annual meeting Tuesday, but failed to make any yards. Tony Golab of Montreal and Norm Kimball of Edmonton failed to show for a scheduled afternoon meeting, and Golab still was missing when talks started Tuesday night.

SURPRISING BOSOX ONLY 7-to-1 NOW

LAS VEGAS (AP) — A licensed Nevada bookmaker has stamped Boston Red Sox — a 100-1 long shot to win the American League baseball pennant last season—a 7-1 chance to do it again.

Sam Cohen, a bookmaker for more than 15 years, listed Minnesota and Baltimore as co-favorites in his opening odds line at 3-1.

St. Louis Cardinals, who defeated Boston in the seventh game of the World Series last year, were listed 2-1 favorites to win the National League pennant this year.

Following the Twins and the Orioles in the American League were Detroit 7-2, Chicago 5-1, Boston 7-1, California 10-1, Cleveland 15-1, New York Yankees 30-1, Washington 60-1, and Oakland 100-1.

Behind St. Louis in the National League, Cohen listed San Francisco with a 3-1 chance, Pittsburgh 7-2, Cincinnati 5-1, Philadelphia and Atlanta 7-1, Chicago 8-1, Los Angeles 15-1, Houston 60-1, and New York 100-1.

Pocket Rocket Thinks It Over

MONTREAL (CP) — The status of centre Henri Richard, the "Pocket Rocket" of Montreal Canadiens, remains uncertain today and it appears likely the impasse between the player and the National Hockey League club will not be settled until later in the week.

Richard failed to show for the team's pre-game meeting Saturday and at a hastily-convened press conference prior to the game, general manager Sam Pollock announced that Richard would take a few days off to consider his hockey future.

Canadiens held their customary workout Tuesday in preparation for tonight's game against Philadelphia Flyers, but Richard was still absent.

He is reportedly in seclusion in the Laurentian Mountains north of Montreal and will return here later this week for discussions with Pollock. The Montreal general manager is in New York and not expected back before Thursday.

Richard, who injured his knee in a pre-season exhibition game and then suffered three additional knee ailments during regular schedule play, had returned from a three-week layoff to play briefly against Toronto Maple Leafs Jan. 30 and New York Rangers Feb. 1.

In each game he saw only one early shift of action before returning to the bench.

Pollock, who described Richard as a proud man and fierce competitor, said the little centre told him that he was "discouraged" and "that I can't help the team any more."

THINKING IT OVER

"He told me he can't stand the idea of sitting on the bench," Pollock said Saturday. "He wants some time to think about his future."

Coach Toe Blake said Tuesday to his knowledge no one in the Montreal organization had heard from Richard since his departure for the mountains.

To date there has been no talk of suspension of the player, however presumably if he fails to return he would be suspended. If he requests to be moved to the voluntary retired list he must remain out of hockey for one year.

Richard has appeared in only 32 of Montreal's 50 games this season. He has five goals and 12 assists to his credit. His 13-year career total to date is 269 goals and 458 assists during regular-season play.

Imlach Scouts Minors

By Canadian Press

Manager - coach Punch Imlach is back where he started, searching the minors for help and battling New York Rangers for a place in the Stanley Cup playoffs.

Imlach has called up left winger Andre Hinse and defenceman Mike Pelyk from Tulsa Oilers of the Central Professional Hockey League to practice with Toronto Maple Leafs, currently tied with the Rangers for the fourth and last playoff spot in the Eastern Division of the National Hockey League.

The situation closely resembles the 1958-59 season when the Leafs won the red-hot race for the last playoff berth with the Rangers after manager Imlach fired coach Billy Reay and took over both jobs.

TIGHT FINISH

Toronto finished with 27 victories, 32 losses and 11 ties, beating the Rangers' 26-32-12 record by a single point and going on to win the Stanley Cup semi-finals before losing in the finals to Montreal Canadiens.

The Leafs and the Rangers both have 55 points after 50 games this season, seven more than last-place Detroit Red Wings.

Imlach is well aware of the help Gerry Ehman supplied in the 1958-59 stretch run. Grabbed from Detroit's chain, Ehman scored 12 goals and 13 assists in his 38 games with Toronto.

DEFENCE HURTING

Hinse is the leading goal-getter in the CPHL while Pelyk is a speedy defenceman who came up because of injuries to Leaf regulars Tim Horton and Al Stanley.

Imlach did not say if the newcomers will play against the Black Hawks in Chicago tonight.

Philadelphia Flyers visit Montreal while Boston Bruins are at St. Louis against the Blues, Pittsburgh Penguins visit Oakland Seals, and Minnesota North Stars play the Kings in Los Angeles.

Macs Finish In Top Place

Coffee Macs have finished atop the Senior Men's Basketball League, but three of their top guns will be elsewhere when playoff time rolls around Feb. 17 at the University of Victoria gym.

The Coffee crew will have only seven men available since leading scorers Darrell Lorimer, Ken Gregory and Bill Spotswood are signed to play with Labatts in the playoffs. If Macs decide to compete, they will meet Farmers while Colony plays Labs in the opening playoff games.

Macs ended Colony Inn's hopes for a first-place tie by defeating fourth-place Farmer Construction 93-70 Tuesday at Oak Bay High School. In the second game Colony dumped third-place Labatts 75-64, to finish two points behind.

Spotswood and Lormier paced the Macs in their final league game with 19 and 18 points, respectively, while Mike Gallo (15 points), Ron Bowker (13), Rick Williamson (12) and Bruce Clarke (12) also hit the double-figure bracket.

Fred Gubbels hit for 19 points for losers while Rick Humber added 16 and Dennis Horn 14.

The Jim Cunningham-Ed Steele combination proved again to be the big factor in Colony's victory. Cunningham contributed 20 of his 31 points in the first half while Steele added 10 of his 14 to gain the 40-30 half-time lead. Bill Wilson chipped in with 16 points overall.

Gordie Jones paced losers with 20 points.

Qualifying for rolloffs in May, Bill rolled his big series in the Wednesday Mixed Classic League at Duncan Bowling Centre.

FAMED STALLION DIES

ARCADIA, Calif. (AP)—Khaled, the stallion who sired Kentucky Derby winner Swaps and many other champions, is dead. The son of Hyperion was 25.

Damascus Gets Chance at Sweep

ARCADIA, Calif. (AP) — Santa Anita makes up for lost time Saturday by staging a double-header—Damascus heading one cast and Australian Tobin Bronze the other.

Racing resumed at the track today following agreement on a new contract which boosts purses to 43 per cent of the track's share of pari-mutuel receipts.

The pact ended three days of boycotting by horse owners who refused to enter races and caused the track to cease operations Friday, Saturday and Tuesday. No races were scheduled Sunday or Monday.

CARRIES TOP WEIGHT

Damascus, with scheduled rider Ron Turcotte of Grand Falls, N.B., will be seeking an unprecedented sweep of Santa Anita's series for four-year-olds when he heads the lineup in the $100,000-add 1¼-mile Charles H. Strub Stakes. The Strub Stakes was originally scheduled for last Saturday.

Mrs. Edith W. Bancroft's colt will carry top weight of 126 pounds after scoring resounding triumphs in the Malibu and San Fernando Stakes.

Tobin Bronze drew high weight of 125 for the $30,000-added San Marcos, which will be raced over the turf course also at 1¼ miles.

Peace came to Santa Anita with a compromise agreement. Horsemen had asked a boost to 47 per cent on a two-year contract but settled for the 43 with a three-year pact.

The boost will be retroactive to the start of the meeting, Dec. 26, with the increase in purses applying to overnight races or to stakes which are split and raced in two divisions.

HISTORIAN:

Old Castle Can Serve Two Uses

By ELIZABETH FORBES

Forbes

There is no reason to believe Craigdarroch Castle could not be maintained both as a music school and a museum — if and when the School Board leaves it empty. So says Jim Nesbitt, president of the Castle Society. To substantiate the statement he points to the three upper floors of the castle. "These are not historically spectacular and could easily be used as a music school."

The top floor was once a huge ballroom, Right now it is partitioned into smaller spaces. "But the partitions could be removed with little effort."

This would leave the main floor to be furnished in old-time elegance (bric-a brac, china, furniture, candelabra) and used by the music school and the castle society for soirees and receptions. It would also be the floor open to the public and to tourists, at stated times of the year.

Going a bit further Mr. Nesbitt turns attention to the terrace below the castle, an acre of ground that is poorly kept right now.

"It's easy to visualize a one-storey auditorium down there," he dreams. "With some space left for a formal garden. Music school students could then give concerts during summer months and people would stroll out amongst the flowers at intermission."

As a well-known historian Jim is naturally dedicated to the preservation of valuable historic records and relics. Nevertheless, he believes that museums, per se, can be overdone. Especially in a place like Victoria.

★ ★ ★

Local residents "authough" they may say they will," do not support such places in any great numbers. Tourist potential is limited "because we are situated on an island."

This last factor makes it impossible for us "to ever develop a museum of the magnitude — and paying potential — of either Upper Canada Village or San Simeon in California."

Therefore, preservation here of historic places merely as museums could reach the saturation point. Indeed Jim says "we've almost reached that point now."

We have Helmcken House "a well-established museum;" Craigflower Manor "also a good museum and soon to be even better;" the O'Reilly home "beautifully restored" and the Maritime Museum "historic in every detail."

★ ★ ★

Then he turns to the Emily Carr home to point a comparison. Here there is to be restoration that will present main floor rooms in different periods of Victoria's history. At the same time the building will be headquarters for the Junior Chamber of Commerce and its offices will be maintained there.

"It's a good combination! Not only will the house please the visiting public, it will also be in day-to-day use."

Something of the same sort of arrangement should be possible between the Victoria Music School and the Castle Society, Jim believes.

He would not like to see the castle entirely shut off from the public. "It would be a great shame if the school of music did that."

★ ★ ★

And he doesn't hesitate to remind us that if it hadn't been for the Castle Society taking an interest in Craigdarrooh in 1959 and maintaining that interest up to the present, "it is possible that by now it would have been pulled down and a high rise erected in its place."

He's sure it would be "a Victoria Music School located in the castle, side-by-side with his group.

From a cultural and artistic viewpoint "it would be a perfect melding," he maintains.

"As long as old buildings can be put to practical year-round use it is much better than trying to preserve them merely as museums."

Saigon Draft Law Corrupt, Charges Sen. Ted Kennedy

By RICHARD HARWOOD
The Washington Post

WASHINGTON — Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D., Mass., has strongly implied that the South Vietnamese government is tottering toward disaster under the weight of its own corruption and indifference to the war.

Without dramatic reforms in Saigon, Kennedy said, a million more American troops would be unable to retrieve the situation.

And unless those reforms are made promptly, he said, the U.S. should consider withdrawing from the conflict.

A blunt ultimatum to that effect, said the Massacusetts senator, should be delivered at once by the Johnson administration at a new summit meeting with Vietnamese government officials.

"They should be told," Kennedy declared, "that unless they have sufficient interest in the survival of their own country to mobilize that country for war, to draft their own young men at 18 and 19 years of age, to stop the sale of deferments, to place themselves on a seven-day week as the Americans do, and to eliminate the system of buying positions of military and political power — unless they have this kind of interest, they cannot long expect us to maintain ours."

PRECARIOUS

The Viet Cong invasion of Saigon and 26 provincial capitals has revealed, Kennedy said, how precarious the situation has become, how weak the Saigon government is, and how mistaken U.S. officials have been in their optimistic reports of the war.

He spoke in Washington at a convention of the American Advertising Federation just three weeks after his return from a 10-day visit to South Vietnam.

His gloomy assessment of the situation was echoed in other comments from members of the Senate.

Sen. Jacob K. Javits, (R — N.Y.) said the United States should recognize it is faced with a "stalemate" in Vietnam and should seek a "political and diplomatic compromise."

Two other Republicans — Sen. Charles Percy of Illinois and Sen. Thruston Morton of Kentucky — said the current Viet Cong offensive proves that the administration has misled the country about the course of the war.

NO VICTORY

"I see no chance of a military victory in Vietnam," Morton said. Percy said the Viet Cong attacks show "rather clearly that the enemy can still wreak havoc anywhere in South Vietnam despite the statements by American officials that as much as 60 per cent of the population was in government-controlled areas."

Kennedy made the same point in his speech and described his disgust at the corruption and indifference he found in Saigon. American boys are dying in the countryside, he said, while in Saigon "thousands of young men 18 and 19 years old race through the streets on their motorbikes, exempt from the war and oblivious to the agony of their own nation . . . One could not tell from the bustle and the gaiety, the business-as-usual, the thriving black market and the long siestas and lunch hours that there was a war on."

At the same time, he said, American officials were giving him the same optimistic predictions they had given him in 1965. They are still speaking of Viet Cong "failure," he said, after a week in which "the Viet Cong and their allies from the north achieved an outstanding political victory" through their city offensive.

Civilians Take Brunt In Vietnam

SAIGON (Reuters) — A total of 2,015 civilians were killed and 8,200 wounded throughout South Vietnam in the Viet Cong offensive which began last week, a South Vietnamese government spokesman said today.

The spokesman said provisional casualty figures listed 350 civilian dead and 1,200 wounded in Saigon alone, while there were 67,264 refugees in the capital and 189,000 in provinces for which figures were available.

The U.S. military command today reported 22,748 Viet Cong killed since the start of the Communist offensive Jan. 29, but observers remained skeptical of the accuracy of this figure.

The U.S. command said the U.S. and its allies lost a total of 1,768 killed and 7,358 wounded in the fighting in Saigon and cities and towns throughout the country.

NETHERLANDS FEARS ESCALATION OF WAR

THE HAGUE (AP)—The lower chamber of the Dutch Parliament passed a motion Tuesday night expressing shock at the suffering of the Vietnamese people and its fear of a new escalation of the war in Vietnam. The motion called for an unconditional end to the bombing of North Vietnam by the United States, an ally of The Netherlands in the North Atlantic Treaty Organization. The chamber asked the Dutch cabinet to urge all the parties involved to stop all hostilities immediately.

MIAMI FACING PROBLEM WITH NEGROES

Cuban Refugees Taking Jobs

MIAMI, Fla. (Reuters)-Cuban refugees, flying into Miami at the rate of 4,000 a month, are creating a new problem by taking jobs from Negroes.

The Cuban Refugee Centre says nearly 90,000 Cubans have settled in the United States since Cuban Prime Minister Fidel Castro announced his Cuban exit policy in December, 1965. Most have settled in Miami.

Figures issued by the U.S. Equal Employment Opportunity Commission and based on reports submitted by employers show that industries in Dade County employ far more Cubans than Negroes in white collar jobs and as craftsmen. Many more Negroes than Cubans hold blue collar jobs.

Negroes hold less than two per cent of the county's white collar jobs, while Cubans hold eight per cent. Only four per cent of the county's craftsmen are Negro and 11 per cent are Cuban. One-quarter of the blue collar jobs are held by Negroes and 18 per cent by Cubans.

Officials said one of the most important factors in the situation is that few Negroes are educated and otherwise qualified for office jobs. Cubans, on the other hand, are generally better educated and equipped for such positions.

About 13,500 Cubans are employed in a population of about 125,000. Approximately 175,000 Negroes live in the county, but only 12,000 work in the industries covered by the report.

To cope with the problem, the Dade Equal Opportunity Task Force is sponsoring a program to help show employers how to find and use Negroes. The aim is to find out what problems employers encounter in finding Negroes to employ, to tell them where to go for help, and to match needs for people needing them.

Class Pressure Crushes Child

Parents, Teachers and Ambition Conspire Against Pupil Success

By DON VIPOND

Education Reporter

No child goes to school alone.

From his first day in class he is surrounded by a trio of pressure points—his parents, his teachers and himself.

The Pressurized Classroom was discussed by psychologist Andrew Mikita and his audience at a meeting of the V.I. branch, Association for Childhood Education, Tuesday night.

And in the process just about every facet of the school and social system had the finger pointed at it.

The first encounter with school is crucial, said Mr. Mikita.

The child has the general feeling people are banking on him.

His parents wonder if they have prepared him well enough.

And teachers feel a responsibility to the child, to the parents and to the education system.

GOOD INTENTIONS

These three groups have mutually good intentions, said the psychologist.

"And it's ironical that every one wanting to help creates the pressure, the apprehension."

The youngster soon learns that the primary function of school is learning the curriculum, that A marks get you promotion and Es get you failure.

But there is a wide difference between the ability of children to learn and even in the rate a child learns at one stage of school in contrast to another.

So the youngster who encounters troubles asks himself:

"Why am I being asked to do things I can't do?"

He may conclude he's "dumb," he's doomed. From there to the incipient drop-out, to the "seat-warmer" is a short step.

Children with learning difficulites are not necessarily unintelligent, said Mr. Mikita.

SYMBOLIC MATERIAL

"We are finding there are many kinds of competence. But (in the current school system) a premium is placed on handling symbolic material."

One educator, he said, has estimated 25 per cent of school beginners are not able to handle reading as it is taught.

Another hazard is the grading system, where a certain portion must be awarded As and a percentage graded as failures.

"It's like a giant game of musical chairs where there are not enough passing marks to go around."

With it, the student most in need of help and encouragement is given the most discouraging marks.

Some teachers have branded such a quota grading system as "deadening."

Mr. Mikita said it can end "in the tragic situation where children begin to feel guilty about their own nature."

It can inhibit youngsters, sometimes paralyze their potential growth. They won't tackle problems because they feel they can't do them.

From such situations come parents' questions which place the onus on their child.

"What's wrong?" they ask.

Their premise is you can make children learn.

You can't, claimed one speaker. Learning itself is effortless. All you can do is try and create a desirable environment for learning.

Who's to blame for the unhealthy pressures youngsters are beset by in school?

OUTMODED IMAGE

Some said teaching faculties at the universities for casting new teachers in their own old outmoded images.

"Teachers come out of university knowing very little about children."

"A teacher is not allowed to take psychology."

Some criticized the school curriculum.

"Kids have their own time table for learning. There are brilliant kids who couldn't draw a diamond at age 7."

"The curriculum should be the means to learning but I think we've made it the end."

Some faulted parents, for pressuring their own children when they have learning troubles, for urging a grading system when their children achieve high standing.

SYSTEM BLAMED

Some blamed the school "system" which asks teachers to handle classes of 30 or 40 individuals with a variety of aptitudes, backgrounds and learning capacity.

Some said teachers should rebel en masse against the obvious faults in the system.

"Not being able to find any one to blame is most frustrating," said Mr. Mikita.

$5 Million for School

LOS ANGELES (AP) — May Roberts de Wright, who began life as a foundling, left $5,000,000 to the University of Southern California School of Medicine, the university announced Monday. Mrs. Wright's executor said she was adopted as a child in Chicago by Col. Reuben M. Baker, inherited a sum variously estimated at $20,000 to $100,000 and used the funds to build up an investment fortune.

KIERANS SAYS WE'RE BIG BOYS NOW

Canada Always Looking for a Mother

By DERYK THOMPSON
Times Uvic Correspondent

Canada has always been a country looking for a mother, a federal Liberal leadership candidate said Tuesday.

Eric Kierans, past president of the Quebec Liberal Association and a former revenue minister in the Quebec cabinet was addressing nearly 200 University of Victoria students.

"From 1534 to 1759 the mother country was France, from 1759 to after World War Two it was the United Kingdom and then we asked the United States to adopt us," he said.

"Canada has entered into a high level of welfare services before we could afford it," he said. "And we have got away with it because we have relied on the United States to fuel the expansion of Canada.

"More and more Canadian money must go into our economy to make it more competitive, more productive and more efficient or it's down the road to devaluation," he said.

HELD BACK

Speaking about Quebec Mr. Kierans said the province should have changed after 1945 but didn't because of Duplessis (former premier).

"Quebec had no minister of education until 1964 because education was controlled by the church.

"Education wasn't for living or fitting one for a living but for eternity," said Kierans.

Kierans said the current change in Quebec is bringing the province into the twentieth century, a move which poses serious problems for Canada.

"The people of Quebec think they are better than you are," he said.

"The vast majority of them don't intend to leave Confederation. Only a complete lack of recognition for them would lead to that.

"The federal government must offer policies and programs to them which delineate a Canadian point of view, identity and opinion that is our own," he said.

MUST LEAD

"This does not mean we should follow blindly the policies of another nation.

"There can only be one foreign policy in a nation, if you can find one in Canada," he said. There can only be one monetary policy, one economic policy, one trade policy and one defense policy." But Kierans did stress that provinces should have more power regarding regional developement and social services.

"This wouldn't limit Ottawa," he said. "It would just reduce the number of bureaucrats. Regional developement should be in the hands of the provinces of regions where it can be better handled.

"We have to work out our accomplishments in a federal structure and must work out all programs through a federal structure.

FALLEN APART

"This is what has fallen apart in the medicare battle," he said.

"It would be suicide for provinces to raise money for 100 per cent medicare rather than to use it to tackle their own problems," he said.

Kierans said much more economic planning must go into Canada's developement.

"The economic council could do a lot better job without the 25 businessmen and other industrial representatives on it," he said.

"Its reports have to be subscribed to by all 25. If you eliminate the council and just have the three commissioners you could let them draft problems and policies.

Kieran's feelings on an independent Canada were brought out strongly when a student asked him if it wasn't better to accept the fact we need the United States help in economic developement.

"We have a Canadian contribution to make," he said. "We must find it and stand by it. We can make no contribution to U.S. power, we only compromise ourselves.

He said Canada could lead in the quest for peace because she is not fighting for power or world domination.

COULD DO MORE

"We could do a lot more than we do," said Kierans. "Up to now our foreign policy has suffered from a kind of self-imposed censorship for fear of U.S. economic sanctions."

"Other nations are waiting for leadership and direction from Canada.

"The U.S. has more to lose than we do from economic sanctions. We have no courage to use what we have going for us and have walked into the influence of the United States.

When asked if it would not be easier for Canada to have one language Kierans said this was not what the country was all about and that we must accept bi-lingualism.

"Thirty per cent of our population is French-speaking," he said. We must admit and realize this. It's harder to build a united Canada this way but it's worth it.

ATHENS (AP) — Police have announced they are going to disband pop music groups whose members are under age 17. An order issued by Police Chief Assilios Sakelariou said he was acting in response to numerous complaints by parents that their children were buying guitars, growing long hair and staying out late at basement clubs.

'THAT'S A JOKE'

Tunnel on Highway A Dream Says Phil

Highways Minister Gaglardi said Tuesday his department would never build a tunnel under Town and Country Shopping Centre for the Patricia Bay Freeway.

He was replying outside the legislature to a comment by A. W. (Bud) Mesher, a member of the Saancih Advisory Planning Commission.

"That's a joke," said Mr. Gaglardi. "It must be just engineer's talk. We'd never build a tunnel under the Town and Country Shopping Centre because the cost would be prohibitive.

"For a tunnel you'd be talking about millions and millions of dollars and there's just too much area available for a surface highway route without going to that additional expense.

"No one knows for sure where the final route of that highway is going. All of these plans have to be approved by the municipalities and the government."

Saanich Reeve Hugh Curtis said a tunnel "is something that I have heard referred to, but only as conjecture, as one of several remote possibilities that might be considered."

He said there has been a proposed route for the new highway for several years and this is the one shown to Saanich.

"But it is always emphasized that this is a proposed route, that nothing is finalized and we have never seen any other route, if one exists."

Mr. Mesher said today if the route is only a proposed one, "they are basing a lot of rezoning on a so-called proposed route."

He referred to the highways department requiring Simpsons-Sears to keep 150 feet adjacent to Pat Bay Highway free of buildings at the warehouse site near Douglas Golfland.

In addition, council last month called a public hearing on a plan to rezone to general commercial the area bounded by Douglas, the proposed freeway (roughly Maple-Seymour) to the east, Saanich Road to the north and Tolmie in the south.

VICTORIA, B.C., WEDNESDAY, FEBRUARY 7, 1968—PAGE 23

Arthur Mayse

Like most columnists, I must work a day behind the news, which means that what's set down on Tuesday may come out a long jump behind Wednesday's hurrying events. This being so, I can only surmise how the constitutional conference will proceed in its later phases.

I expect the end of this beginning will be inconclusive. How, in fact, can it be otherwise?

But a start has been made at solving the long wrangle betwen French and English-speaking Canadians, and at least we will emerge with a better understanding of how we stand divided.

Then, like an alcoholic who has finally succeeded in scaring the devil out of himself, we may begin the hard upward climb toward unity.

The ideal state would be a sort of Canadians Anonymous in which racial extractions were discarded. In this less-than-ideal world, however, I suspect we'll have to settle for such accord as can be managed by two peoples—not nations, but peoples—who have been forced to learn the knack of living together.

In Confederation, as in any marriage meant to last, this is going to call for concession, compromise, and mutual respect. The alternative is a shattering divorce and new lives with other partners ... on their terms.

★

I don't want our province or any other to become territorial appendages of the United States, and hope you don't, either. Because this is well within the bounds of possibility, and despite our premier's insistence that the BNA Act remain virgin, I'm entirely willing to accept reasonable amendments and even a limited amount of guff if necessary.

One reason for what I admit to be a revised outlook is the emergence of Justice Minister Pierre-Elliott Trudeau as a new-type interpreter of the needs and wants of the French - extraction Canadian.

He has discarded the Levesque dream of a sovereign Quebec state and the Johnson demand for special status as unworkable—if, indeed, he ever considered them—and he argues very strongly for a reformed federalism.

I think Mr. Trudeau may be the Canadian of the future; and certainly he is the best thing that has happened to our distressful country in many a year.

★

For me, the most significant aspect of the conference is not the tussle between special status-seeking Mr. Johnson and the outer provinces. It is the confrontation between Quebec's premier and this other son of Quebec who may succeed conference chairman and catalyst Lester Pearson as our next prime minister.

What Johnson seeks is in essence archaic—an undoing of Confederation, even though we might retain the name.

Trudeau, no two-nations proponent, would work from within our union, recognizing the needs and rights of all provinces.

It is early to claim that one or the other, or Levesque brooding ominously in the wings, speaks for the Quebec majority. But Mr. Trudeau's strikes me as the voice of reason, and no Canadian deserves a more attentive hearing.

At the same time, I could wish that the foundations for discussions that may lead to significant changes in what we are pleased to call our constitution were more solid. To make those changes, and to find in the end that they fail to satisfy a determinedly-dissident Quebec, would guarantee a change of spirit even among those provinces now pressing hardest for a revised BNA Act.

So, to the question, "Who speaks for Quebec?" I think we must add the other that has drawn three different answers. Do the people of Quebec want to separate, or to acquire two-nation status, or to win reform within the framework of our 10-province Confederation?

Manpower Minister Jean Marchand has suggested a referendum which would establish the majority viewpoint. Better, perhaps, if the parties to the conference had possessed that essential information before they set to work.

One Dead In Crash Up-Island

A 38-year-old Campbell River man, John Everall, died in a car accident early this morning which RCMP described as one of the worst wrecks they have viewed.

Everall, accompanied by Mrs. Constance Cote, was travelling on the Island Highway 11 miles north of Campbell River when the car skidded 800 feet, crashed into a telephone pole and flipped end over end, police said.

Highway department crew discovered the car at 2 a.m. and found the two occupants trapped inside. It took RCMP and the tow truck an hour to free them from the wreck.

Everall was dead on arrival at hospital and Mrs. Cote is in serious condition with undetermined injuries.

BIBLE SOCIETY

Victorian Donates $75,000

An elderly Victorian has donated $75,000 to the Canadian Bible Society, Rev. Raymond Tingley, secretary of the society in British Columbia, revealed today.

"He won't give his name," Mr. Tingley said, "because he doesn't want it to sound like a publicity stunt. All I can tell you is that he used to be a dentist—but not in Victoria.

"He told me he was distressed because millions of people need the Bible but have no opportunity of reading it. I asked him to give his name but he was adamant—he didn't want any publicity."

Mr. Tingley, whose headquarters are in Vancouver, said 100,000,000 copies of the Scriptures—in different forms and translations — were distributed throughout the world in 1967.

ONE OF 35

"The Canadian Bible Society is one of 35 Bible societies operating today.

"In Japan, where there are less than 800,000 Christians, the circulation of Scriptures reached 5,000,000 copies in 1967. The truth is 99 per cent of the Japanese people are literate and more books are read in Japan than in any other country of the world."

Mr. Tingley addressed a Victoria rally of the Canadian Bible Society in Central Baptist Church Monday night.

20 Awaiting Interviews For U.S. Jobs

The biggest private shipyard in the Pacific Northwest began recruiting today for 100 qualified pipefitters in Victoria and Vancouver.

Twenty men were at the Union Center building this morning for interviews, but a representative from Lockheed Shipbuilding and Construction Company in Seattle was delayed for several hours in Vancouver.

Last month a Mississippi shipyard was in British Columbia recruiting 100 pipefitters and 50 platers. Both shipyard and outside construction work here is in the doldrums.

Outside the Union Center, the Victoria secretary of the Communist Party of Canada, Ernest Knott, handed out a statement he described as "our proposals to meet the crisis in the yards."

He said more raw materials should be processed here and skilled shipyard workers kept here to build ships to carry the goods to world markets.

Rotten Housing Lurks Behind Garden Facade

By PETE LOUDON

There's an old house on the Gorge, once the imposing centrepiece in a pioneer estate and now chopped into six rickety apartments.

The woman who shares one of the ground-floor three-room flats with her three children is an expert on the current shortage of low-rent housing in Victoria—an anonymous expert.

When you've got rats, you don't draw attention to it.

"The rats are awful in the summer. And they're always getting bolder.

"Every summer the city puts out poison but they say they can't clear them out completely because we are so close to the Gorge.

"It's fine for those MLAs and the council to talk about the need for low-rent housing.

"But they'd work on it faster if they lived here for a while."

The family lives on the ground floor but nevertheless, the ceiling is stained with leaking rainwater and the paper blistered and flaking.

"If the lady upstairs doesn't catch it, it comes through."

The children are aged 10, seven and eight, two girls and a boy. They've been deserted by their father and they live on welfare allowances totalling $175 a month. The family pays $60 a month to live there.

'$135 a Month and Darned Scarce'

There's a demolition order pending and the people who occupy all six living units will soon be looking for other homes. The only two-bedroom places the woman has seen will cost $125 to $135 a month.

"And they're darned scarce," says social worker Mrs. Mary MacKenzie.

Mrs. MacKenzie, who is retired from case work, now gives her time to the B.C. Association of Social Workers. The association is trying to stimulate public interest in "the extremely serious housing shortage" now plaguing Victoria. She invited the Times to go with her to see the problem at first hand.

Mrs. June ——, who lives on Richmond near Fort, with her six youngsters aged four to 15 (another husbandless, welfare family) believes she's sitting pretty right now in a fine, warm, older-style home. Four bedrooms, $125, you pay all the utilities.

But to manage the rent she takes in ironing and until she found it interfered with her oldest daughter's homework, she had a night job scrubbing.

"I've sold the baby's crib and a few other things to get a couple of extra bucks."

It's a case of either doing that or going back to the $65 ("I've heard it's $85 now") house she recently left in James Bay. It has a heater in the front room only, nothing to warm the bedrooms upstairs.

'Fixed After Plaster Fell on Kids'

"The roof leaked and when the plaster fell on the kids, that's when they'd fix it, not before."

She's been up against it for so long she knows the unwritten roles of landlords who operate the dilapidated old homes available to welfare cases.

"One rule is, you've got to put three plugs in a leaking hot water tank before it's ready for replacement—even if your kids are in danger of being scalded."

Mrs. MacKenzie's next call was with a pioneer couple who live with their grown but retarded son in a tiny 60-year-old home on Yates. It will be coming down soon. New apartments are already encroaching.

The father and mother are both pensioners, born in Victoria but they can't qualify for senior citizen housing without parting with their son, and that's out.

Their house is stacked with firewood and threaded with sagging wiring. If a fire inspector ever saw it, it would be condemned. But where else could they get accommodation for $30?

"How could we pay more?" they ask.

A sharp contrast is the one room and kitchenette on Quadra, the second floor retreat of another pensioner, a woman aged 79, who sits with her blinds drawn because she has glaucoma, a cataract in each eye. She has 20 per cent sight.

She does her own cooking and bakes her own bread in a tin oven that sits over a two-ring gas burner. The Victorian Order of Nurses sees her daily to administer insulin. She's a diabetic.

'WHAT CAN BE DONE?'

A public meeting on housing—"what can be done?"—will be held tonight at 8 in the Union Centre, 2750 Quadra.

Speakers include MP Colin Cameron, Victoria Ald. Ian Stewart, Mrs. May Campbell, president of the Senior Citizens Housing Society of Greater Victoria, and Dr. Laudadio of the economics department of the University of Victoria.

The meeting was organized by the Victoria Labour Council in place of its regular council meeting.

IN THIS CORNER . . .

Waldo the Wildcat Versus Leo the Lion

As the opposition gave the government a big push in the legislature Tuesday, the Socred whip gave the NDP whip "a little push" in the corridor outside.

Waldo Skillings (SC—Victoria) and Leo Nimsick (NDP—Kootenay), the opposing party whips, were arguing over order of speakers in the throne speech debate.

"He called me a liar," said Mr. Skillings later. "I pushed him a little."

Mr. Nimsick denied calling him a liar and added: "He gave me a shove in the face. I told him to keep his hands off of me. I wasn't afraid of him."

Mr. Nimsick said he reported the incident to Speaker William Murray, who called the two men into his office where the matter was settled quietly.

"He apologized to me in front of the Speaker," Mr. Nimsick said this morning.

Asked if everything was fully patched up now, he said:

"It is as far as I'm concerned. I don't hold grudges. He didn't hurt me anyway but it was a really stupid thing for him to do."

It was settled so well that the two whips were later able to agree to add John Tisdalle (SC—Saanich and the Islands) to the list of speakers in the evening.

Dudley Little (SC—Skeena) ended the night sitting at 11 p.m. by announcing that arrangements had been completed for "Waldo the Wildcat" to meet "Leo the Lion" in an Indian wrestle.

The government was annoyed with the opposition for introducing its third non-confidence motion of the session in the afternoon and the NDP was still peeved after being voted down Monday in an attempt to rearrange order of speakers in the throne speech debate.

Mr. Skillings stands six feet one, Mr. Nimsick about five feet six.

Bad Cheque 'Mistake'

A man who told central court today he wrote a worthless $7.85 cheque by mistake will spend three days in jail while a pre-sentence report is prepared.

Glen Kristjan, 385 Island Highway, pleaded guilty to a charge of obtaining goods by false pretences from Pearkes Florists.

Kristjan said he had written three cheques on a Vancouver account before he found out it was closed.

Magistrate Byers remanded the accused in custody to Friday for pre-sentence report.

GAGLARDI CHALLENGED TO DEBATE

Alex Macdonald (NDP — Vancouver East) today challenged Highways Minister Gaglardi to a public debate on his involvement in the burgeoning Kamloops-Merritt junction land deal controversy.

The opposition lawyer, who broached the subject in a speech to the legislature last Friday, said he would pay for the hall and would hold it in Mr. Gaglardi's hometown of Kamloops.

See also Pages 29, 30

Mr. Macdonald issued the challenge in a press statement because, he said, Mr. Gaglardi has reviled him in various public statements since Friday but never to his face.

The controversy surrounds a land development alongside a strategic highway junction two miles south of Kamloops which depended on highways department approval. Mr. Gaglardi was one of the vendors of the land in his private capacity as an executor of an estate.

"Highways Minister Gaglardi has in the last few days on television, and elsewhere, called me every name in the book but always outside of the legislature and never eyeball to eyeball," Mr. Macdonald said this morning.

"I therefore challenge him to a public debate in Kamloops, at a time and place of his choosing but preferably within three weeks.

"I will pay for the hall.

"The minister says that the developer did not get 'direct' access to the Trans-Canada Highway.

SOMETHING BETTER

"Of course not, but they got something better from the department of highways — a service road alongside the highway for gas stations, motels, shopping, etc. all their little hearts could possibly desire.

"The minister said on television that if there is a roadrunner (highways official giving advance tips to speculators) he wants to find it.

"So far he has dropped more clues than anyone else."

'Firemen Too Slow' Responding'

A citizen said today he is filing a complaint against the city fire department for failing to respond immediately to a fire call at 728 Kings Road.

By press time four fire trucks had arrived on the scene but Henry Bitterman, 558 Broadway, said three calls had to be made before they arrived.

No one was in the house at the time. A neighbor first noticed the fire around noon.

NO HOSE

After calling the fire department she appealed to Mr. Bitterman, a passerby, to help fight the fire.

"We couldn't find a hose anywhere," said Mr. Bitterman. "We rushed into the house and found the kitchen aflame. We shut all the doors to prevent a pressure build-up but it exploded breaking some windows."

Mr. Bitterman then made a second call to the fire department, waited six minutes and then phoned again.

"In all it took the department at least 10 to 12 minutes to respond from the first call. People could be burned to death by that time and they're not a stone's throw away."

Huddle Called On Troubled Renewal Plan

Bottlenecks Plague Blanshard Project

By JIM HUME
City Hall Reporter

The newly constituted British Columbia Housing Management Commission meets in Victoria Thursday in an attempt to eliminate the bottlenecks holding up the Rose-Blanshard urban renewal projects.

City manager Dennis Young is the local representative on the commission. Other members represent the federal and provincial governments.

The complete agenda for the first meeting of the commission is unknown, but it is believed the matter of design and construction of 180 housing units will be given top priority.

In the past the provincial government has favored a call for proposals. This results in contractors bidding for, then designing and constructing the entire project.

The city favors a formula whereby an architect divorced from the contractor designs the project and maintains a close check on construction.

Failure to reach an agreement — the final decision rests with the province — has already created bottlenecks and is in danger of creating more. But city officials are reluctant to discuss either the present delays or looming problems.

But the facts of the situation indicate that unless the Management Commission can come up with some fast answers and get home construction under way soon the entire project may bog down.

Original Priority Order Askew

Already the original order of priorities has been lost.

Priority No. 1 was to clear the site for and start construction of a new school to replace North Ward School.

No. 2 was to clear the site and start construction of new housing units.

No. 3 was to start the final phase of house-building while rerouting and widening Rose Street.

Phase one went ahead slightly ahead of schedule.

Phase three is scheduled to start this June.

Phase two remains at the talking stage.

The switch in the program appears innocuous on the surface. But under the National Housing Act people displaced by land acquisition for an urban renewal scheme must be found alternative accommodation while waiting for new houses to be built.

In the Rose-Blanshard area people displaced by phase-two land acquisition were reaccommodated in the phase-three area. Had the project gone according to plan new homes would have been ready for them before the new road program got under way.

As things stand now several families are living in temporary homes in the middle of the new road route.

50 Owners Still Negotiating

Adding to the problem of where to move them next if the road is to go through on schedule are eight property owners who have failed to come to terms with the city on the price to be paid for their property.

In total throughout the entire scheme area more than 50 property owners are still negotiating with the city for what they feel is a fair price for their property.

But the eight holdouts on the road route are now being classed in the emergency bracket.

If the road project is to start on schedule in June agreements with the hold-outs must be reached by early May in order for demolition work to proceed.

But even if agreements can be reached with the property owners the problem of what to do with temporary residents will remain until new homes are available.

And those headaches are only minor compared to the one facing city hall negotiators as they get down to cases with the hold-out property owners.

The original assessments of fair market value for the properties involved were made close to two years ago. During the past two years property values have jumped around 30 per cent.

They Face Cleft-Stick Decision

When the original assessments were made of the entire area the land prices were checked and approved by senior partner in the project, Canada Mortgage and Housing Corporation. Not only did they approve the prices but they also stipulated that they were maximums.

City officials are now faced with a cleft-stick decision. Whichever way they move they face severe criticism.

If they use their powers of expropriation they face a court decision which will undoubtedly order payment at the going market rate rather than the rate established two years ago.

If they arrive at individual agreements with the holdout property owners they find themselves in the position of actually penalizing the people who agreed to the prices established two years ago.

Either way the city is faced with raising the extra money to meet the legitimate demands of the remaining property owners.

And either way they face the chargrin of the property owners who settled for the first offers and now realize that their early settlement cost money.

Who and what caused the present impasse?

City council because it refused to put cold hard business practice before its treatment of people.

The city could have invoked expropriation proceedings against any of the property owners at any time during the past two years. But, reluctant to force people from old homes to make way for new, the city chose the softer path of negotiation.

It could prove a costly decision before the year is out. In addition there is little doubt that eventually city officials will have to come face to face with the issue that they have carefully avoided for so long: expropriation.

City manager Dennis Young insists that the problems are not as serious as indicated.

But when pressed he admits the city will have to pass "appropriate expropriation bylaws by the end of May in order to have the machinery ready if and when it is needed."

"But," he adds quickly, "I am sure that we shall not need to expropriate. The property owners remaining in the Rose-Blanshard scheme area are not being unreasonable. In many cases the social aspects of the problem justify their stand."

In other words he remains confident the problems can still be solved by negotiation.

Other city officials do not agree. They foresee a continuing stall until court action finally pulls the plug and forces decisions.

Man Pays $300 Fine For Impaired Driving

Wayne Repay, HMCS Saskatchewan, was fined $300 in central court today for impaired driving.

Court was told Repay was the driver of a car which struck a parked vehicle and skidded into a tree on Admirals Road early February 4.

MAN TRIED TO REPAY

A man told central court today he tried to make restitution for three worthless cheques, but the company involved refused.

Erling Ellingsen, of North Surrey, pleaded guilty to three counts of obtaining cash by false pretences.

Court was told he cashed three worthless cheques at Eaton's, one on Nov. 13 for $25; one on Nov. 14 for $100, and one on Nov. 20 for $80.

Magistrate Byers remanded Ellingsen to Feb. 15 for presentence report.

635 HOURS

Air Search For Trio Suspended

The search for three men missing since Jan. 8 on a flight from Vancouver to Edmonton has been suspended.

The hunt for Reginald Thurber, 3118 Westdowne and Harvey Dishaw, 1310 Manor, and Burnaby pilot Gary Foslien, 20, was halted late Tuesday night.

Mr. Thurber was with the provincial highways department until 1955, when he founded the firm of R. C. Thurber and Associates. Mr. Dishaw, an expert in aerial photography, joined the firm two years ago.

A spokesman for the Rescue Co-ordination Centre in Vancouver said, "The search will be resumed if there is any indication of new evidence that, up until now, has not been thoroughly investigated."

INTENSE HUNT

Although adverse weather conditions hampered the search since the beginning, the flight route the missing Cessna took and extensive fringe areas have been methodically searched, some of them many times, Rescue Centre reported. The more rugged terrain has been extensivly photographed.

Heavy snow fell in the mountainous region near the Continental Divide in one week of the search. Low cloud formations and severe air turbulence were present most of the time.

Despite the bad weather, air force and civilian planes have flown a total of 635.5 hours, covering over 84,000 square miles.

19 PLANES

At the height of the operation there were 19 military and civilian aircraft in the air at one time.

A search headquarters was set up at Penticton. It was manned by Captain Jack Crawford of the search and rescue flight at C.F.B. Comox and Captain Steve Brodie and Corporal Jack Garbutt of the Rescue Co-ordination Centre in Vancouver.

Mr. Thurber's wife, Margaret, and three children, live here as well as Mr. Dishaw's wife, Hazel, and two children.

Q. What is the origin of the Manx cat; and how come they haven't any tails—a real Manx cat is absolutely tailless, not even a stub? C.J.K.

A. The animal originated on the British Isle of Man, according to a local breeder of the animal. The lack of a tail is due to a genetic factor in the development of the Manx, which was cut off from all other varieties of the feline family.

Q. My birthday is on Feb. 20; I would like to know the famous people born or who died on this date. M.B.

A. Dutch philosopher Baruch Spinoza died on that date in 1677; Harry Geisel, umpire in the American League, and Admiral Chester Nimitz, admiral of the U.S. Pacific Fleet during the Second World War, also died on that day in 1966. Princess Louise, Duchess of Fife, was born Feb. 20, 1867.

Lips Need Protection From Wind and Cold

By Penny Saver

Spring must be on its way at last. True, I was too busy to take the traditional groundhog test this year, but the last few days with their mixture of sun and shower have convinced me that winter must be nearly over. Spring and pre-spring weather has its disadvantages, though. I have started more than one day by scraping heavy frost off my windshield so that I can see and finished it by carrying the heavy coat that the morning demanded through the balmy afternoon sunlight. Sunday I began a walk in bright sunlight, only to be caught in a heavy shower and return again with the sun drying my dripping hair. These sudden changes in weather are hard on my complexion as I find it difficult to decide on the appropriate protection. Most of my problems can be solved as they appear but I have been battling a persistent case of chapped lips that wants to get worse before it gets better.

I have found a preparation that seems to work for me, temporarily at least. This is an antiseptic stick that brings immediate comfort to chapped and cracked lips. It comes in a lipstick-sized package that will slip easily into either purse or pocket. The antiseptic qualities keep minor infections from the cracks caused by drying winds and cold temperatures that make them worse. Since my case of chapped lips went hand in hand with a slight cold and resulting fever I was glad to find this product when I did. The regular price of this lip balm is 59 cents a stick.

While I was buying lip balm for myself I saw a product that I thought might help my teen-age son. He has just reached the acne age and since his sister had quite a bit of trouble with this problem, I am always on the lookout for something newer and, I hope, better. This product, which won't of course have been given a true testing for quite a while, is a new product brought out by a well-established firm. It is a medicated blemish therapy that helps to clear and conceal blemishes without overdrying. This sounds like just the thing for my son and I am hoping it will work well with his type of skin problem. A bottle of this product is 98 cents.

My attention was caught by an aerosol breath freshener. This product, which I understood to be fairly new, is small enough to fit easily in a purse so it will be handy whenever you need it. A bottle that costs $1.19 gives 200 sprays.

In a quite different line, but just as useful in this uncertain weather, are rubberized cotton tote bags. These are smaller than a shopping bag and are perfect for the children's books. The girls love them, too, because they are in bright colors with attractive felt appliques. They have sturdy handles for easy carrying. Each tote bag is 98 cents.

Please call me at 382-3131 if you would like to know where I shopped.

WHY GROW OLD?

By JOSEPHINE LOWMAN

She Was Doing Push-Ups

Let me tell you some fascinating things about that attractive and interesting young woman, Jane Marsh. You probably remember that she made worldwide headlines in 1965 when she won first prize in the singer's division of the famous Tchaikovsky Competition in Moscow. That was the first time there had been a singer's division. Some years ago the piano division catapulted Van Cliburn to fame.

Lowman

Since then Jane, a tall, blue-eyed, honey-blonde, has scored in concerts and recitals, and successful American operatic debut in the San Francisco Opera as Pamina in Mozart's "The Magic Flute."

Now gather around! Long before setting her sights on a singing career she had given evidence that she is likely to be a winner in whatever she undertakes.

As a high school swimmer in her native California she had been outstanding enough to rate an invitation to train for the Olympics. However, she declined this because it would be so time-consuming that there would be no time left for riding, her first love, and a sport in which she had won numerous prizes at horse shows and rodeos.

Obviously, this is a girl who enjoys physical activity. More surprising, she understands the value of exercise and is most observant. Jane concedes that it is not unusual for younger people to enjoy sports like she does, but she has noticed that as folks grow older and responsibilities pile up they become more sedentary.

She says she has noticed that those who continue to enjoy sports and games all their lives are the ones who not only look the best as time goes on, but seem to have the most fun and the widest circle of acquaintances.

She said, "It's not that I think physical activity is good for everything except the barber's itch, although it probably is, it's that it seems to lead those who practise it into situations which are challenging and stimulating, and to offer new friends. All that makes them think and feel young as well as look young."

Moscow photographers were delighted to discovered Jane doing push-ups in her dressing room, concert gown and all, just before the final round of the competition. She explained, "It relaxes me."

A New You

by Emily Wilkens

DEAR EMILY WILKENS

DOWN WITH BROWN SPOTS

I follow your column closely and enjoy reading your advice. I thought perhaps you'd be able to help me, too. My skin is very dry and recently I've noticed a couple of brown spots on my face. I have read that a particular well-advertised cream would remove them. Is this correct? I would also like to know if cocoa butter is good for wrinkles. Thanks.

M. F.

Some of the commercial bleach creams may be effective for removing brown spots but the only way you can find out if they'll perform for you is to try them on your skin. I feel that nightly applications of castor oil may produce the desired results. (Be sure to get the odorless variety.)

I was pleased that you mentioned cocoa butter. I personally consider this an excellent lubricant for dry skin. True, you may smell like a delicious chocolate bar—but it will definitely be helpful in keeping your wrinkles in "line."

'KEYS' THAT PLEASE

I was happy to note your comments regarding good manners in a recent column, especially the emphasis on saying "please" and "thank you." I hope people who usually and deliberately avoid those words will not only read the column but heed it, too. I certainly enjoy reading all the beauty advice but I keep hoping you'll be able to write about etiquette at least once a week.

J. S.

Thank you, J. S. Part of being beautifully charming and charmingly beautiful is to pay as much attention to your manners as you do to your makeup. I've always found that a smile on your face, a smile in your voice, and the words "please" and "thank you" are four magic little keys that definitely can open innumerable doors to happiness.

TIME TAMER

I'm in my late 30s and beginning to have bags under my eyes; my neck is starting to show age as well. Is there an exercise I can do to strengthen my neck muscles and, also, what can I do for that baggy look under my eyes?

Mrs. S. K.

You can help keep time away from your doorstep by employing proper exercise and lubrication to those first-to-age areas. Apply my favorite castor oil or, if you prefer, hormone cream (never more than the directions specify) to your neck and lightly under your eyes. Prop an ironing board against a bed in the beauty angle with feet 12 to 15 inches higher than your head (if you don't own a ready-made beauty board). Lie down and relax, then raise your head and point your chin toward the ceiling and hold this stretch for a count of 50. Then relax head and neck. Repeat exercise two or three times.

Complete the treatment by blotting your neck and under your eyes with a soft tissue. Finally, apply cold, cold applications of water to the eye area. Incidentally, never ever leave cream on under your eyes for more than 10 minutes and never while you sleep. This can frequently result in additional under-eye puffiness.

REACH FOR BLEACH

A few weeks ago you mentioned lightening facial hair with a packaged bleach available in drug stores. Can you tell me what to ask for?

A. L.

Two brands that many of my readers find non-irritating and effective are available in most areas. Try Nestle-Lite or Aimee. If your druggist doesn't carry either, ask him to order them for you.

Lifts Faces Out Of Lines and Wrinkles

Most mothers, of any age, now can know the thrill of a 2nd Debut by letting an amazing discovery lift their faces out of the aging maze of lines and wrinkles at home the new easy way. It's the Wiesbaden Discovery called CEF 600 and 1200 double strength blended into the new skin lotion called 2nd Debut. Moisture is carried under the wrinkled skin layers to push up and out. Once again skin is smooth, soft and so much younger looking most mothers call it a 2nd Debut. Most drug and department stores feature 2nd Debut. Results are almost immediate.

DEAR ABBY . . .

Long on Dollars, Short on Sense

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: I am dating a gentleman who is quite well-to-do, but he has a thing about money. He's not really cheap or anything like that, but he always makes sure I know how much he spends on me.

For instance, he gave me a nice Christmas present, but afterwards he said, "You know, your gift cost me $75?" And if he takes me to dinner and a movie, he later says, "Would you believe that evening set me back $30?'"

I enjoy this man's company, Abby, but his always bringing up money makes me feel uncomfortable. My father says he will make a good husband. My mother says he won't. What do you say?

DIANE

DEAR DIANE: I say that a man who makes you feel "uncomfortable" about money when he's courting you will make you feel miserable about money if you marry him. He may be long on dollars, but he sounds short on sense.

DEAR ABBY: My husband is in business in another town, which is about a two-hour drive from here, so he comes home only on week-ends.

Everything was working out fine until about six months ago when he started bringing me "presents." You see, during the week my husband stays at a trailer court, which is located near the city dump, so every time he comes home he has the trunk of his car filled with junk he's picked up from the dump.

Last week he brought home some moldy shower curtains, hard paint brushes, some rusty nails, and old rags. And Abby, he puts all this stuff in our basement!

If I try to throw anything out there's a big fight. We live in a new home, and I want it to look nice. I never had a moth before, but now I am seeing spiders in my basement and even silver fish!

I am so disgusted, I am ready to give him the whole house for his junk and move out. We own four other houses and have no money worries, but I can't take this. What should I do?

FED UP

DEAR FED UP: Madame, do you need me to tell you that your husband is not behaving in a normal manner? The man could be mentally disturbed. Trick him, trap him, or tranquilize him into seeing his physician. And fast!

Troubled? Write to Abby, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Calif. 90069. For a personal reply, enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Strong ICC Patrol In Cambodia Vetoed

WARSAW (AP) — Poland has reported it has rejected suggestions on strengthening the policing role of the International Control Commission along Cambodia's border with South Vietnam because the action would have violated Cambodia's sovereign rights.

Trybuna Ludu, organ of the ruling Communist party, says "the crux in Cambodia is not the strengthening of the commission or the widening of its activities but a United States stop ... to violating the sovereignty, neutrality and integrity of the frontiers of this state."

Zycie Warszawy, a government-controlled newspaper, say the ICC "can obviously not undertake the task of protecting the Cambodian border, because this would exceed its possibilities, its rights and would mean an invasion into the range of sovereign rights of Cambodia."

Both newspapers say Poland is and has been executing its obligations on the commission contrary to "all groundless insinuations" from the West. Trybuna Ludu criticizes the American press for not publicizing instances where the commission, investigating "alleged infiltration," does not turn up any evidence."

The ICC, comprised of Canada, India and Poland, was set up by the Geneva Conference of 1954 to police border violations in Indochina.

The United States contends Communist forces are using Cambodian border jungles as a base from which to strike South Vietnamese targets.

An American offer in December to provide the ICC with helicopters as a means of beefing up its watchdog role was rejected by the Soviet Union, co-chairman with Britain of the Geneva Conference, and Poland.

VANCOUVER (CP) — Provincial government conciliation officer George Carmichael has been named to conciliate in the salary dispute between British Columbia Hospitals Association and the Registered Nurses' Association of B.C.

B.C. Residents Offer Hearts for Transplants

The British Columbia Heart Foundation is feeling the effect of recent world attention to heart transplants.

"The foundation receives daily telephone calls from people wondering how to donate their hearts," said A. E. Saxton, B.C. chairman of the Heart Fund campaign.

Mr. Saxton, here from Vancouver for a campaign kick-off luncheon at Imperial Inn Tuesady, said British Columbia researchers and heart specialists have not yet moved into the field of transplants.

But he was gratified that people showed such great concern for the subject of heart ailments.

Dr. John Osborne, head of the department of cardiology at Vancouver General Hospital, said in cities where transplants have been attempted it was only after years of research. And this research has been attempted only in specific hospitals.

Dr. Osborne said studies by heart specialists in this province have been in the field of growing heart tissue cultures and examining the effect of various drugs on heart cells.

The studies might ultimately lead to control of abnormal heart rhythms, he said.

He doubted the value of experts here duplicating a field of research already being widely studied in other areas.

The reason heart transplants were tried in so many differing localities simultaneously was that each of these locales had done earlier experimentation.

Each was waiting for the other, "like a bunch of boys standing shivering at a pool." When somebody jumps in the rest follow.

RESEARCH COSTLY

Dr. Osborne pointed out that all research is expensive "but it's a lot more expensive if you don't do it."

This theme was elaborated in the remarks of Lieut.-Gov. G. R. Pearkes who acknowledged the loss of two friends this week due to heart failures. Reminding his audience that heart disease remains the greatest killer in the province, he said however:

"We have every reason to be encouraged. Our doctors and scientists are finding the way of solving these problems."

The lieutenant-governor said he wished the heart fund every success and he believed that the people of B.C. are looking forward to helping the campaign.

Public support to the heart campaign during the past 11 years has greatly aided diagnosis and treatment of heart and blood vessel diseases.

CURES CLAIMED

Campaign literature claims such research has resulted in the cure of eight out of 10 children born with deformed hearts, the early detection of rheumatic heart disease, the control of high blood pressure with new drugs and the return of four out of five heart attack victims to their work.

February is Heart Month throughout Canada. The national objective is $1,975,900 and the B.C. objective is $335,000, to be used primarily for research.

Heart Sunday is Feb. 25 when a house-to-house canvass will be held between 1 and 4 p.m. Vancouver Island campaign chairman is J. Courtney Haddock.

Hospitals Need 'Victims'

Victoria's hospitals are looking for disaster victims ... but healthy ones.

They'll even offer a course in how to fake a broken bone, or act like a victim of shock.

Why are they looking for pseudo-sufferers of lacerations, breaks and burns? For a combined disaster drill involving Royal Jubilee, St. Joseph's, Rest Haven and Veteran's hospitals, sometime in the spring.

Announcing plans for the drill Tuesday, Royal Jubilee said the exercise would require "at least 150 casualties."

There are 10 casualty simulators in Victoria now, and they want another 25. So Royal Jubilee is offering a course at the hospital in March.

The course will be offered in three-hour segments over six nights. Anyone interested can contact Mrs. R. Pethick at locals 202 or 203 at Royal Jubilee.

SOLVING metallurgical problems by use of the ion microprobe will be topic of Dr. Frank Satkiewicz, Feb. 14, when he speaks to Island chapter of American Society for Metals. A graduate of Northeastern University, Dr. Satkiewicz worked in industry for many years, studied at MIT for his doctorate in chemistry. Meeting at 8 p.m. at the Dockyard Officer's Club.

MOTORISTS TRAVELLING Up-Island in the near future will be faced with standardized road signs from Victoria to the end of the road. John Magi is one of the sign-design crew rapidly whipping into shape the latest signs which eventually will be the same from one end of Canada to the other. 95% OCCUPANCY

Backlog Reduced At New Hospital

DUNCAN—Private rooms and the maternity wing are being utilized at the new Cowichan district hospital to try and cope with a backlog of surgery patients.

But administrator Ken Noton said Tuesday the situation is improving.

On Dec. 31 the 126-bed hospital had to re-book 23 surgery cases. On Tuesday this was cut to three.

Mr. Noton said hospital occupancy has been running as high as 90 to 95 per cent since before Christmas.

"We realize this procedure of having to rebook surgery is a matter of concern to the public and we are doing everything we can to correct it.

"We are trying to accommodate the surgery as it is booked."

Mr. Noton said the staff is adapting well to the hospital which opened in November.

QUESTIONNAIRES

In trying to iron out all the initial problems of going into the $4,650,000 building the administrator and his staff are seeking the co-operation of the patients.

Periodically the patients are asked to complete a questionnaire which invites criticism, suggestions and recommendations.

Complaint heard most often is closed hospital windows.

Mr. Noton said it will take another three months before the air-conditioning plant can be completely checked. He agreed that parts of the hospital are overheated.

Patients are complaining about the length of the visiting hours.

Mr. Noton said: "We opened up the visiting hours so people could come at a time which best suited them, but not to stay at the patient's bedside for two hours.

"Patients find this exhausting and if the public doesn't change its habits we will have to change the visiting hours."

He was asked about nurses' complaints regarding the amount of walking to be done and said: "The plans of the building are living up to our expectations.

"You can't expect not to require to walk further when the patients are in larger, better accommodation.

SATISFIED

"But the last time we had meetings with department heads and charge nurses they were happy with the staff situation."

Mr. Noton said the main centres of operation of the hospital are all situated near one of the three main elevators.

He admitted the nursing stations are much further away from the patients' beds in the new hospital.

There has on the other hand been a 30 to 40 per cent increase in staff since the move from the old King's Daughters' Hospital.

Matron Miss Alberta Jennings said 93 positions are maintained now compared to 70 in the old hospital. This total includes registered nurses, practical nurses, ward aides and orderlies.

The hospital board will reply to a North Cowichan council inquiry that it will not be opening board meetings to the public.

Mr. Noton said the board is following the advice of the B.C. Hospital Insurance Service and the B.C. Hospitals' Association.

He quoted the BCHIS as referring to "the erroneous assumption that because the hospital is a "public" institution the public is entitled to know all."

The BCHIS said a hospital meets its responsibilities in informing the public of its affairs when reports are made to the annual meeting of the governing society.

The annual general meeting of Cowichan Hospital Association is scheduled for Feb. 28.

Dr. G. J. Philippson and Dr. Gordon Heydon, both of Chemainus, have been appointed to the associate medical staff of Cowichan District Hospital.

This brings the medical staff to 20 plus eight consultants.

HERRING CLOSURE ORDERED

VANCOUVER (CP) — The federal fisheries department has closed the west coast of Vancouver Island and the northern section of the B.C. coast to herring fishing, area director Blake Campbell said Tuesday.

Mr. Campbell said herring fishing will continue to remain open along the central coast and Queen Charlotte Islands sections until the department has examined catches.

He said the closure to the Vancouver Island northern sections went into effect Monday.

These areas and those still open were reopened Jan. 7 after being closed as a conservation measure.

Fisheries department inspectors are assessing the size of fish as the loads come in from coastal waters, said Mr. Campbell.

FULL CLOSING

He was commenting on a statement Monday by Wayne Patterson, a spokesman for the United Fishermen and Allied Workes' union, who called for complete closing of the B.C. coast to herring fishermen.

Mr. Campbell said it still is too early to judge the catches in the central and Queen Charlotte areas. But in previous years, the fishing improved in February and March.

Mr. Patterson said there is no evidence of sufficient herring stock to justify the department's order opening herring fishing last Jan. 7. He said the action "threatens a resource in a state of crisis" and reiterated earlier union demands that the federal authorities institute an immediate total closure for the remainder of the 1967-68 season.

Overpasses Requested

DUNCAN — Five overpasses in Cowichan School District will be requested as part of a new safety drive.

Trustee Jack Efford said over or underpasses will be asked at the Trans-Canada Highway intersection with Sprott Road, three miles north of Duncan; the highway and James Street in the city; the highway and Koksilah School; highway and Mill Bay Road; and Cowichan Lake Road at the intersection with Somenos and Sherman.

Trustee Efford said the highways department will also be asked for amber flashing lights at crosswalks.

He said: "We are making a strong effort to make travelling to school safer."

Both the highways department and North Cowichan council will be asked to consider providing bus-loading zones whenever now road work is undertaken.

Trustee Efford said a total of 51 loading zones is required in the district.

CHARGE LAID AFTER FATAL CAR CRASH

NANAIMO—Roderick McDowell of Duncan reserved plea in Nanaimo police court Tuesday when charged with driving on the wrong side of the road last Oct. 4.

He was remanded until Friday, March 1.

McDowell's car was involved in a head-on collision on McKay Lake Road, south of Nanaimo, in which Charles Hayward (Ian) Butt, 24, of Victoria was killed.

Mr. Butt had been working at Port Alberni.

Action Needed 'Very Quickly' On Patricia Bay

Quick action on widening the Patricia Bay Highway and construction of the Glendale treatment centre for retarded children was asked in the legislature Tuesday by John Tisdalle (SC — Saanich and the Islands).

"We need to do something very quickly about the Pat Bay Highway," he said, mentioning a recent increase in accidents on the road.

He also said improvements are needed to the Trans-Canada Highway, particulary as far as Goldstream.

Mr. Tisdalle said he is disappointed at the slow progress on the Glendale centre at Royal Oak but warned the government against building another "institution."

"Don't trap the children in a big building," he said, suggesting a cottage-type arrangement and a more relaxed atmosphere than prison-like institutions of old.

He expressed sympathy with Vancouver Island residents who have been travelling to Woodlands for years to visit children or relatives with the "undue comfort" that a centre would soon be built on the island.

Mr. Tisdalle said some of the hospital problems facing the province today because of a money shortage could be blamed on a mistake made by the government in an earlier session when it rejected opposition demands for a toll on the Deas Island Tunnel.

"I have had second thoughts on that," he said. "We would have been better off if we had listened to the opposition."

ALL THOSE KNICK-KNACKS!

After Voodoo Booboo Comes $4,000 Boohoo

By JIM HUME

Well, it seemed like a good idea at the time.

But after the Canadian Armed Forces base at Comox got the bill for shattered glass and broken knick-knacks, acting commander Lieut.-Col. C. W. Steacy is wondering if a farewell salute to the RCAF last Thursday was really worthwhile.

A night-fighting Voodoo caused the trouble when it made a transonic-speed low-level midnight pass over the Comox air base.

It was impressive. . . .

. . . Until the sonic boom accompanying the aircraft rippled across the base, punched out picture windows, shook ornaments loose from shelves and rattled open many a tight-shut door.

●

"It was," said Lieut.-Col. Steacy this morning, "a very narrow swath affecting only 17 or 18 houses."

How come, then, the bill is for $4,000?

"Yes," said the commanding officer. "Well, unfortunately the windows were the big ones. And we also have quite a few claims, I don't know how many, for knick-knacks which fell from shelves."

Was it an impromptu farewell or was it a routine training flight?

"An investigation is being conducted," replied Lieut.-Col. Steacy, struggling to get used to the new rank given him when the air force became part of the unified command.

And who will pay the bill? The pilot of the window-smashing Voodoo? The defunct air force or the Canadian Armed Forces?

"That hasn't been decided. As I said, the entire matter is under investigation."

How about the nearby neighbors, are they angry?

"Oh, no. It was quite exciting for them. They were all in bed asleep. Only a very narrow strip was affected you know."

●

And the pilot? Disciplined or about to be?

"That's under investigation, too."

That's the way it stands in Comox today with only one solid fact emerging: when the air force gives a death-rattle, it's long remembered.

Hospital Caught in Bind Waiting for Gov't to Pay

CAMPBELL RIVER—The district hospital's extended care unit should be renamed the extended concern unit.

The first sign of a headache started six months ago when the provincial government was slow in paying its share of building costs and contractor George Wheaton of Victoria carried the project for several months.

Now the hospital is caught in a situation which is causing recurring dizzy spells.

The provincial government hasn't paid its share of building costs for the $1,392,760 project since last October. The outstanding bill is $108,000.

* * *

The hospital is caught in the transitional period between the old system of the Hospital Improvement District and the newly formed Comox Strathcona Regional Hospital District.

"It's a unique situation," said hospital administrator Arthur Lightfoot.

"We're the only hospital in the province that has a major construction program going under the old system and we're caught in the middle."

The hospital borrowed $734,296 from the bank—its share of the building costs, and is using the balance of that money to pay the contractor. They believe there'll be enough money to keep going until the regional board is fully operational.

Is there any guarantee that the provincial government will live up to its financial commitment under the new system?

"That's one of the problems which will face the regional hospital board when they meet this month," replied Mr. Lightfoot.

* * *

It is believed the hospital district will be fully responsible for marketing the $1,392,760 worth of debentures.

The district will then recover 60 per cent of building costs and one-third of the equipment costs from the provincial government.

The district will be responsible for the balance.

Will the government guarantee the bonds? What interest rate do they anticipate on the open market?

"Those are two questions which we might have answers for after the next meeting of the district," replied Mr. Lightfoot as he reached for his aspirin bottle.

28-21 VOTE

No-Confidence Motion Lost

By BRUCE YEMEN

A non-confidence motion charging the provincial government with failure to meet "recurring crises in education which deny vital school facilities for the children of our province" was defeated in the Legislature Tuesday.

The motion, in the form of an amendment to the throne speech acceptance motion, was defeated 28-21, government against opposition, after a three-hour debate involving 17 members.

It was the third non-confidence motion of the session.

Before the debate ended Opposition Leader Strachan had called the government "deaf, dumb and blind" and Education Minister Peterson had called him "a wild man," reviving an old Socred taunt.

Opposition members charged that 15,000 children will be on swing-shift classes in September if the school construction "freeze" is not ended immediately.

FREEZE DENIED

Mr. Peterson denied there is a freeze and took issue with the 15,000 figure.

"I am somewhat amazed by the antics and tactics of the socialist opposition and socialist Liberals," he said. "Why they couldn't wait for the budget debate I'll never know."

He accused the opposition of waiting until the minister of finance (Premier Benett) was away before raising the issue.

"The public should know about these tactics," he said.

David Stupich (NDP—Nanaimo) said later that if members raised important issues only when the premier was in his chair they wouldn't have much chance to speak.

George Mussallem (SC—Dewdney), commenting on opposition warnings about swing-shifts in the schools, asked:

SHIFTS DON'T HURT

"What's wrong with swing shifts? Swing shifts never hurt anyone."

He said industry gladly went on shifts when there were too many customers and suggested summer use of schools as well.

Alan Macfarlane (L—Oak Bay) followed with an attack on "the swing-shift speaker for the shiftless government" and said Greater Victoria will be 28 classrooms short by fall if government approval for school construction was held up any longer.

Ernest Hall (NDP—Surrey) who moved the motion of non-confidence, criticized content of school texts as outdated and later was supported by Gordon Dowding (NDP—Burnaby Edmonds) who said there was a textbook in B.C. schools which predicted that jet propulsion would eventually be of use in air travel.

Eileen Dailly (NDP—Burnaby North) seconded the motion and charged the government is eliminating "frills" that are in fact essentials.

She included gymnasiums, activity rooms, art and music rooms in her list and criticized the "pass and fail" concept of B.C. schools.

Mr. Peterson said "I have never expressed complete satisfaction" with the province's achievements in education but said there is reason for pride in what has been achieved. He said he is confident "we can save money on school construction."

Tom Berger (NDP—Vancouver-Burrard) said that 10 cents saved now would cost a dollar tomorrow because of rising construction costs.

In the House

. . . And So It Goes

Tisdalle: "You know they (the public) pay us to talk here and I'm going to give them their money's worth."

Robert Williams: "There isn't enough time."

★ ★ ★

Perrault: "The Social Credit government is like a ship — it toots the loudest in a fog."

★ ★ ★

Peterson: "Name one school that has no books."

Dowding: "Oh, they all have a book. Like this government, some even own two books . . ."

Bruch: "The conference (in Ottawa) is following its usual course . . . the spoiled child starts stamping his feet."

An opposition voice: "That's no way to talk about Premier Bennett."

★ ★ ★

Barrett: "I have here a letter dated Feb. 5, 1968."

Perrault: "Shocking."

'No Broadcast Rule Means Censorship'

The Social Credit government is censoring news reports out of the legislature by refusing permission to broadcast and televise house proceedings, a Liberal member charged Tuesday.

Barrie Clark (L—North Vancouver Seymour), a Vancouver broadcaster, said that on opening days of the session and on budget day press cameras and broadcast lines are permitted in the legislative chamber.

"Where are the cameras and broadcast lines when the leaders of the two opposition parties speak?" Mr. Clark asked.

Surely it is the right of the press, the news media, to determine what events of this House they deem worth reporting, surely it is the right of the press, the news media, to determine what events of this House they deem worthy of broadcasting . . . filming or telecasting."

LAW-LAID DOWN

He said the government tells the people of the province what they shall see and hear, refusing live broadcasting of opposition speeches yet spending $20,000 to distribute the premier's budget speech in printed form.

Mr. Clark promised to bring in this session a broadcasting bill, which would permit live broadcasting and televising of House proceedings. The bill was defeated last year.

Bishop's Position Now Open

The structural administration of Notre Dame University in Nelson will be revised under a bill introduced into the legislatrue Tuesday by Educaton Minister Peterson.

The bill, given first reading, provides for election by convocation of the university chancellor, a position now held by the Roman Catholic Bishop of the diocese of Nelson.

The bishop will continue as chancellor until elections are held.

Under terms of the bill, faculty members and all graduates and holders of honorary degrees will be among those in the convocation.

The bill also gives statutory recognition to the convocation and modifies the composition of the board of governors, the advisory board and the university council.

Survivor on Raft

REYKJAVIK, Iceland (Reuters)—A survivor from the 659-ton British trawler Ross Cleveland, which sank off northwest Iceland Sunday night, was found Tuesday in a rubber life raft with two dead companions.

Gaglardi Denies Mayor's Story On Land Deal

Highways Minister Gaglardi denied Tuesday he urged Kamloops city council to approve a land project involving one of his sons.

But he confirmed a statement by Mayor Peter Wing of Kamloops that he had attended a closed meeting of the city council last November dealing with the project at the Merritt junction of the Trans-Canada Highway south of Kamloops.

Mayor Wing, in Ottawa as part of B.C.'s delegation to the constitutional conference, said by phone the highways minister had urged approval of the development.

"What I did," said Mr. Gaglardi in an interview, "was to be present at the meeting stating to the municipal body what part the highways department had to play in the development."

"I said that as far as we were concerned, as a department, that we had no objection."

Mayor Wing was quoted as seeing nothing wrong with the minister's presence at the meeting to discuss the 303-acre land parcel bought for $200,000 last year from an estate.

MINISTER EXECUTOR

Mr. Gaglardi was one of three executors of the estate.

Mr. Gaglardi said he couldn't remember if either of his sons Bill or Bob, real estate developers, had been at the meeting.

The minister said that his sons run their own businesses and as real estate men they might be involved in dozens of developments in the province.

But he denied it was correct to call them "the developers" of the project.

Alex Macdonald (NDP—Vancouver East) said in the legislature Friday that the Merritt junction project was an example of land development in which highway access proved lucrative to speculators.

Mr. Gaglardi said he was able to assure the city council the project was acceptable to the department because no accesses to the highway were involved.

NO DIFFERENT

"This development was in keeping with all other such developments in the province," he said.

Asked why he attended the meeting, Mr. Gaglardi said, "Because I am the minister of highways and I just happened to be in town, that's all.

"There was no other reason than that," he said, adding that he went "instead of one of my men."

The minister said the development received no special treatment by the department—it had access only to a frontage road (Merrit Road).

"What in the name of common sense is all this furore about?" he asked.

"This is a figment of somebody's imagination to say access was given," said the minister.

NO CHANGES

He added that the land in question had been there "for at least 5,000 years" and the highway for at least 10 years with no change in it except for a bypass planned some distance away.

Referring to Mr. Macdonald's charge that "roadrunners" had been acquiring land at highway interections before the highway arrived, Mr. Gaglardi said, If you can find one of these roadrunners . . . for God's sake send him to me."

"If there's anyone in my department leaking information I want to know who it is."

Mr. Gaglardi said it "a big joke" to say that speculators are making millions of dollars on highway land development. If there was so much money to be made here we wouldn't be able to keep out the people from California," he said.

Hydro Union Wants 'Right to Strike'

A B.C. Hydro workers union spokesman says Labor Minister Leslie Peterson has promised to consider a union request for restoration of a right to strike.

Charles Stewart, secretary of the Joint Council of B.C. Hydro Unions, said in an interview Tuesday that "the essence of the minister's remarks was that he would give serious consideration to our submission."

Council representatives met with Mr. Peterson for 35 minutes and presented a brief containing the request for full collective bargaining rights, including the right to strike.

The 6,000 workers represented by the council are bound by conciliation board rulings. They lost the right to strike when B.C. Hydro, a government agency, took over the private B.C. Electric Co.

OKANAGAN UNIVERSITY PLAN UNREALISTIC SAYS MLA

An opposition bill to establish a university in the Okanagan was "unrealistic" and confusing to the people concerned, Pat Jordan, minister without portfolio, told the legislature Tuesday.

Mrs. Jordan, member for North Okanagan, said the bill introduced by Dr. Pat McGeer (L — Vancouver Point Grey) was unrealistic "when one studies the population and educational figures of this college region."

Dr. McGeer's bill last year called for establishment of a four-year university, costs paid by the federal and provincial governments. The provincial government and the report by Dr. John B. Macdonald, former president of the University of B.C., recommend establishment of a regional college, payable under a cost sharing agreement between governments and regional taxpayers.

LAND PROBLEM

Mrs. Jordan said the regional college program was progressing with problems facing college planners in leasing suitable land and involving Penticton.

"On top of these contentious issues a bill was introduced into the house which was in fact designed to do nothing more than to confuse the people and add the problem of politics," she said.

She said she was astonished and disillusioned that Dr. McGeer would take it upon himself to tell the people of the valley "what fools they were to build a regional college."

She said the people of the Okanagan are capable of working out their own solutions "providing the press and politicians refrain from focusing undue attention on the area and its problems."

TWO NEW FERRIES ASKED BY BRUCH

The provincial government should build two new ferries on the west coast, Herb Bruch (SC—Esquimalt) said in the legislature Tuesday.

Mr. Bruch, deputy speaker of the legislature, said the projects would keep the shipbuilding industry going while workers and the industry take a hard look at themselves.

The workers are prepared to look at their industry, to cut back on featherbedding and hold to reasonable wage demands," he said.

He said the ferries would be of great use on both the Kelsey Bay - Prince Rupert run and the Vancouver Island-mainland service. He also said Vancouver Island residents deserve a better break on ferry fares.

Mr. Bruch's call for action followed sharp criticism of the federal government for failure to keep promises to provide work for shipyards on the west coast.

BROKEN PROMISES

"We wouldn't have the problem in confederation that we supposedly have today," he said if Ottawa hadn't given B.C. and other provinces "a trail of broken promises instead of a binding link."

He said Ottawa had taken provincial tax rights away during wartime and now is "dribbling them back with strings attached."

Mr. Bruch took aim on Company of Young Canadians volunteers who he said were involved in a free school in Vancouver.

He said a magazine distrubuted at the school's open house contained an obscene picture of Christ.

NDP MEMBER:

Raw Material Tax Spur To Industrial Development

A provincial industrial development corporation to give control of B.C.'s economy back to the people was urged Tuesday by David Barrett (NDP — Coquitlam).

The corporation's main goal would be to establish secondary industry, he said, proposing:

- All firms earning profits from raw material exploitation be made to pour 50 per cent of profits into the development corporation;
- Trade union members, salaried employees and professional groups contribute $2 per month and private savings be attracted into the fund.

Mr. Barrett told the legislature in the throne speech debate that "only through a publicly-owned economic power base can we truly move into an enlightened and expanded development of our province."

He called it "people-power."

He said the government had a tendency to treat corporations better than people.

The government paid $826,000 in subsidies to Consolidated Mining and Smelter since 1961 —a period in which the company's profit was $216,000,000, he said.

"Yet you can cut $6 off some poor woman's supplementary pension," he charged, accusing the government of giving "social welfare" to corporations without a means test.

He took a slap at B.C. Telephone which he said is American-controlled.

"It costs $15 for nine feet of cord for an extension," he said, inviting all members of the legislature opposed to a government takeover of the firm to stand up.

Pat McGeer (L — Vancouver-Ponin Grey) was the only member to stand.

"I expect the government to bring in the bill tomorrow," zzsaid Mr. Barrett.

He also challenged the government to advocate public ownership of the CPR following Trade and Industry Minister Loffmark's charge Friday that the railway is "strangling" western ports.

He also asked why taxpayers' money should subsidize the proposed Roberts Bank superport when private enterprise would reap a profit from it.

"Let private enterprise pay for the port," he said.

Illegitimacy Jumps

NEW YORK (Reuters) — The city health department Tuesday reported a record 16.6 per cent of the 145,342 births last year were illegitimate. The 24,074 illegitimate births were 1,360 higher than the previous year.

RCMP INVESTIGATE

Smuggled Gold Left Vancouver

VANCOUVER (CP)—A Japanese investigation into the smuggling of more than $1,000,000 worth of gold into Tokyo has spread to Vancouver.

Police in Tokyo reported Tuesday they were holding three men, one a representative of Canadian Duralube Ltd., which has an office here.

He was identified as Rudolph Charvaz, 44. of Riverside, Calif. The others were Bev Goorevich, 67, president of American Continental Co. of Japan, and David Ventua, 48, of Paris.

RCMP here, mounting an investigation at this end, say part of $1,100 000 worth of gold plate seized in Japan was found in cans of lubricating grease shipped from Vancouver aboard the British freighter Brecon Beacon.

The ship was one of three searched by Tokyo police before the gold was confiscated. The other two were U.S. vessels.

Agents for the 10,000-ton Brecon Beacon, under charter to Nippon Yusen Kaisha of Japan, said Tuesday the vessel carried a shipment of lubricating grease.

A spokesman for the agents said grease from Canadian Duralube was aboard the freighter when it left here Jan. 16 bound for Yokohama. The spokesman said the freighter calls here monthly to pick up chartered tonnage and that Duralube has been shipping two-ton lots on a regular basis.

The president of Duralube is listed as Robert Bogle of Burnaby, B.C.

A Duralube representative said Tuesday night Mr. Bogle was out of town.

RCMP said there is a free market in gold in Canada, meaning it can be bought and sold without restriction. However, a permit is required to export raw gold. Police said they had no knowledge of any export permit in this case.

Japan has restrictions on the import of gold and requires special permits. Police in Tokyo said the gold sells for $35 an ounce legally but may sell for up to $100 an ounce on black markets in Japan.

Gaglardi Son Denies Involvement

KAMLOOPS (CP)—Bill Gaglardi, son of Highways Minister Phil Gaglardi, denied Tuesday that he has any connection with a controversial land development south of here.

He was commenting in an interview on allegations made in the provincial legislature by Alex Macdonald (NDP—Vancouver East) about a connection between himself and development of property bought from an estate.

Mr. Macdonald told the legislature the highways minister was an executor of the estate that sold 360 acres at the junction of the Trans-Canada and Merritt Highways.

IN BUILDING

Interviewed in a building on the development site, the young Mr. Gaglardi said: "I am in no way connected with Del Cielo (the development company named in the House).

Asked why he was in the building, with the company sign over the door, he replied:

"Well, the sign is wrong. It's even spelled wrong. I have no connection with the company."

The Kamloops telephone book lists his office at the highway junction and the building with the name over the door is all that stands there other than a gas station.

The highways minister denied earlier the statements by Mr. Macdonald, while at the same time confirming he was an executor of the estate. He also denied allegations that his son was involved with the development company.

STUDENTS SPRAYED

ALGIERS (AP) — Police sprayed violet-tinted water to identify student demonstrators Monday, then took into custody about 200 members of a group protesting the earlier arrest of their leaders. The leaders had been arrested for demonstrating against what the students said was interference in university life by Algeria's ruling National Liberation Front party.

VIOLENCE KILLED 70 PRISONERS

NEW YORK (AP) — The Times says records at the Arkansas state penitentiary since 1936 show at least 70 of the 254 deaths reported resulted from violence.

The newspaper, in a dispatch from Grady, Ark., says records show prisoners were murdered, shot "accidentally" and during what were described as escape attempts, burned to death, poisoned, drowned, run over by farm wagons, and "accidentally" electrocuted.

A substantial number of prisoners, some of them teen-agers, died from "organic heart disease," the story says. Thirteen are reported to have died of sunstroke, including four on a single day.

Thomas O. Murton, new prison superintendent who began a reform effort last month, told The Times it was a "reasonable assumption" that the available death records disguised some criminal activity.

At Cummins prison farm near Grady, three skeletons in unmarked graves were discovered last week. The state police have begun an investigation.

Murton described the penitentiary records as "cruddy," attributing the condition to "total lack of administrative skill" and the fact that "no one would record anything that would reflect negatively on the administration."

The Times also says that the prison death records "suggest the pattern of ill-treatment and brutality reported by many inmates and sustained by the findings of several official investigations."

Judge Voting Predictable According to Scalogram

TORONTO (CP) — Some judges of the Supreme Court of Canada consistently uphold and some consistently oppose the claims of taxpayers in taxation appeals, the plaintiffs in negligence appeals or the accused in criminal appeals, says an article in the Canadian Bar Review.

It reaches certain limited conclusions of what its author, Sydney R Peck, associate professor of law at Osgoode Hall here, calls judicial behaviorism.

He examined the voting pattern of 12 judges over an eight-year period, using the method of scalogram analysis developed in the United States. A scalogram is a complicated method of examining judicial decisions.

While stressing that he makes no broad conclusions about the nature of decision-making by the court, Prof. Peck says:

"An examination of the three scalograms, taken together, indicates that some justices tend to have one-sided voting patterns on more than one scale. This suggests the hypothesis that these justices pursue policy goals in more than one area of the law."

Dealing with the voting pattern of Mr. Justice Douglas Abbott, the article says.

"His voting pattern is in favor of the government in taxation appeals, of the defendant in negligence appeals and of the Crown in criminal law appeals. . . .

"The effect of his votes in negligence and taxation appeals appears to be to the satisfaction of government revenue demands, making possible the expansion of government services, but to inhibit the wide distribution of the costs of normal risks by way of private insurance.

WAS CABINET MEMBER

"With respect to his support of the government in taxation and criminal law appeals, it should be remembered that he was a member of the federal cabinet for many years."

Mr. Justice Abbott was finance minister in the Liberal government after the Second World War.

The article says the voting pattern of Mr. Justice J. R. Cartwright, now chief justice, showed him to favor taxpayers in taxation appeals, plaintiffs in negligence appeals and highly favor accused persons in criminal appeals.

The article says Mr. Justice Emmett Hall and Mr. Justice Wishart Spence resemble Mr. Justice Cartwright in their support of plaintiff's claims for compensation in negligence cases and their support of the accused in criminal cases.

"However, the voting patterns of both are neutral as between taxpayer and government."

Prof. Peck cautioned that the scalogram method has limitations. It does not include appeals in which a single judgment of the court is given or appeals in which two or more judges give separate reasons for judgment, but where all participating judges vote in the same way.

REPORTED RANGE OF 800 MILES

Soviet Refits Smaller Submarines With Nuclear Missiles

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Soviets are reported to be refitting some of their submarines with nuclear missiles capable of achieving twice the range of present weapons from submerged firing positions.

The program, to permit the Soviet G Class subs to fire their missiles from below the ocean's surface, indicates the U.S.S.R. has mastered technology pioneered with U.S. Polaris missile-firing submarines, U.S. defence department sources said.

These sources said the new missiles will have a range of about 800 miles.

Sources would not say how the U.S. learned of the G Class refit.

G Class subs make up most of Soviet submarines capable of launching ballistic missiles.

Over-all, the Soviet Union has about 350 submarines, largest sub force in the world. But most are attack submarines designed to sink shipping or enemy subs rather than to bombard hostile countries with missiles. U.S. strategists believe the missiles aboard the G Class sub are aimed against strategic objectives in the Eurasian land mass.

However, the missiles in nuclear-powered H Class subs with a range reported to be up to 3,000 miles, are believed targeted against the United States.

The G Class submarines mount three missiles in a large conning tower from which they are launched vertically.

The H Class subs also are built to launch three missiles vertically.

By comparison, the powerful nuclear-powered U.S. Polaris submarines each can eject 16 missiles that can carry nuclear warheads close to 3,000 miles away.

With 41 Polaris subs in its fleet, the United States has 656 of these missiles available for combat.

The roughly 40 Soviet missile-firing submarines mount only about 120 of these weapons, and few of them are on a par with the Polaris.

. . . HOUSING

This condition rules out surgery on her bad leg. She can hardly manage the stairs and can't cope with the streets unless by taxi, so she stays in.

The Silver Threads and the Legion keep an eye on her but nobody's been able to get the landlord to repair the crack in her window. It's been there nine years.

Her room is spotless.

"I get by. I'm too crowded, but I sit here," she says. Her major complaint is sharing the bathroom down the hall. "I need a bathroom in the worst way."

"Try and find a rest home that will take a diabetic," says Mrs. MacKenzie.

In an auto court at Colwood Mrs. MacKenzie introduced the quiet French-speaking woman who has just arrived here from a town somewhere east of Ottawa.

●

She has five children aged under 11, and a baby. The kids don't make a peep in order that the baby can sleep. Their father is a soldier soon to be discharged. Right now he's in the CFB hospital at Esquimalt and he may be there another two months.

The family could pay up to $125—if they could find a landlord who would accept six children. They were in a hotel until they found the auto court.

"The children haven't been to school since before Christmas," the woman says.

Go over to Harrison Street to visit a mother and two children in two attic rooms who share a toilet on the floor below and pay $65 a month for the privilege.

●

In the 700-block Kings there's another deserted wife with three children, in one of the aging houses soon due for wrecking in the Blanshard urban renewal program. One child has cerebral palsy. They don't know where they'll go.

On Blanshard there's another fatherless four children and their mother renting a city-owned home for $65. The warmth comes from a heater in the living room so the children sleep there rather than in the two cold bedrooms. The city can't find anything better for them.

And like many others, they're under notice to move.

There's worse—the story of the five Indian families living in one old downtown building, with broken doors and windows, all under notice to move by the end of the month and no place to go. (But that's a situation worthy of a fuller story later because some additional social problems are involved.)

●

And there are many more examples of rotten housing hidden behind the garden facade of British Columbia's capital city.

The social workers' association, the people who know about all these miseries, are going to speak out on the problem Thursday.

Social workers, dependent on government funds for their jobs, are often reluctant to make much noise as individuals.

"Remember Bridget Moran," they'll often say. She was a Prince George social worker who publicly rebelled at the lack of aid given low-income groups in B.C. She made a lot of headlines but lost her position.

●

The social workers' association can carry the ball without fear of personal martyrdom. They are staging a panel discussion at First United on the topic "Let's Solve Our Housing Problems."

Community Welfare Council, Victoria Council of Churches and Community Planning Association of Canada will send observers.

"The panel won't be open to the public but we're hoping some public meetings will come out of it," says Mrs. MacKenzie.

Coun. Mrs. Edith Gunning of Saanich, Chris Dowling of Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation, city planner Geoff Greenhalgh and Jack Rose of Victoria Labour Council will be on the panel. Somebody might get scorched.

●

As Mrs. MacKenzie says, while pointing out that she is not speaking for the panel or the associations involved, "People are so desperate to find places that will take children that they are subject to gross exploitation."

She says the conditions low-income families are forced to live in cause disasters in family life, contribute to physical and emotional illness and kill personal incentives.

There are no figures to show how widespread the problem is in Victoria but social workers say more than a third of the population of Canada is in sub-standard housing.

Public low-rent housing must be produced without delay, Mrs. MacKenzie believes.

"Even if it is initiated immediately, it probably wouldn't be available for two or three years.

"Any society that allows such a large segment of its population to live in disintegrating hovels is naive.

"Decent subsidized housing, managed effectively, could eventually reduce money spent for police, probation officers, social workers and relief agencies."

●

And she might have added, when we take children who are helpless to improve their own lot, out of such hovels, the rest of us might sleep better at nights.

$2,500 FIRE IN SAANICH

Fire at a Saanich home caused an estmimated $2,500 damage Tuesday afternoon.

No one was home when the fire started at the home of William Hodge, 3841 Douglas. The alarm was phoned in by a neighbor.

Saanich firemen were able to contain the blaze to the back porch.

$75,000 Grant Expected for New Clinic

A $250,000 drive for funds to build a Handicapped Children's Clinic will probably get a $75,000 boost from Greater Victoria municipalities.

Fund drive organizers Fred Tanner and Gordon Empey were told by the Intermunicipal Committee Tuesday their plea for funds had been well received.

Saanich Reeve Hugh Curtis asked members of the committee to return to their respective councils and ruge "the most earnest consideration" of the appeal.

The existing building used a clinic for handicapped children is described by Mr. Tanner as "crowded, hazardous" and, "it is impossible for the staff to do the best job possible for the children."

112 CHILDREN

At present the clinic is accommodating 112 children with 30 of them from Victoria, 12 from Oak Bay, 45 from Saanich and 10 from Esquimalt.

Tuesday's appeal for funds marked the first time clinic authorities have asked municipal councils for an outright cash grant.

The clinic has been in operation for 15 years.

Mr. Empey told the committee a new clinic is drastically needed.

"I think if you could visit the clinic you would soon see why we are making this appeal," he said. "We have narrow corridors crowded with handicapped children and the classrooms can only be described as grisly."

July 1 has been set as the target date for starting construction with completion scheduled for seven months later.

9 IN MEMORIAM

FUSSEY — In loving memory of our dearly beloved mother, Ethel Mae Fussey, who passed away February 6, 1954.

Gone, dear mother, gone forever,
How we miss your smiling face
But you left us to remember,
None on earth can take your place.
A happy home we once enjoyed,
How sweet the memory still
But death has left a loneliness
The world can never fill.

—Always loved, deeply missed by your daughter, sons and families.

BRIDGE LESSON

By OSWALD and JAMES JACOBY
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

Victor Mollo writes: "Few players are so often in the limelight as Giorgio Belladonna. Somehow he seems to hold the right cards at the right time when the right people are kibitzing. Examples of his dummy play have inspired countless articles, but the one which follows has not been published before. It occurred at rubber bridge.

Opening lead—♠ J

"With a sure loser in spades and another in hearts, the contract appeared to hinge on locating the queen of diamonds. What, then, was the best way to play the hand? Belladonna decided to let the opponents find the queen for him. He won the opening spade in his hand, cashed dummy's ace and king of clubs, ruffed a club, entered dummy with the ace of hearts and ruffed the last club. If East had followed to the fourth club, Belladonna would have discarded his heart, since he could not have afforded the chance of an overruff by West.

"Then he put the opponents on lead with a heart. Winning the spade return in dummy, he ruffed dummy's last heart and got off lead again with a spade. He was down to three diamonds in each hand and sure to make the rest of the tricks irrespective of the diamond situation."

This hand is a beautiful example of dummy play. His play wasn't a sure thing. If West had started with only two clubs, for example, the hand would have collapsed with the third club lead, but it was a far better line of play than going right after trumps.

The hand also shows one vaunted Italian system at its worst. Somehow or other a three no-trump contract would be far better and would be arrived at by any American pair. Playing at three no-trump, declarer will be worried only by a heart lead. It won't be much of a worry because he will hold off twice and then play the diamond suit so as to be sure of keeping East out of the lead. He will lose to the queen of diamonds by this play but will wind up making four no-trump anyway.

36' FIBREGLASS twin screw CRUISER. A most comfortable and completely equipped boat which has always been boathouse kept. Her 1964 twin 220 h.p. Crusader engines combine safety with a good turn of speed. She accommodates six and has more than adequate galley facilities including a fridge. Among the many extras are radiophone, fathometer, elect. anchor winch, bow pulpit carpets, cutlery and dishes, fibreglass dinghy, electric and hand bilge pumps, automatic fire extinguishers. A boat for the most discriminating boater. Asking $28,475

24' BRANDLMAYR inboard outboard. An excellent smaller cruiser with accommodation for four. Her 180 h.p. Volvo V-8 engine drives her cello-finished hull at a cruising speed of 20 knots. A spacious cockpit provides ample fishing space under the protection of a canvas top. This boat has a dinette, stove and enclosed head. Asking $6,500

16' FIBREGLASS ski boat and trailer. This 1966 boat with its 50 h.p. Chrysler electric start outboard has had practically no use. A canvas cover has protected the leather seats and carpeted floor so they are in new boat condition. Excellent value for only $2,300.

FOR 1968

The "more-for-your-money car."

If somebody ever tells you he drives an economy import with 96 h.p. engine that goes 100 m.p.h. has a safer, impact absorbing body, the safest suspension money can buy, a wrap-around air-flow system that keeps windows clear, that it looks great, handles like a dream, and that he bought it from us for only $2025, believe him. It's the DATSUN 1600, the "more for your money car" at

HOW TO HELP

'Back Britain' Ad Campaign

LONDON (CP) — Readers of Britain's leading newspapers now have no excuse for running out of ways to back the country during these months of economic trial.

Charging out from full-page advertisements taken in a number of papers today are dozens of down-to-earth Back Britain suggestions, ranging from "Drink British" to "Don't abuse the National Health Service."

The graphically-designed ads boast a sponsorship which includes Lord Thomson and an inveterate enthusiast of such campaigns, Beaverbrook Newspapers Ltd.

They have all lined up behind what they call the How to Help Britain and Yourself Campaign.

Topping one of the big spreads is a close-up photograph of the men who lead Britain's political parties—Prime Minister Wilson for Labor, Opposition Leader Edward Heath of the Conservatives and Liberal Chief Jeremy Thorpe.

"Whatever you think of them," reads a giant caption, "surely you think enough of your country to choose six practical things to help Britain get out of the red."

Listed among the "ways a mum can help her country" are reductions on purchases of imported articles.

"We spend over £1,500,000 (about $3,900,000) in importing carrots every year," the mothers of Britain are told.

"Organize a help Britain pen pal club," the ad urges children.

"Make new friends for yourself, new future business contacts for your country. Helping Britain can be fun."

Fathers are told, among other things:

"Drink British. Some of the best booze in the world is brewed in Britain."

Millionaires are urged to "Invest in Britain," musical stars to undertake dollar- and prestige-winning foreign tours; and bosses to "Talk with your staff, not at them."

Politicians also are given an earful:

"Stop blaming each other. Stop exhorting us. Tell us the truth. We want to know. We want to help."

Public Ideas Asked For Teachers' Study

The B.C. Teachers' Federation is inviting the public to join it in considering educational issues.

A three-men federation commission is in the process of preparing its own submissions on a variety of education matters for presentation to the provincial government.

But it has indicated it will welcome contact with those outside the teaching profession who feel moved to offer constructive suggestions on education.

"Our own members consider this to be an opportunity to assess the entire educational system and to establish goals for the future," say teachers Ray Wunderlich and Ross Regan, local co-ordinators for the BCTF commission.

"The findings of this commission will be promoted with vigor by the profession."

In the past, said Mr. Wunderlich, teachers' recommendations were processed through committees to the federation's executive.

The commission, headed by D. B. MacKenzie, recently-retired assistant superintendent of education in Vancouver, is a first.

It will examine the whole field of education, almost like a royal commission.

The commissioners are hoping to have most of the submissions by Easter, say the co-ordinators.

Individuals or groups interested in making a contribution can get additional information from Mr. Regan or Mr. Wunderlich through the office of the Greater Victoria Teachers' Association at 2622 Quadra St.

'God Protect The Poor Taxpayer'

VANCOUVER (CP) — Municipal leaders in the Fraser Valley accepted a pollution control board ultimatum Tuesday, but say specified sewage treatment facilities will cost more than any of them can afford.

Pollution control director C. J. Keenan said in Victoria earlier Tuesday that dumping raw sewage into the Fraser below Hope, 100 miles east of Vancouver, will be banned by 1975.

A board report said last year the deadline should be 1980 or 1985, but the board said public interest dictated the earlier date.

Mayor Stewart Gifford said New Westminster will not be able to afford the primary treatment plants and chlorinization facilities required by the board.

"If we have to do it, we have to do it, but God protect the poor taxpayer," said Reeve James Christmas of Coquitlam.

Reeve Peter Jenewein of Maple Ridge said the extra burden could touch off a rebellion.

Mayor A. B. Holder of Chilliwack said a treatment plant is only a question of money and Mayor J. A. Lamong of Mission City said his area probably will need financial help "but we are not going to cry about it."

Power Boost Sought By CFAX

OTTAWA (CP)—Radio station CFAX Victoria applied to the Board of Broadcast Governors Tuesday for a power increase of 10,000 watts day and night from its present 1,000 watts.

Clare G. Copeland, station president, told a public hearing of the board the increase is needed to overcome night interference and to give signal strength in the Victoria area equal to that of the two other stations.

Outside daylight hours, there is strong interference with the CFAX signal from KNX in Hollywood, Calif., he said.

There was no opposition to the application and the BBG will make a recommendation on it later.

Germans Protest War

FRANKFURT, West Germany (AP)—About 1,000 young demonstrators, shouting "Amis (Americans) get out of Vietnam," smashed windows at the U.S. trade centre Monday after police stopped them from forcing their way into the American consulate. About a dozen demonstrators were taken into custody.

'Wonderful Challenge'

RIO DE JANEIRO (UPI) — Rio policemen set out today on a moral crusade against thousands of women clad in bikinis that officials said were too skimpy. "We face a difficult but wonderful challenge," said a police spokesman.

MUNICIPALITIES REBEL

Convention Welcoming Grants Out

The Greater Victoria Intermunicipal Committee gave a flat "no" to four bids for entertainment grants Tuesday.

Oak Bay's acting reeve Frances Elford led the battle against reception grants for the Junior Chamber of Commerce, the Community Planing Association, the Canadian Highway Safety Council and the Federation of Canadian Music Festivals.

The Jaycees were asking for $650 for a "welcoming party" during their June national convention.

The planners were seeking $1,700 for a luncheon for their October convention.

The highway men were asking an unspecified sum for a luncheon and the musical fraternity a similar unspecified sum for a luncheon.

"After four years on council I have become quite hardened to this sort of thing," said Coun. Elford. "I belong to quite a few women's organizations and we make allowances for this sort of thing in our annual dues. "We have to dig in our heels somewhere. We must remember that we are representing a great number of fixed-income people and that we are not putting on any banquets for them.

"I wish we could find some way of convincing these people (those applying for grants) that while things like this are desirable they should not be put on the shoulders of property owners."

Reeve Hugh Curtis of Saanich backed Coun. Elford.

"I have a great deal of sympathy with what Coun. Elford has said.

"The amounts asked in themselves are not great, but the principle is. I am pleased that we are getting the Jaycee convention and I wish I could feel happier about contriuting."

Reeve Gordon Lee disagreed.

He said the total amount required by the four organizations would only amount to a minor item when split up among all municipalities.

"I estimate the total request to be around $4,000, a relatively small amount when split up," he said. "I admit that I'm avoiding the principle involved."

On the vote the committee was unanimous that all four applications be rejected.

"I shall be against these things until municipalities have a source of revenue based on the provinces booming economy instead of just property," Coun. Elford said.

GALIA
French Comedy-Thriller
Capitol Theatre

A pretty young Parisienne stands beside the shimmering moonlit waters of the River Seine and sighs:

"If only I could find adventure."

She tosses a bright new franc into the Seine and, as the coin sinks, adventure rises to greet her in the form of a young woman (Francoise Prevost) who is trying to drown herself.

Galia hustles her home for a drink and a lecture.

Francoise says she attempted suicide because her husband never stops playing around with other women. She asks Galia to find out if the villain misses her.

Galia agrees and runs off to her adventure with a light heart. At first she is revolted by the husband (Venatino Venantini), classifying him as a sordid species of Italian wolf. But, before long, she is so much in love with him, the cad can do almost anything he wants with her.

What he does do transforms this rather daring French film from a sophisticated comedy into an ingenious murder mystery.

It is chiefly notable for a magnificent performance by Mireille D'Arc, who possesses not only good looks and a classic figure but considerable sensibility as an actress.

This is apparent even when her soft lips are shaping French syllables and the sound track issues strident North Americanisms. This is one of the penalties of dubbing and, while most film-goers like it, I prefer the old-fashioned sub-titles with foreign language films.

Galia is also notable for its impressionistic black and white photography; its misty waterfront scenes and its arresting glimpses of human faces, caught in a surrealistic glare.

WORLD'S GREATEST harpist, Spanish Nicanor Zabaleta, will be heard in recital at McPherson Playhouse Thursday night. This is one of the Victoria Symphony Society sponsored series by soloists who are to appear with the orchestra. Zabaleta's program includes works by Bach, Beethoven, Hindemith, Prokofiev, Faure, Albeniz, Granados and others. He plays with the orchestra next Sunday and Monday. His recital begins at 6 p.m. due to a stage performance by Bastion Theatre the same evening which has been delayed until 9 p.m.

Forces Cut Back Parade

The armed forces Tuesday night injected a sour note into a "theme meeting" for the Victoria Day parade May 20.

Lt.-Cmdr. David Scott, a liaison officer, told a Greater Victoria Celebrations' Association meeting at City Hall the forces will have only a token representation in the big parade.

"The marching contingent is going to be smaller . . . there may not even be a dais this year. That's how hard up we are," the officer said.

"If we have them, we'll help you."

"We don't mind the green uniforms (new uniform of the integrated forces)—they can be orange for all we care," an association member said.

THEME SET

The association later adopted a theme for this year's parade—"One Hundred Years The Capital, 1868-1968."

The association decided the parade route will carry straight along Douglas St. to Belleville, leaving Government St. open as an emergency route.

Officials also will look into the possibility of getting more Greater Victoria school bands to play in the parade.

BENNETT TO PEARSON

Off-Shore Rights Plea Extended

OTTAWA (CP) — Premier W. A. C. Bennett asked the federal government Tuesday to return off-shore mineral rights to British Columbia.

The premier's request came during discussion of regional economic disparities in the second day of the federal-provincial constitutional conference.

"Our complaint is that British Columbia alone was selected as a test case in the courts," said Premier Bennett. "So far the federal government hasn't proceeded against any other province."

He said Prime Minister Pearson promised to decide whether he would give the rights to the provinces anyway, once the Supreme Court ruled on the question but he had not yet done so.

The off-shore mineral rights question was one of several raised by Bennett in the course of a rambling 15-minute discourse that was punctuated by laughter, applause and verbal exchanges with the prime minister.

AID FOR BRIDGE

Bennett also asked the government to pay one-sixth of the cost of the Second Narrows Bridge in Vancouver.

He also asked the federal government to reconsider his request for a subsidy on the provincially-owned Pacific Great Eastern Railway. Bennett said the reason he was turned down was because the prime minister thought the railway ended "in muskeg north of Prince George."

In summing up his case, Bennett said he hopes Ottawa will do its best to resolve the differences. Prime Minister Pearson promised to keep in touch through the mail.

"I gather three of the things you want are the ocean, a six-lane, two-mile bridge and a railway," said the prime minister amid laughter from the conference delegates.

Minor Injuries For Five

Three separate accidents sent five people to hospital Tuesday, but all were released after treatment.

Just before noon, a man and his two children were injured in an accident at Hillside and Cook.

Treated and released from St. Joseph's Hospital were Brian Curson, 31, of 2923 Quadra, and his children Darynn, 4, and Spencer, 3. Police said the other car involved was driven by Beatrice Rees, 1476 Finlayson.

At 2:30 p.m., 13-year-old Brenda Bradley, 2746 Graham, was injured when a car driven by Mrs. Berva Bradley was in collision with a car police say was driven by George Percy, 2344 Beach Drive.

The accident occured at Inverness and Quadra. Brenda was treated at St. Joseph's Hospital and released.

Reporting a third accident, city police say eight-year-old Joanne Fox, 1857 Fern St., was knocked down by a car as she ran across Richmond Ave, near Birch St.

She was treated in Royal Jubilee Hospital and released. Police report the car involved was driven north on Richmond by Mildred Skinner, 1830 Newton.

Water Search Leads Youth Into Lockup

A quest for water led two boys into temptation, central court was told Tuesday.

Randy Crago, 19, 2010 Runnymede, pleaded guilty to a charge of stealing $70 worth of car parts from an auto wrecker.

Sgt. Gordon Bennett said Crago and a juvenile were out driving late Dec. 30 when their car broke down.

They found they needed water for the radiator, and in searching for the water, Crago wandered into several back yards.

Police testified he ended up in the yard of Victoria Auto Wreckers, 631 Princess, and found the back door unlocked.

Police produced three car radios and several other car parts Crago admitted he and the juvenile had taken.

Court was told Crago has no previous record and Magistrate Byers remanded him in jail to Feb. 14 for pre-sentence report.

Woodward's Welcome New Manager

Woodward's Mayfair department store welcomed manager Horace Drew Tuesday following the retirement of Courtenay Haddock.

The 52-year-old store executive comes to Mayfair after opening and managing Woodward's Guildford centre in Surrey 15 months ago, before which he managed Woodward's in New Westminster for seven years.

Mr. Drew has spent most of his career in the food and grocery business, a total of 20 years including his employment with a private food chain before joining Woodward's in Vancouver.

He started as a food floor coordinator for Woodward's B.C. stores and was posted to the company's Toronto buying office after that.

He was born and brought up in Brighton, Sussex, where he received his early education, completing it in Toronto.

Small boating is a favorite pastime and the Drew family keeps an island cottage for vacations.

Mr. Drew has two sons, David, who is a planning assistant with MacMillan Bloedel Ltd. and a graduate of HMCS Venture officer training school, and John doing post-graduate science at Simon Fraser University.

It's All in Way You Hold Your Pot

By HILDA BEASTALL

Before we can repot a plant we must know how to remove it from its previous pot.

Most of us are accustomed to this simple procedure and do not realize there was inevitably the first time we performed the rite.

Young people with their first home may never have seen a plant removed from its pot. A caller reminded me of this fact, and asked how it was done.

Hilda

First, be bold. Not reckless, but bold.

If the plant seems to be dry, water it well and allow to stand. This will mosten the soil all around the inside of the pot and prevent it from sticking.

After about 15 to 30 minutes pick up the pot and invert it, with the left hand (if right-handed) spread over the surface of the soil and fingers spread flat each side of the central growth.

The palm and fingers will prevent the soil and plant from dropping to the floor.

Next, tap the top edge of the pot on a corner of the table or bench. If this is in the house, spread a newspaper on the floor beneath in case some of the soil escapes the supporting hand.

A sharp tap or two will loosen the ball of roots from the pot, and the whole thing is resting on the left hand. Remove the loosened pot with the right hand, and take a good look at the rootball.

Much can be learned. Is there any soil left, or has it all been consumed by the plant? Have the roots reached the side and bottom of the pot? Has the plant been kept too wet or too dry?

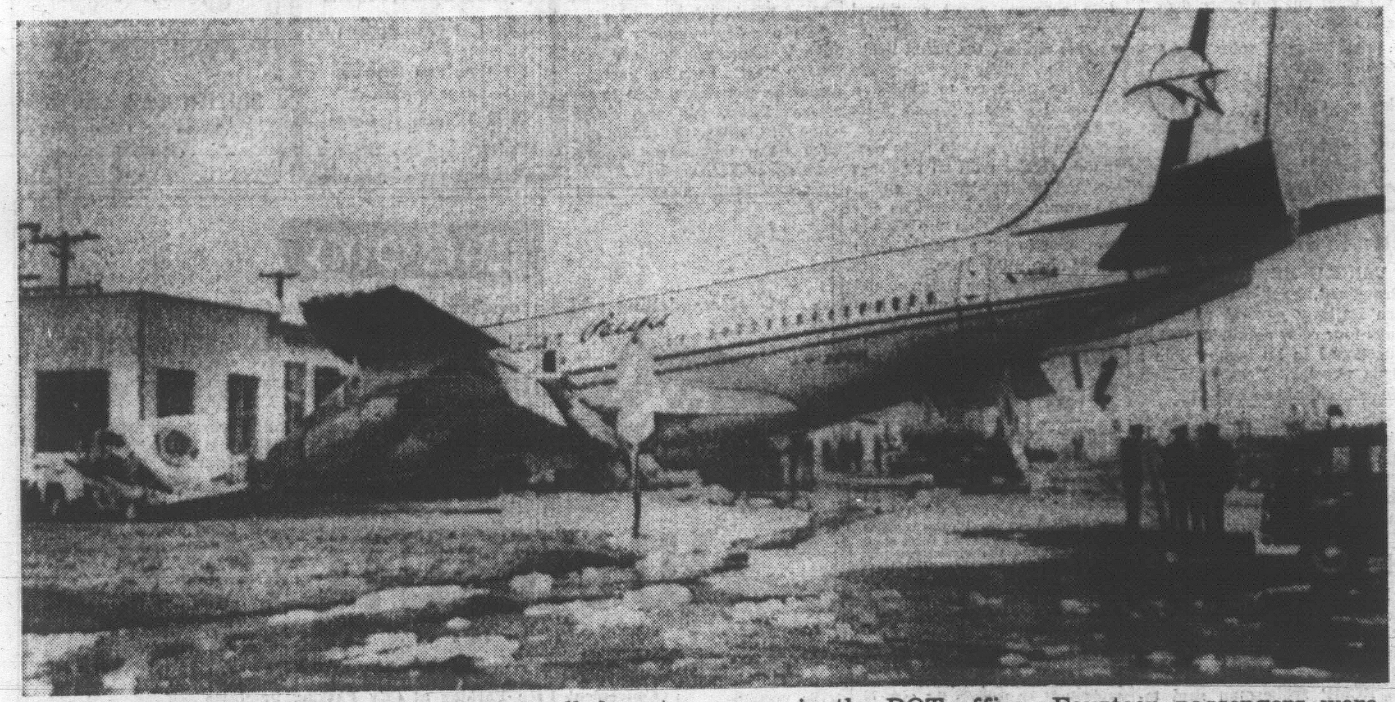
HITS BUILDING AT VANCOUVER AIRPORT

Two Die in Jet Landing Crash



CPA JETLINER came to rest against small department of transport building after landing crash today at Vancouver International Airport. Two persons were killed—a purser aboard the Boeing 707 and a man in the DOT office. Fourteen passengers were injured, but only one was held in hospital. Fourteen Hurt In CPA Mishap

VANCOUVER (CP)—Two persons were killed and 14 injured today when a Canadian Pacific Airlines jetliner loaded with homebound vacationers crashed into a building after landing in heavy fog at Vancouver International Airport.

The Boeing 707, CPA flight 322 from Honolulu, carried 52 passengers and a crew of nine, when it bounced out of control along a runway at 6:20 a.m.

Killed in the crash was Martinus Verhoef, 33, of Vancouver, purser aboard the jet and Elmer Metcalfe, 44, of Vancouver, a department of transport employee, died when the jet demolished a small DoT ramp office.

All but one of the 14 injured were released from hospital after treatment. Still in hospital was Mrs. D. Fellger of Lethbridge, Alta.

Witnesses said the big four-engine jet bounced after touching the runway, veered off the runway, struck and demolished four small aircraft parked near the runway, struck a small department of transport building, hit a parked car and then buried its nose into a brick building used by Aviation Electric Pacific Ltd.

The department of transport employee was in or near the DOT building when he died. The purser died in the aircraft.

One jet engine and the right wheel assembly dropped off the jet as it skidded out of control.

Some passengers got out of the right forward door, crawled on the wing and dropped about eight feet to the ground. Others slipped down an emergency chute near the rear door.

Firemen Quickly Control Blazes

Fire started in the right wing soon after the last person was evacuated. Firemen had no trouble bringing the fire in the plane and fire in the department of transport building under control quickly.

The 707 and the flying crew were leased by CPA from Standard Airways of Seattle. The pilot was identified by CPA as Captain Al Burkhalter of Seattle. Cabin workers such as the purser and stewardesses, were employed by CPA.

Normally, a Boeing 707 lands at 120 miles an hour and can carry 126 passengers.

Mrs. Madeline Dewar of Vancouver, returning from a Hawaiian holiday, said the plane "seemed to hit the ground heavily and bounced back up."

John Donovan of Vancouver said "we began bouncing around and fire broke out at the front of the plane."

"Everything was flying around—hand luggage, fixtures, just everything," he said.

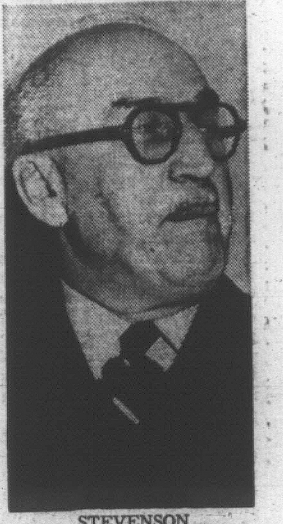
Mr. Donovan, whose clothes were soaked with jet fuel, said the crew did a tremendous job. "I could not speak too highly of them, especially the stewardesses."

"They kept urging everybody to keep calm, and there was remarkably little panic. They did an excellent job of keeping everybody in their seats until the plane had come to a stop."

The stewardesses were Annette Towle of Winnipeg and Elaine Gail Rasmussen of Brandon, Man.

CPA's last major crash was in March, 1966, when a DC 8 jet crashed at Tokyo airport with the loss of 64 lives.

Among the uninjured passengers were Mr. and Mrs. Jack Rainey of 2170 Haultain, Victoria.



STEVENSON
. . . he opened hatch

Retired RCAF Officer Aids Jet Passengers

VANCOUVER (CP) — A retired air force officer who had read the directions printed on an escape door helped to get other passengers off a burning Boeing 707 jet today at Vancouver International Airport.

Leigh Stevenson, 73, of Vancouver, an air vice marshal and former MLA, was seated in the Canadian Pacific Airlines plane near the escape hatch over the left wing.

"I had read all the directions about how to open the hatch so it didn't take me too long to open it," he said.

The Boeing crashed into a building after landing on a flight from Honolulu.

"I had a choice of going out or staying in and I figured the best thing was to go out," Mr. Stevenson said.

He said there was about an eight-foot drop from the wing to the tarmac and he helped lower other passengers to the ground.

His wife, Lillian, suffered a broken ankle while she was being lowered.

VISIBILITY POOR

Mr. Stevenson said that there was heavy fog when the plane landed and visibility was very poor. He said the plane apparently blew the left tires, forcing it to slew to the left.

"The plane then slowed down and the next thing we knew the nose had crashed into a building bringing it to a sudden halt."

Mr. Stevenson suffered cuts to his right hand, bruises and shock and was taken to Richmond General Hospital along with a number of other passengers.

Mr. and Mrs. R. L. Denton of Calgary said they were among the first people off the plane.

"We figured it was going to blow up so we got out of there in a hurry."

Mr. Denton had high praise for Mr. Stevenson, whom he said, had helped in the evacuation and avoided panic.

NATIONAL ECONOMIC PROBE

East, West in Collision

OTTAWA (CP) — Pleas for greater federal aid to the Atlantic provinces, improved tax resources for Ontario and power for Quebec to run its own social welfare programs were voiced by the premiers today at the federal-provincial constitutional conference.

Heading into its last day, the conference heard a wide range of views on the question of economic disparities among the provinces.

There was a direct collision between the Atlantic premiers and British Columbia's Premier Bennett on the issue of equalization payments by Ottawa to the poorer provinces.

Premier Robichaud of New Brunswick, Premier Smallwood of Newfoundland and Premier Campbell of Prince Edward Island stressed the urgent need for a greater sharing of taxes collected from the wealthy provinces, mainly Ontario, British Columbia and Alberta.

But Mr. Bennett argued that the whole idea of payments to provinces was wrong. It would be better for Ottawa to pay the money direct to workers and thus raise standards of living in underdeveloped regions.

TOP IS IMPORTANT

Prime Minister Pearson reminded the premiers that economic strength must start at the top. Unless federal revenues were stimulated by new growth the incomes of the provinces could not increase.

He said Ottawa is trying to retain the level of federal expenditures in slow-growth areas while at the same time working to reduce its total spending.

Premier Johnson of Quebec said he would "give the devil his due" and admit that some federal development programs were of great benefit to poorer regions, particularly the agricultural and rural development agency.

But he criticized social welfare as a "waste of money nothing short of scandalous" because of a lack of planning with the provinces.

Mr. Johnson said there was real justification for Quebec's request that it be allowed to take control over all social benefits.

The present system was creating a whole generation that was becoming accustomed to living off the public purse.

Mr. Pearson said Ottawa is taking a careful look at the overlapping of social-welfare programs at all levels.

First speaker on the third and final day of the federal-provincial conference, Mr. Robichaud said a strong Canadian federalism cannot be achieved while some areas of the country are far behind in development.

For that reason, the Atlantic provinces were firmly opposed to any constitutional revision that would strip any powers from the federal government. This would weaken Ottawa's ability to help the poorer provinces.

Mr. Robichaud reiterated his region's plea for a massive increase in Atlantic development Board funds, suggesting it be given $1,000,000,000 in lending power.

The board's basic fund now is $100,000,000.

It should also have greater authority to design and imple-

Pearson 5-Step Proposal Fires Debate

OTTAWA (CP) — The federal-provincial constitutional conference struggled briefly today on Prime Minister Pearson's five-step proposal for recognition of French language and education rights in English Canada.

Premier Manning of Alberta and Premier Bennett of British Columbia raised some objections to the wording of the proposal which would in effect be a directive to a continuing committee.

Mr. Pearson called a luncheon adjournment during which the objections might be recognized.

Mr. Pearson did not ask for unanimous consent by all provinces to his proposal. He asked for a consensus and suggested it could be achieved in five minutes.

Such quick approval quickly became impossible. The matter came up near the end of the morning session after a long discussion on regional economic disparities.

Mr. Bennett asked that the word of the federal proposal be tied directly to the recommendations of the royal commission on bilingualism and biculturalism.

The main recommendation is that French language and education facilities be provided in districts of provinces when the French-speaking population reached 10 per cent of the total.

British Columbia's French-speaking population is less than 10 per cent.

Mr. Pearson welcomed Mr. Bennett's suggestion.

SEES RESTRICTIONS

Premier Johnson of Quebec said the "mathematical bilingualism" proposed by the commission would restrict English-language rights in Quebec.

The reference was to the fact that Quebec provides English education facilities in districts where the English-speaking population is far less than 10 per cent of the total.

Mr. Manning objected to that part of the federal proposal which suggests constitutional amendments guaranteeing language rights being implemented province by province as each agreed to them.

Mr. Manning said he was not objecting to a consensus. But he wanted to make the reservation that a constitutional amendment on language rights can be carried out only by unanimous consent of all provinces.

Mr. Pearson said that in the lunch-hour break this point might be met.

Premier Robarts of Ontario said the committee to be established could deal with this point.

Attorney-General Sterling Lyon of Manitoba said he wondered whether the conference was becoming too preoccupied with the vehicle—the B and B report.

Attorney-General T. A. Hickman of Newfoundland asked that study of the proposed federal constitutional charter of human rights be added to the document the conference was being asked to approve.

Newfoundland favored this charter. If it were implemneted in a few provinces first, the people in other provinces would force their governments to fall in line.

"Don't speak for British Columbia," snapped Mr. Bennett.

Mr. Pearson told the premiers Tuesday he visualized a language equality declaration as the first of five steps towards the eventual enshrinement in the constitution of human rights, including the right to French-language and education facilities anywhere in Canada they are required.

This first step would not be binding in any way. It would be an "instruction" to a continuing committee that would be set up to work out detailed procedures for constitutional change.

Mr. Pearson also described to the conference Tuesday an "opting-in" formula for constitutional amendment that would get around Alberta and British Columbia rejections of constitutional language rights.

A province could wait until it had developed French-language facilties before taking on the constitutional obligation of providing them.

Mr. Pearson's proposals indicated the federal government had given up any hope of getting unanimous agreement for the early inclusion of French rights in the constitution.

The most dramatic development of the day was a sizzling exchange in the morning between Premier Johnson and Justice Minister Trudeau over Quebec demands for "special-status" powers in Confederation.

Belgian Gov't Quits Over Language Issue

BRUSSELS (CP) — King Baudouin today accepted the resignation of the Belgian coalition government headed by premier Paul Van Den Boeynants, it was announced here.

The resignation was the result of a dispute between French-speaking and Flemish-speaking Belgians.

Van Den Boeynants told the House of Representatives:

"Several ministers have expressed the wish to leave the government. Under these circumstances, I have asked to be received by King Baudouin to present the resignation of the government."

The government was faced with a student-inspired crisis over the use of the French language at Louvain University.

Van Den Boeynants said his cabinet was unable to reach a last-minute compromise on whether the 500-year-old Roman Catholic university should abandon tuition in French under pressure from Flemish-speaking students, professors, clergy and government ministers.

The two-year-old coalition government of Social Christians and members of the Party for Liberty and Progress broke over the issue.

The Social Christian premier said the present government would remain as a caretaker administration until a new government is formed.

LBJ Wars on LSD

WASHINGTON (UPI)—President Johnson today declared war on the pushers of drugs and the peddlers of LSD. He asked Congress to okay hiring more than 200 new federal narcotics agents.

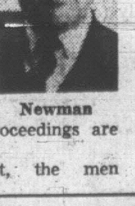
Issues Smaller on TV But Personalities Loom

By PETER C. NEWMAN

OTTAWA — Will television save confederation?



Newman

Because the details of what's being discussed at the constitutional conference this week are too specialized and too stultifyingly dull for wide comprehension, the meeting's greatest significance may be the fact that its proceedings are being televised.

As a result, the men reshaping our confederation are constantly aware of the viewing public peering at them as they mouth their briefs. No politician can afford to play the villain before a national audience.

Much of the compromise that has been achieved at this historic conference is the direct result of the awareness that every sppech, every aside, every gesture of the participating politicians is being transmitted to the nation at large.

Television has made the issues at stake seem much smaller while at the same time magnifying the personalities of the provincial premiers and federal negotiators involved.

Consequently the nation is deducing matter from manner, guiding its assessment of the conference according to its reactions to the various speakers around the confederation table.

This has produced some curious results.

Daniel Johnson, who has never been tougher in what he is demanding, has generated a great deal of sympathy. He simply doesn't look or behave like a man who would break up Canada.

The image he projects is that of a thoughtful politician, anxious to please, troubled that he is always being misunderstood. Although his demands if implemented would result in a divided Canada, his conduct seems to imply that the whole thing is a semantic misunderstanding, and that he's really a much maligned patriot.

Lester Pearson comes across as the ideal committee chairman. It's ironic that in these final few weeks of his stewardship the country has

Viet Cong Send Tanks Into Lang Vei Assault

SAIGON (AP) — The North Vietnamese sent their Soviet tanks into the Vietnam war today, apparently for the first time, against South Vietnamese irregulars and their American advisers at a U.S. Special Forces camp in the northwest corner of South Vietnam.

Reports from Da Nang said a Special Forces sergeant had radioed that only five of the 25 Americans in the Lang Vei camp were still alive—he and four others in the headquarters bunker. He reported a knocked-out tank was on top of the bunker.

The U.S. command said Lang Vei's defenders destroyed five of the nine Russian T-34 tanks sent against them.

The massive assault on Lang Vei, four miles west of Khe Sanh, could be the kickoff of the long-anticipated offensive along the northern frontier, which Gen. William C. Westmoreland has predicted will be the biggest Communist push of the war—exceeding the furious assault on South Vietnamese cities and towns last week.

A senior member of Westmoreland's staff, however, suggested this remains to be determined. He said: "I wouldn't go that far."

About 800 North Vietnamese troops were reported committed to the attack along with the tanks.

The campaign against the cities has died down at most points after eight days, but Viet Cong forces still fought stubbornly in Saigon and Hue.

The U.S. command said the Viet Cong and North Vietnamese death toll in the last eight days reached 22,748 by midnight Tuesday night. It said 1,768 combined forces troops have been killed, including 614 Americans and 1,130 South Vietnamese.

Military spokesmen said the North Vietnamese began pounding the Lang Vei camp with artillery at dusk Tuesday, then launched the ground attack about two hours later.

The camp's garrison—300-400 South Vietnamese and Montagnard irregulars and their American advisers—took cover in their bunkers, and North Vietnamese sprayed the bunkers with flamethrowers to drive the defenders back from rifle and machine-gun ports.

STRAFES RAIDERS

U.S. marine artillery at Khe Sanh fired tons of shells almost on top of the camp after the U.S. advisers called for close-in support. Air force and marine fighter-bombers raked the area with bombs, cannon and machine-guns.

A U.S. spokesman said heavy contact continued through the night and diminished about 11 a.m., but some fighting continued. U.S. headquarters said radio contact was being maintained throughout the day.

Cong Claims 50,000 Dead

HONG KONG (Reuters) — The Viet Cong military command said today it has "wiped out" 50,000 combined forces troops—including 10,000 Americans—since Jan. 29, the North Vietnam news agency reported.

The dispatch also said U.S. policy in South Vietnam is being "sapped att he roots" by the Viet Cong "general offensive and simultaneous uprisings."

The Viet Cong also said it destroyed more than 1,500 aircraft, 4,000 military vehicles, 50 warships and gunboats, radio stations in six major cities and "millions of tons of bombs, ammunition and other war means."

GRAIN

WINNIPEG (CP)—Flax prices were easier today on the Winnipeg Grain Exchange, where an increase in selling was evident.

Trade reports indicated hedging sales in flax were influenced by disappointment in recent export figures and reports of favorable weather conditions.

Rapeseed took on a steadier appearance but deliveries were on a modest scale.

Oats trade was light and domestic.

Rye came in for moderate selling, while prices remained firm on the Chicago market.

Lakehead prices for class two, IWA and domestic wheat were all unchanged.

CHICAGO (AP) — Wheat and corn futures closed with a modest display of strength on the Board of Trade today but soybeans prices were irregular.

Trade was moderate. Buying for export was one influence on higher wheat prices. As prices moved ahead, some short covering was disclosed.

For the second day cash corn sold at two cents under the March price. This is three to four cents better than earlier.

$80 Million Aluminum Plant Set

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Harvey Aluminum Co. will build an $80,000,000 aluminum plant on the Washington side of the Columbia River about 20 miles southeast of Goldendale, Sen. Henry M. Jackson, (D — Wash.) said Monday.

The site was specified in a contract the Torrance, Calif., firm signed with the Bonneville Power Administration for 105,000 kilowatts of firm power and about 95,000 kilowatts of interruptible power for the plant.

Jackson said the contract provides that the plant must be built by April 1, 1972.

It will employ about 600 with an annual payroll of $6,000,000 and have two aluminum potlines with a capacity of about 100,000 tons of aluminum a year. The plant will be slightly larger than the one Harvey has at The Dalles, Ore.

Toss Out Gas Plan FPC Told

WASHINGTON (CP) — A plan that would exclude further Western Canada natural gas imports from California should be thrown out, examiner Charles Wenner of the Federal Power Commission was told Tuesday.

Wenner praised the plan as a "significant contribution" to long-range planning but said he will reserve judgment on just how much weight to attach to it in the cases before him.

He is preparing a recommendation on two applications—one from El Paso Natural Gas Co. of Texas to pipe more American gas into California and one from the Pacific Gas Transmission Co. to import more Alberta gas for California.

At Wenner's instructions to examine reasonable alternatives in the public interest, the staff of the power commission has proposed that El Paso or some other pipeline company should build a 42-inch line from Texas to California to meet all that state's needs.

The staff would deny the Pacific Gas application to import daily 200,000,000 cubic feet more from Alberta—but only in another case is denied its application to bring in the same amount from the Westcoast Transmission Co. Ltd. of Vancouver.

Pacific Gas deal for Alberta gas is several cents per thousand cubic feet cheaper than the El Paso-Westcoast deal, which has locked the U.S. commission and the National Energy Bo rd of Canada into an impasse over the price of the Canadian supplies.

At hearings resumed Tuesday before Wenner, the Transmission Pipeline Co.—another California supplier—intervenec to move that the staff plan be thrown out.

Wenner gree there are problems with it. He said a legal difficulty is that the staff is proposing a project altogether new to the El Paso application.

There are limits too on how much the commission can alter applications before it, he said.

Sharp Increase In Saanich

Building activity in Saanich rose sharply last month compared with January of the previous year.

Permits worth $2.3 million were issued last month compared with $1.2 million in January, 1967.

Thirty-six houses and duplexes worth $649,300 were approved compared with 26 worth $480,400 a year ago.

To Close Subsidiary

VANCOUVER (CP)—Grandby Mining Company will close its Jedway Iron Ore subsidiary "early this spring," president L. T. Postle says.

He said Jedway, located on Graham Island in the Queen Charlottes, will have exhausted its ore reserves by then. The subsidiary went into production in 1962.

Income Tax Tips

By P. J. KELLY

Q. My wife and I were married in September. She was working before marriage but has not worked since. Can I claim the full married exemption of $1,000 for her? What does she do about filing a return?

A. Yes, if she received no income after your marriage you may claim the full married exemption of $1,000. It is only income she received after your marriage that affects your exemptions. If your wife is taxable or had tax deducted from her salary, she must file her own return. Her exemptions are not affected by her marriage.

Q. I have received most of the information slips for my income tax return but I am still waiting for one of them. Should I file my return without this slip?

A. No. Please wait until you have all your T4 slips and medical receipts before filing your return. A missing information slip may cause delays in processing as such returns will be sent to our district offices for additional information. If you have not received your T4 slips by early in March, you should ask your employer for them.

Victoria Daily Times
VICTORIA, B.C., WEDNESDAY, FEBRUARY 7, 1968—PAGE 23

Arthur Mayse

Like most columnists, I must work a day behind the news, which means that what's set down on Tuesday may come out a long jump behind Wednesday's hurrying events. This being so, I can only surmise how the constitutional conference will proceed in its later phases.

I expect the end of this beginning will be inconclusive. How, in fact, can it be otherwise?

But a start has been made at solving the long wrangle betwen French and English-speaking Canadians, and at least we will emerge with a better understanding of how we stand divided.

Then, like an alcoholic who has finally succeeded in scaring the devil out of himself, we may begin the hard upward climb toward unity.

The ideal state would be a sort of Canadians Anonymous in which racial extractions were discarded. In this less-than-ideal world, however, I suspect we'll have to settle for such accord as can be managed by two peoples—not nations, but peoples—who have been forced to learn the knack of living together.

In Confederation, as in any marriage meant to last, this is going to call for concession, compromise, and mutual respect. The alternative is a shattering divorce and new lives with other partners . . . on their terms.

★

I don't want our province or any other to become territorial appendages of the United States, and hope you don't, either. Because this is well within the bounds of possibility, and despite our premier's insistence that the BNA Act remain virgin, I'm entirely willing to accept reasonable amendments and even a limited amount of guff if necessary.

One reason for what I admit to be a revised outlook is the emergence of Justice Minister Pierre-Elliott Trudeau as a new-type interpreter of the needs and wants of the French - extraction Canadian.

He has discarded the Levesque dream of a sovereign Quebec state and the Johnson demand for special status as unworkable—if, indeed, he ever considered them—and he argues very strongly for a reformed federalism.

I think Mr. Trudeau may be the Canadian of the future; and certainly he is the best thing that has happened to our distressful country in many a year.

★

For me, the most significant aspect of the conference is not the tussle between special status-seeking Mr. Johnson and the outer provinces. It is the confrontation between Quebec's premier and this other son of Quebec who may succeed conference chairman and catalyst Lester Pearson as our next prime minister.

What Johnson seeks is in essence archaic—an undoing of Confederation, even though we might retain the name.

Trudeau, no two-nations proponent, would work from within our union, recognizing the needs and rights of all provinces.

It is early to claim that one or the other, or Levesque brooding ominously in the wings, speaks for the Quebec majority. But Mr. Trudeau's strikes me as the voice of reason, and no Canadian deserves a more attentive hearing.

At the same time, I could wish that the foundations for discussions that may lead to significant changes in what we are pleased to call our constitution were more solid. To make those changes, and to find in the end that they fail to satisfy a determinedly-dissident Quebec, would guarantee a change of spirit even among those provinces now pressing hardest for a revised BNA Act.

So, to the question, "Who speaks for Quebec?" I think we must add the other that has drawn three different answers. Do the people of Quebec want to separate, or to acquire two-nation status, or to win reform within the framework of our 10-province Confederation?

Manpower Minister Jean Marchand has suggested a referendum which would establish the majority viewpoint. Better, perhaps, if the parties to the conference had possessed that essential information before they set to work.

One Dead In Crash Up-Island

A 38-year-old Campbell River man, John Everall, died in a car accident early this morning which RCMP described as one of the worst wrecks they have viewed.

Everall, accompanied by Mrs. Constance Cote, was travelling on the Island Highway 11 miles north of Campbell River when the car skidded 800 feet, crashed into a telephone pole and flipped end over end, police said.

Highway department crew discovered the car at 2 a.m. and found the two occupants trapped inside. It took RCMP and the tow truck an hour to free them from the wreck.

Everall was dead on arrival at hospital and Mrs. Cote is in serious condition with undetermined injuries.

BIBLE SOCIETY

Victorian Donates $75,000

An elderly Victorian has donated $75,000 to the Canadian Bible Society, Rev. Raymond Tingley, secretary of the society in British Columbia, revealed today.

"He won't give his name," Mr. Tingley said, "because he doesn't want it to sound like a publicity stunt. All I can tell you is that he used to be a dentist—but not in Victoria.

"He told me he was distressed because millions of people need the Bible but have no opportunity of reading it. I asked him to give his name but he was adamant—he didn't want any publicity."

Mr. Tingley, whose headquarters are in Vancouver, said 100,000,000 copies of the Scriptures—in different forms and translations — were distributed throughout the world in 1967.

ONE OF 35

"The Canadian Bible Society is one of 35 Bible societies operating today.

"In Japan, where there are less than 800,000 Christians, the circulation of Scriptures reached 5,000,000 copies in 1967. The truth is 99 per cent of the Japanese people are literate and more books are read in Japan than in any other country of the world."

Mr. Tingley addressed a Victoria rally of the Canadian Bible Society in Central Baptist Church Monday night.

20 Awaiting Interviews For U.S. Jobs

The biggest private shipyard in the Pacific Northwest began recruiting today for 100 qualified pipefitters in Victoria and Vancouver.

Twenty men were at the Union Center building this morning for interviews, but a representative from Lockheed Shipbuilding and Construction Company in Seattle was delayed for several hours in Vancouver.

Last month a Mississippi shipyard was in British Columbia recruiting 100 pipefitters and 50 platers. Both shipyard and outside construction work here is in the doldrums.

Outside the Union Center, the Victoria secretary of the Communist Party of Canada, Ernest Knott, handed out a statement he described as "our proposals to meet the crisis in the yards."

He said more raw materials should be processed here and skilled shipyard workers kept here to build ships to carry the goods to world markets.

Rotten Housing Lurks Behind Garden Facade

By PETE LOUDON

There's an old house on the Gorge, once the imposing centrepiece in a pioneer estate and now chopped into six rickety apartments.

The woman who shares one of the ground-floor three-room flats with her three children is an expert on the current shortage of low-rent housing in Victoria—an anonymous expert.

When you've got rats, you don't draw attention to it.

"The rats are awful in the summer. And they're always getting bolder.

"Every summer the city puts out poison but they say they can't clear them out completely because we are so close to the Gorge.

"It's fine for those MLAs and the council to talk about the need for low-rent housing.

"But they'd work on it faster if they lived here for a while."

The family lives on the ground floor but nevertheless, the ceiling is stained with leaking rainwater and the paper blistered and flaking.

"If the lady upstairs doesn't catch it, it comes through."

The children are aged 10, seven and eight, two girls and a boy. They've been deserted by their father and they live on welfare allowances totalling $175 a month. The family pays $60 a month to live there.

'$135 a Month and Darned Scarce'

There's a demolition order pending and the people who occupy all six living units will soon be looking for other homes. The only two-bedroom places the woman has seen will cost $125 to $135 a month.

"And they're darned scarce," says social worker Mrs. Mary MacKenzie.

Mrs. MacKenzie, who is retired from case work, now gives her time to the B.C. Association of Social Workers. The association is trying to stimulate public interest in "the extremely serious housing shortage" now plaguing Victoria. She invited the Times to go with her to see the problem at first hand.

Mrs. June ——, who lives on Richmond near Fort, with her six youngsters aged four to 15 (another husbandless, welfare family) believes she's sitting pretty right now in a fine, warm, older-style home. Four bedrooms, $125, you pay all the utilities.

But to manage the rent she takes in ironing and until she found it interfered with her oldest daughter's homework, she had a night job scrubbing.

"I've sold the baby's crib and a few other things to get a couple of extra bucks."

It's a case of either doing that or going back to the $65 ("I've heard it's $85 now") house she recently left in James Bay. It has a heater in the front room only, nothing to warm the bedrooms upstairs.

'Fixed After Plaster Fell on Kids'

"The roof leaked and when the plaster fell on the kids, that's when they'd fix it, not before."

She's been up against it for so long she knows the unwritten roles of landlords who operate the dilapidated old homes available to welfare cases.

"One rule is, you've got to put three plugs in a leaking hot water tank before it's ready for replacement—even if your kids are in danger of being scalded."

Mrs. MacKenzie's next call was with a pioneer couple who live with their grown but retarded son in a tiny 60-year-old home on Yates. It will be coming down soon. New apartments are already encroaching.

The father and mother are both pensioners, born in Victoria but they can't qualify for senior citizen housing without parting with their son, and that's out.

Their house is stacked with firewood and threaded with sagging wiring. If a fire inspector ever saw it, it would be condemned. But where else could they get accommodation for $30?

"How could we pay more?" they ask.

A sharp contrast is the one room and kitchenette on Quadra, the second floor retreat of another pensioner, a woman aged 79, who sits with her blinds drawn because she has glaucoma, a cataract in each eye. She has 20 per cent sight.

She does her own cooking and bakes her own bread in a tin oven that sits over a two-ring gas burner. The Victorian Order of Nurses sees her daily to administer insulin. She's a diabetic.

'WHAT CAN BE DONE'

A public meeting on housing—"what can be done?"—will be held tonight at 8 in the Union Centre, 2750 Quadra.

Speakers include MP Colin Cameron, Victoria Ald. Ian Stewart, Mrs. May Campbell, president of the Senior Citizens Housing Society of Greater Victoria, and Dr. Laudadio of the economics department of the University of Victoria.

The meeting was organized by the Victoria Labour Council in place of its regular council meeting.

IN THIS CORNER . . .

Waldo the Wildcat Versus Leo the Lion

As the opposition gave the government a big push in the legislature Tuesday, the Socred whip gave the NDP whip "a little push" in the corridor outside.

Waldo Skillings (SC—Victoria) and Leo Nimsick (NDP—Kootenay), the opposing party whips, were arguing over order of speakers in the throne speech debate.

"He called me a liar," said Mr. Skillings later. "I pushed him a little."

Mr. Nimsick denied calling him a liar and added: "He gave me a shove in the face. I told him to keep his hands off of me. I wasn't afraid of him."

Mr. Nimsick said he reported the incident to Speaker William Murray, who called the two men into his office where the matter was settled quietly.

"He apologized to me in front of the Speaker," Mr. Nimsick said this morning.

Asked if everything was fully patched up now, he said:

"It is as far as I'm concerned. I don't hold grudges. He didn't hurt me anyway but it was a really stupid thing for him to do."

It was settled so well that the two whips were later able to agree to add John Tisdalle (SC—Saanich and the Islands) to the list of speakers in the evening.

Dudley Little (SC—Skeena) ended the night sitting at 11 p.m. by announcing that arrangements had been completed for "Waldo the Wildcat" to meet "Leo the Lion" in an Indian wrestle.

The government was annoyed with the opposition for introducing its third non-confidence motion of the session in the afternoon and the NDP was still peeved after being voted down Monday in an attempt to rearrange order of speakers in the throne speech debate.

Mr. Skillings stands six feet one, Mr. Nimsick about five feet six.

Bad Cheque 'Mistake'

A man who told central court today he wrote a worthless $7.85 cheque by mistake will spend three days in jail while a pre-sentence report is prepared.

Glen Kristjan, 385 Island Highway, pleaded guilty to a charge of obtaining goods by false pretences from Pearkes Florists.

Kristjan said he had written three cheques on a Vancouver account before he found out it was closed.

Magistrate Byers remanded the accused in custody to Friday for pre-sentence report.

GAGLARDI CHALLENGED TO DEBATE

Alex Macdonald (NDP — Vancouver East) today challenged Highways Minister Gaglardi to a public debate on his involvement in the burgeoning Kamloops-Merritt juncition land deal controversy.

The opposition lawyer, who braoched the subject in a speech to the legislature last Friday, said he would pay for the hall and would hold it in Mr. Gaglardi's hometown of Kamloops.

See also Pages 29, 30

Mr. Macdonald issued the challenge in a press statement because, he said, Mr. Gaglardi has reviled him in various public statements since Friday but never to his face.

The controversy surrounds a land development alongside a strategic highway junction two miles south of Kamloops which depended on highways department approval. Mr. Gaglardi was one of the vendors of the land in his private capacity as an executor of an estate.

"Highways Minister Gaglardi has in the last few days on television, and elsewhere, called me every name in the book but always outside of the legislature and never eyeball to eyeball," Mr. Macdonald said this morning.

"I therefore challenge him to a public debate in Kamloops, at a time and place of his choosing but preferably within three weeks.

"I will pay for the hall.

"The minister says that the developer did not get 'direct' access to the Trans-Canada Highway.

SOMETHING BETTER

"Of course not, but they got something better from the department of highways — a service road alongside the highway for gas stations, motels, shopping, etc. all their little hearts could possibly desire.

"The minister said on television that if there is a roadrunner (highways official giving advance tips to speculators) he wants to find it.

"So far he has dropped more clues than anyone else."

'Firemen Too Slow' Responding'

A citizen said today he is filing a complaint against the city fire department for failing to respond immediately to a fire call at 728 Kings Road.

By press time four fire trucks had arrived on the scene but Henry Bitterman, 558 Broadway, said three calls had to be made before they arrived.

No one was in the house at the time. A neighbor first noticed the fire around noon.

NO HOSE

After calling the fire department she appealed to Mr. Bitterman, a passerby, to help fight the fire.

"We couldn't find a hose anywhere," said Mr. Bitterman. "We rushed into the house and found the kitchen aflame. We shut all the doors to prevent a pressure build-up but it exploded breaking some windows."

Mr. Bitterman then made a second call to the fire department, waited six minutes and then phoned again.

"In all it took the department at least 10 to 12 minutes to respond from the first call. People could be burned to death by that time and they're not a stone's throw away."

Huddle Called On Troubled Renewal Plan

Bottlenecks Plague Blanshard Project

By JIM HUME
City Hall Reporter

The newly constituted British Columbia Housing Management Commission meets in Victoria Thursday in an attempt to eliminate the bottlenecks holding up the Rose-Blanshard urban renewal projects.

City manager Dennis Young is the local representative on the commission. Other members represent the federal and provincial governments.

The complete agenda for the first meeting of the commission is unknown, but it is believed the matter of design and construction of 180 housing units will be given top priority.

In the past the provincial government has favored a call for proposals. This results in contractors bidding for, then designing and constructing the entire project.

The city favors a formula whereby an architect divorced from the contractor designs the project and maintains a close check on construction.

Failure to reach an agreement — the final decision rests with the province — has already created bottlenecks and is in danger of creating more. But city officials are reluctant to discuss either the present delays or looming problems.

But the facts of the situation indicate that unless the Management Commission can come up with some fast answers and get home construction under way soon the entire project may bog down.

Original Priority Order Askew

Already the original order of priorities has been lost.

Priority No. 1 was to clear the site for and start construction of a new school to replace North Ward School.

No. 2 was to clear the site and start construction of new housing units.

No. 3 was to start the final phase of house-building while rerouting and widening Rose Street.

Phase one went ahead slightly ahead of schedule.

Phase three is scheduled to start this June.

Phase two remains at the talking stage.

The switch in the program appears innocuous on the surface. But under the National Housing Act people displaced by land acquisition for an urban renewal scheme must be found alternative accommodation while waiting for new houses to be built.

In the Rose-Blanshard area people displaced by phase-two land acquisition were reaccommodated in the phase-three area. Had the project gone according to plan new homes would have been ready for them before the new road program got under way.

As things stand now several families are living in temporary homes in the middle of the new road route.

50 Owners Still Negotiating

Adding to the problem of where to move them next if the road is to go through on schedule are eight property owners who have failed to come to terms with the city on the price to be paid for their property.

In total throughout the entire scheme area more than 50 property owners are still negotiating with the city for what they feel is a fair price for their property.

But the eight holdouts on the road route are now being classed in the emergency bracket.

If the road project is to start on schedule in June agreements with the hold-outs must be reached by early May in order for demolition work to proceed.

But even if agreements can be reached with the property owners the problem of what to do with temporary residents will remain until new homes are available.

And those headaches are only minor compared to the one facing city hall negotiators as they get down to cases with the hold-out property owners.

The original assessments of fair market value for the properties involved were made close to two years ago. During the past two years property values have jumped around 30 per cent.

They Face Cleft-Stick Decision

When the original assessments were made of the entire area the land prices were checked and approved by senior partner in the project, Canada Mortgage and Housing Corporation. Not only did they approve the prices but they also stipulated that they were maximums.

City officials are now faced with a cleft-stick decision. Whichever way they move they face severe criticism.

If they use their powers of expropriation they face a court decision which will undoubtedly order payment at the going market rate rather than the rate established two years ago.

If they arrive at individual agreements with the holdout property owners they find themselves in the position of actually penalizing the people who agreed to the prices established two years ago.

Either way the city is faced with raising the extra money to meet the legitimate demands of the remaining property owners.

And either way they face the chargrin of the property owners who settled for the first offers and now realize that their early settlement cost money.

Who and what caused the present impasse?

City council because it refused to put cold hard business practice before its treatment of people.

The city could have invoked expropriation proceedings against any of the property owners at any time during the past two years. But, reluctant to force people from old homes to make way for new, the city chose the softer path of negotiation.

It could prove a costly decision before the year is out. In addition there is little doubt that eventually city officials will have to come face to face with the issue that they have carefully avoided for so long: expropriation.

City manager Dennis Young insists that the problems are not as serious as indicated.

But when pressed he admits the city will have to pass "appropriate expropriation bylaws by the end of May in order to have the machinery ready if and when it is needed."

"But," he adds quickly, "I am sure that we shall not need to expropriate. The property owners remaining in the Rose-Blanshard scheme area are not being unreasonable. In many cases the social aspects of the problem justify their stand."

In other words he remains confident the problems can still be solved by negotiation.

Other city officials do not agree. They foresee a continuing stall until court action finally pulls the plug and forces decisions.

Man Pays $300 Fine For Impaired Driving

Wayne Repay, HMCS Saskatchewan, was fined $300 in central court today for impaired driving.

Court was told Repay was the driver of a car which struck a parked vehicle and skidded into a tree on Admirals Road early February 4.

MAN TRIED TO REPAY

A man told central court today he tried to make restitution for three worthless cheques, but the company involved refused.

Erling Ellingsen, of North Surrey, pleaded guilty to three counts of obtaining cash by false pretences.

Court was told he cashed three worthless cheques at Eaton's, one on November 13 for $25; one on November 14 for $100, and one on November 20 for $80.

Magistrate Byers remanded Ellingsen to February 15 for pre-sentence report.

Air Search For Trio Suspended

The search for three men missing since Jan. 8 on a flight from Vancouver to Edmonton has been suspended.

The hunt for Reginald Thurber, 3118 Westdowne and Harvey Dishaw, 1310 Manor, and Burnaby pilot Gary Foslien, 20 was halted late Tuesday night.

Mr. Thurber was with the provincial highways department until 1955, when he founded the firm of R. C. Thurber and Associates. Mr. Dishaw, an expert in arial photography, joined the firm two years ago.

A spokesman for the Rescue Co-ordination Centre in Vancouver said, "The search will be resumed if there is any indication of new evidence that, up until now, has not been thoroughly investigated."

INTENSE HUNT

Although adverse weather conditions hampered the search since the beginning, the flight route the missing Cessna took and extensive fringe areas have been methodically searched, some of them many times, Rescue Centre reported. The more rugged terrain has been extensivly photographed.

Heavy snow fell in the mountainous region near the Continental Divide in one week of the search. Low cloud formations and severe air turbulence were present most of the time.

Despite the bad weather, air force and civilian planes have flown a total of 635.5 hours, covering over 84,000 square miles.

19 PLANES

At the height of the operation there were 19 military and civilian aircraft in the air at one time.

A search headquarters was set up at Penticton. It was manned by Captain Jack Crawford of the search and rescue flight at C.F.B. Comox and Captain Steve Brodie and Corporal Jack Garbutt of the Rescue Co-ordination Centre in Vancouver.

Mr. Thurber's wife, Margaret, and three children, live here as well as Mr. Dishaw's wife, Haxel, and two children.

Ask The Times

Q. What is the origin of the Manx cat; and how come they haven't any tails—a real Manx cat is absolutely tailless, not even a stub? C.J.K.

A. The animal originated on the British Isle of Man, according to a local breeder of the animal. The lack of a tail is due to a genetic factor in the development of the Manx, which was cut off from all other varieties of the feline family.

Q. My birthday is on Feb. 20; I would like to know the famous people born or who died on this date. M.B.

A. Dutch philosopher Baruch Spinoza died on that date in 1677; Harry Geisel, umpire in the American League, and Admiral Chester Nimitz, admiral of the U.S. Pacific Fleet during World War II, also died on that day in 1966. Princess Louise, Duchess of Fife, was born Feb. 20, 1867.

Toss Out Gas Plan FPC Told

WASHINGTON (CP) — A plan that would exclude further Western Canada natural gas imports from California should be thrown out, examiner Charles Wenner of the Federal Power Commission was told Tuesday.

Wenner praised the plan as a "significant contribution" to long-range planning but said he will reserve judgment on just how much weight to attach to it in the cases before him.

He is preparing a recommendation on two applications—one from El Paso Natural Gas Co. of Texas to pipe more American gas into California and one from the Pacific Gas Transmission Co. to import more Alberta gas for California.

At Wenner's instructions to examine reasonable alternatives in the public interest, the staff of the power commission has proposed that El Paso or some other pipeline company should build a 42-inch line from Texas to California to meet all that state's needs.

The staff would deny the Pacific Gas application to import daily 200,000,000 cubic feet more from Alberta—but only in the event that El Paso in another case is denied its application to bring in the same amount from the Westcoast Transmission Co. Ltd. of Vancouver.

The Pacific Gas deal for Alberta Gas is several cents per thousand cubic feet cheaper than the El Paso-Westcoast deal, which has locked the U.S. commission and the National Energy Board of Canada into an impasse over the price of the Canadian supplies.

At hearings resumed Tuesday before Wenner, the Transmission Pipeline Co.—another California supplier—intervened to move that the staff plan be thrown out.

Wenner agreed there are problems with it. He said a legal difficulty is that the staff is proposing a project altogether new to the El Paso application.

There are limits too on how much the commission can alter applications before it, he said.

Income Tax Tips

By P. J. KELLY

Q. My wife and I were married in September. She was working before marriage but has not worked since. Can I claim the full married exemption of $1,000 for her? What does she do about filing a return?

A. Yes, if she received no income after your marriage you may claim the full married exemption of $1,000. It is only income she received after your marriage that affects your exemptions. If your wife is taxable or had tax deducted from her salary, she must file her own return. Her exemptions are not affected by her marriage.

Q. I have received most of the information slips for my income tax return but I am still waiting for one of them. Should I file my return without this slip?

A. No. Please wait until you have all your T4 slips and medical receipts before filing your return. A missing information slip may cause delays in processing as such returns will be sent to our district offices for additional information. If you have not received your T4 slips by early in March, you should ask your employer for them.

9 IN MEMORIAM

FUSSEY — In loving memory of our dearly beloved mother, Ethel Mae Fussey, who passed away February 6, 1954.

Gone, dear mother, gone forever,
How we miss your smiling face
But you left us to remember,
None on earth can take your place.
A happy home we once enjoyed,
How sweet the memory still
But death has left a loneliness
The world can never fill.

—Always loved, deeply missed by your daughter, sons and families.

BRIDGE LESSON

By OSWALD and JAMES JACOBY
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

Victor Mollo writes: "Few players are so often in the limelight as Giorgio Belladonna. Somehow he seems to hold the right cards at the right time when the right people are kibitzing. Examples of his dummy play have inspired countless articles, but the one which follows has not been published before. It occurred at rubber bridge.

Opening lead—♠ J

"With a sure loser in spades and another in hearts, the contract appeared to hinge on locating the queen of diamonds. What, then, was the best way to play the hand? Belladonna decided to let the opponents find the queen for him. He won the opening spade in his hand, cashed dummy's ace and king of clubs, ruffed a club, entered dummy with the ace of hearts and ruffed the last club. If East had followed to the fourth club, Belladonna would have discarded his heart, since he could not have afforded the chance of an overruff by West.

"Then he put the opponents on lead with a heart. Winning the spade return in dummy, he ruffed dummy's last heart and got off lead again with a spade. He was down to three diamonds in each hand and sure to make the rest of the tricks irrespective of the diamond situation."

This hand is a beautiful example of dummy play. His play wasn't a sure thing. If West had started with only two clubs, for example, the hand would have collapsed with the third club lead, but it was a far better line of play than going right after trumps.

The hand also shows one vaunted Italian system at its worst. Somehow or other a three no-trump contract would be far better and would be arrived at by any American pair. Playing at three no-trump, declarer will be worried only by a heart lead. It won't be much of a worry because he will hold off twice and then play the diamond suit so as to be sure of keeping East out of the lead. He will lose to the queen of diamonds by this play but will wind up making four no-trump anyway.

$80 Million Aluminum Plant Set

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Harvey Aluminum Co. will build an $80,000,000 aluminum plant on the Washington side of the Columbia River about 20 miles southeast of Goldendale, Sen. Henry M. Jackson, (D — Wash.) said Monday.

The site was specified in a contract the Torrance, Calif., firm signed with the Bonneville Power Administration for 105,000 kilowatts of firm power and about 95,000 kilowatts of interruptible power for the plant.

Jackson said the contract provides that the plant must be built by April 1, 1972.

It will employ about 600 with an annual payroll of $6,000,000 and have two aluminum potlines with a capacity of about 100,000 tons of aluminum a year. The plant will be slightly larger than the one Harvey has at The Dalles, Ore.

Toss Out Gas Plan FPC Told

WASHINGTON (CP) — A plan that would exclude further Western Canada natural gas imports from California should be thrown out, examiner Charles Wenner of the Federal Power Commission was told Tuesday.

Wenner praised the plan as a "significant contribution" to long-range planning but said he will reserve judgment on just how much weight to attach to it in the cases before him.

He is preparing a recommendation on two applications—one from El Paso Natural Gas Co. of Texas to pipe more American gas into California and one from the Pacific Gas Transmission Co. to import more Alberta gas for California.

At Wenner's instructions to examine reasonable alternatives in the public interest, the staff of the power commission has proposed that El Paso or some other pipeline company should build a 42-inch line from Texas to California to meet all that state's needs.

The staff would deny the Pacific Gas application to import daily 200,000,000 cubic feet more from Alberta—but only in the event that El Paso in another case is denied its application to bring in the same amount from the Westcoast Transmission Co. Ltd. of Vancouver.

The Pacific Gas deal for Alberta Gas is several cents per thousand cubic feet cheaper than the El Paso-Westcoast deal, which has locked the U.S. commission and the National Energy Board of Canada into an impasse over the price of the Canadian supplies.

At hearings resumed Tuesday before Wenner, the Transmission Pipeline Co.—another California supplier—intervened to move that the staff plan be thrown out.

Wenner agreed there are problems with it. He said a legal difficulty is that the staff is proposing a project altogether new to the El Paso application.

There are limits too on how much the commission can alter applications before it, he said.

Income Tax Tips

By P. J. KELLY

Q. My wife and I were married in September. She was working before marriage but has not worked since. Can I claim the full married exemption of $1,000 for her? What does she do about filing a return?

A. Yes, if she received no income after your marriage you may claim the full married exemption of $1,000. It is only income she received after your marriage that affects your exemptions. If your wife is taxable or had tax deducted from her salary, she must file her own return. Her exemptions are not affected by her marriage.

Q. I have received most of the information slips for my income tax return but I am still waiting for one of them. Should I file my return without this slip?

A. No. Please wait until you have all your T4 slips and medical receipts before filing your return. A missing information slip may cause delays in processing as such returns will be sent to our district offices for additional information. If you have not received your T4 slips by early in March, you should ask your employer for them.
